DECLARATION OF THE FRENCH SENATE DETHRONING BONAPARTE.

Paris papers have been received to the 3d, which contain the highly important intelligence that the Senate having assembled at the desire of the Emperor of Russia, have declared the dynasty of Bonaparte at an end. The French are, at the same time, delivered from their oath of allegiance to him, and an address is to be made to the armies, for the purpose of gaining their submission to the new arrangement. The Senate and Legislative Bodies are declared fundamental parts of the new Constitution, under such modifications as may be thought proper. The preservation of property, the payment of the public debt, and of public pensions, the freedom of the press, and religious toleration, are to be provided for. A Committee of five members, namely, Talleyrand, Bournville, Dalberg, Jaucour, and Montesquieu, have been chosen as a provisionary Government, and thus the final blow has been at length given to the power of Bonaparte. The proceedings against him have assumed a legal form, and it is not likely that his armies will resist the authority of the Legislative Body. A cessation of arms may be of course expected immediately, when arrangements will be made for a permanent settlement, and Europe, we trust, may look forward to a long æra of prosperity and peace. The following bulletin was issued on Friday by Government, and further particulars of this extraordinary revolution will be found in our private correspondence:

"Foreign Office, April 6.

"Moniteurs of the 1st, 2d, and 3d instant are arrived.

"By desire of the Emperor of Russia, the Senate had assembled, and had chosen a Committee of five, to constitute a Provisory Government. The members are Talleyrand, Bournville, Dalberg, Jaucour, and Montesquieu.

"The Senate in a second sitting declared, that the dynasty of Bonaparte was at an end—that the French were delivered from their oath of allegiance to him—and an address to the same purport is made to the armies.

"They then declare that the Senate and Legislative Bodies shall form fundamental parts of the new Constitution, under such modifications as might be proper.

"That property shall be preserved, as well as the public debt and public pensions; that the press shall be free, subject to regulations—an indemnity for conduct and opinions; that there shall be complete religious freedom. A constitution is to be presented upon these bases.

"Nothing appeared determined as to the Bourbons; but a minor paper of the 4th states that the general sentiment of Paris is in favour of the Bourbons, and the white cockade was generally displayed.

"The utmost tranquillity exists in Paris; the barriers are all open. Versailles, and the towns in the neighbourhood, have declared in union with Paris.

"Nothing is mentioned as to Bonaparte, or his army."

Dispatches have been received from Lord Wellington dated the 25th, when he was rapidly advancing on Thoulouse. The following bulletin has been issued by Government:—

"War Department, April 7. 1814.

"A dispatch has been received from the Marquis of Wellington, dated Samatan, March 25:

"After the affair of the 20th the enemy had retreated with such rapidity that the allies were unable to come up with him, excepting on the 22d, when Major-General Fane, with the 13th light dragoons, supported by the 3d dragoon guards, came up with the enemy's rear-guard at St Gaudens, charged and pursued them two miles, killing many, and taking about 100 prisoners.

"Marshal Soult arrived at Thoulouse with his army on the 24th."

Dutch papers have arrived, and mails from Bremen and Heligoland. They contain the official account of the victory gained by Murat, over Beauharnois on the 6th and 7th. These details are now of course of no consequence. A serious attack it is also said, is meditated against Hamburgh. But all these matters will soon, it is likely, be settled in a different way.

PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE.

"London, April 9. half-past seven P. M.

BONAPARTE DETHRONED.

"At length we have an arrival from France; Moniteurs have reached us to the 3d inst. announcing the important intelligence, that the Emperor Napoleon has ceased to reign.

"Beyond even this, the Moniteurs possess an interest and novelty never equalled by any journals that ever reached this country. Instead of containing bulletins of the splendid achievements of Bonaparte and his army, they are filled with proclamations from the several allied powers, and proceedings of the Conservative Senate, all tending to the dowfall of the present dynasty.

"All the Members of Bonaparte's Government, Talleyrand at their head, have signed a decree, declaring that Bonaparte is unfit to reign.

"The Bourdon dynasty is to succeed Bonaparte, although it is not distinctly stated so in the Moniteurs. There is a proclamation in the Moniteur, from Louis XVIII. setting forth his claim to the throne, and every proceeding tends to the belief, that no opposition will be made to it.

"The Russian and other Monarchs have declared, by proclamation in the Moniteur, that they will, without the least delay, set at liberty all the French prisoners in their power, with an invitation to join the cause against Bonaparte, should he attempt to make any resistance to the new order of things; at the same time the members of the Government have addressed the armies of France, urging them to quit a cause which is so much at variance with their interests, and those of the French nation.

