- Arthur Frogg, date of birth unknown but tradition has said that he was killed in a duel before 1771. He died intestate and may have left a son, John Frogg, see explanation below.

The Evolution of John Frogg

Although absolute proof is lacking, John Frogg, was born about 1710 in Christiana, Pennsylvania to Scottish-born merchants who immigrated to Philadelphia about 1702 from Edinburgh. The only known record of John's date of birth is when in 1793, his age was listed at age 83 in a court document over a land title dispute.

If John Frogg "The Sheriff" was the son of John Frogg, "of Christiana" John was orphaned at about the age of four when his young father, merchant in Philadelphia, died in 1717 and his mother a few year later who died intestate. John would have been reared by his older step-brother and merchant, Captain William Battell (1696 - 1734), who learned the trade of sheriff from his father-in-law Col. John French (c1672 - c1728) of New Castle County, Delaware. As stated in Newcastle County Court records, William Battell was given full rights to the plantation formerly owned by John Frogg "of Christiana", deceased and his widow Mary, also mother of William. Captain William Battell married Parnell French on 19 Jun 1718 in New Castle County likely at the Emmanuel Church where they were among the vestry. It is this author's opinion that the marriage between Captain Battell and Mrs. French is what would bring John Frogg to Virginia and give John the skills required of a County Sheriff. The French's and Strothers were related through the marriage of Margaret French and James Strother. [21; pg 240]

When John reached adulthood, he took a job as Sheriff for Prince William County and settled near present day Morrisville in Prince William County where he married Elizabeth Strother on 9 Nov 1738. This land in Prince William County was probably the land Elizabeth's father had mentioned in his will in 1732. John and Elizabeth remained at this home most of their lives and raised all of their children on this plantation. John Frogg married into a very rich and well established family, most of whom were burgesses, councilors, sheriffs and members of the gentry class of the colony of Virginia.

John and Elizabeth were Virginia plantation owners and operated the areas first grist mill. John served for decades as sheriff for Prince William County and later became Major in the Virginia Militia for Prince William County, Virginia. He was in charge of "manning a line of forts from Great-Cape Capon in Hampshire Co. to the south fork of the Mayo River in Halifax" during the French and Indian War and by the end of the war earned the rank of Colonel. John was elected in the Virginia House of Burgesses and was among the justices responsible for creating Fauquier County.

John Frogg's most notable friends, neighbors, relatives and business partners included, John Madison, (uncle to president James Madison), George Washington, James Monroe, the distinguished Lewis family of Colonial Virginia, Indian Fighters and ancestors to Meriwether Lewis ["Lewis & Clark]). William Clark also married a daughter of Margaret Strother. His children also married into the Stuart family of Colonial Virginia. John's business partner who jointly purchased tens of thousands of acres of Virginia land was his neighbor, Dr. Michael Wallace of Ellerslie