"Since writing the above, we have seen a minor French paper of the 4th, which contains in substance as follows:—

'The Senate have declared against Bonaparte.—They have declared him deprived of the throne, in a long decree, signed by about fifty Senators. Talleyrand is at the head.

'A provisional Government is appointed, and the French troops have been called upon to join it, and abandon the deposed ruler.

'General Sacken is appointed Governor of Paris.

'The Cossacks have got near Boulogne.

'Boulogne is expected to be declared an open port.'

Paris, April 3.

'By desire of the Emperor of Russia, the Senate had assembled, and had chosen a Committee of Five, to consolidate a provisional Government.

'The members are Talleyrand, Bournonville, Dalby, Jancour, and Montesquieu. The Senate, in a crowded sitting, declared that the dynasty of Bonaparte is at an end—that the French were delivered from their oaths of allegiance to him; and an address to the same purport is made to the armies.—They then declare that the Senate and the Legislative Bodies shall form fundamental parts of the new Constitution, under such modifications as might be proper.—That property shall be preserved, as well as the public debt and public pensions—that the press shall be free, subject to certain restrictions—an indemnity for conduct and opinions—that there shall be complete religious freedom. A Constitution is to be presented upon these bases.'

"The utmost tranquillity exists in Paris. The barriers are all open. Versailles and the towns in the neighbourhood have declared in unison with Paris.

"Nothing is mentioned as to Bonaparte or his army.

"The Emperor of Russia has promised to release all French prisoners."

The guns of the castle were fired this morning, and the bells of the city continue ringing, in celebration of the important intelligence received from Paris.

A proclamation of the Magistrates, congratulating the citizens on the important events communicated in this day's paper, will be seen in a subsequent column.

The Matchless arrived at London on Thursday last.

The Queen Charlotte arrived at Leith on Saturday.

Mr Alexander Finlay, of Glasgow, has been appointed carver, gilder, and printseller to his Majesty for Scotland.

William Fairlie, Esq. of London, late of Calcutta, has sent fifty pounds to the Rev. Dr M'Kinlay, one of the ministers of Kilmarnock, to be distributed among the poor of the parish.

Perth—Margaret Baxter, alias Margaret Reekie, forgery or issuing forged notes.

A petition was presented to the House of Commons on Tuesday, from the city of Glasgow, against the proposed alteration of the Corn Laws.

The Magistrates and Council of the town of Kilmarnock, lately unanimously resolved to petition Parliament against any alteration of the corn laws.

We understand the Magistrates and Town Council of Sanquhar have instructed Mr Douglas, the member for that district of burghs, to oppose, in all its stages, the bill intended to be brought into Parliament for an alteration in the corn laws.

On Thursday se'ennight, a county meeting was held at Dumfries, for the purpose of considering the state of the corn laws, when several resolutions were unanimously adopted, expressive of the sense of the meeting, that further restrictions on the importation of foreign grain are expedient and necessary.

The Magistrates of Forfar have established a market for horses, to be held in that town, at the annual cattle market, about the middle of May. The first market takes place on Wednesday the 18th of next month, to which dealers have been invited free of custom.

The London, of Montrose, sailed from that port on Monday last, and the Eliza Swan and Monarch on Friday, for the Greenland whale fishery.

The ships Canada, Robinson, and Lord Wellington, Mitchell, transports of Aberdeen, that sailed from Passages for England with the fleet which suffered so severely in a hard gale on the 2d March, and four subsequent days, in the Bay of Biscay, have arrived with damage, the former at Corunna, and the latter at St Andero, after the greatest apprehensions for their safety.

Extract of a letter, dated Custom House, Kirkwall, April 8. 1814.—"We have this morning received a letter from one of our officers at Long Hope, giving notice, that the Scourge, American privateer, had boarded a Swedish vessel on Friday afternoon, (the 1st curt.) about 20 miles to the westward of Hoy, which vessel arrived at Long Hope this morning; and that the Scourge had captured three brigs from Liverpool, with salt and tobacco, sinking one and burning two of them. The prisoners were put on board the Swede, who, before the privateer was out of sight, saw her in chase of other vessels. The officer informs, that his Majesty's ships Stork and Nightingale, which were at Longhope, immediately sailed in quest of the privateer, and hopes are entertained of their falling in with her."

Extract of a letter, same date, from Stormness.—"The Scourge, American privateer, from Dronthein, has captured the Symmetry of Hull, and the Union of Liverpool, the former loaded with salt, for Pillau, and the latter with sugar and coffee, for Rotterdam—also, another ship belonging to Liverpool; burnt the two first and sunk the last, and was left in chace of four others. The Earl Falconberg, of Hull, was in sight, but the Captain of the Scourge told the captured shipmasters, that he did not like to go alongside of him. The Middleton of Aberdeen arrived on the 2d curt. at Stromness."

The 37th regiment, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel James, arrived at Passages from Gibraltar, on March 6th, and joined Lord Wellington's army; they are attached to the 3d division.

Sunday se'ennight, the 1st division of the Wiltshire militia, commanded by Lord Bruce, arrived at Donaghadee from Port Patrick.

The Royal Lancashire regiment have replaced the 12th at Athlone. The Louth militia have arrived at Armagh, to replace the North York, who have marched for Belfast.

Andrew Lenox, one of the felons who broke out of Carlisle jail on the evening of the 20th ult. has been committed to Morpeth jail, to take his trial for housebreaking at Torhill, near Hexham. Lenox had been confined at Carlisle on a charge of burglary at Longwathby, near Penrith, and on regaining his liberty, it seems was not able to refrain from his nefarious practices.

On Saturday last five men accidentally met in a shop in Maryport, whose united ages amounted to 400 years.

In Ireland's natural history, written by Dr Boate, and published in 1652, we find the following singular method adopted for passing a rivulet swollen by rain, which we are sure could never have entered into the head of any but an Irishman:

"The Lagon, a little river or brook which passeth by the town of Dremore, upon a certain time, being greatly risen through a great and lasting rain, and having carried away the wooden bridge, whereby the same used to be passed at that town; a country fellow who was travelling that way, having stayed three dayes in hope that the water would fall, and seeing that the rain continued, grew impatient of staying longer, and resolved to pass the brook whatever the danger was; but to doe it with the less perill, and the more steadiness, he took a great heavy stone upon his shoulders, whose weight giving him some firmness against the violence of the waters, he passed the same without harm, and came safe to the other side, to the wonderment of many people, who had been looking on, and given him all for a lost person."

GENERAL ORDERS.

BY LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR ROWLAND HILL.

Aire, March 5. 1814.

Lieutenant-General Sir Rowland Hill congratulates Lieutenant-General Sir William Stewart, Major-General Barnes, and Major-General Byng, for the brilliant part which they bore in the action of the 14 Inst.

The gallant and steady conduct of the 50th regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel Harrison, and of the 92d, under Lieutenant-Colonel Cameron, excited the admiration of all who were witness to it.

The exertions of Captain M'Donald, of the royal horse artillery, at a critical moment, were most conspicuous; and the Lieutenant-General begs that officer, and the officers of the staff of the 3d division, to accept his best thanks for their conduct on that day.

To Major-General Fane, and the brigade of cavalry under his command; to Captain Beane, and his troop of horse artillery, the Lieutenant-General is anxious to express his obligations for their services during the whole of the late operations.

Sir, Edinburgh, 5th January 1813.

IT is now eight years since I was first afflicted with the scurvy, during which time I have had frequent recourse to the eminent of the faculty here and at Glasgow, but I am sorry to say to little or no purpose. Seeing in the newspapers many surprising cures performed by means of Dr Baxter's ANTISCORBUTIC DROPS, I was induced to make trial of them. I purchased a bottle of your agent, Mr Baxter, Italian Warehouse, South Bridge, Edinburgh. Soon after I began to take the medicine, I found my complaint rather to increase; but by Mr Baxter's advice I persevered, and before I had taken four bottles, I became sensible of my complaint giving way to the efficacy of the drops. My case, Sir, is perhaps the most wonderful one that has ever occured, and which I think is a credit to the superior efficacy of your valuable medicine. I had at one time to less than seven running sores about me, one in particular inside of my left leg afflicted me more than all the others, the ulcer being so deep in the flesh as almost to lay the bone bare, attended with violent pain and inflamation from the knee to the extremity of the toes, discharging vast quantities of ichorous matter, with pieces of the diseased bone, which kept me in such continued and excruciating pain as rendered my life truly burdensome. I have now, thank God, the satisfaction to declare, that your drops have effected a complete cure, which I am desirous you should publish, for the benefit of others. Since my cure I have enjoyed a good state of health, to which blessing I had been so many years a stranger; the scars now in various parts of my body only remain as a lasting testimony of what your medicine has done for me. I must heartily wish your drops were more extensively known, when certain I am, many of my sufferering fellow creatures would be extricated from loathsome disease and tormenting pain, and be, as it were snatched from the brink of the grave, to a state of convalescence.

I am, with every respect, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM TAYLOR.
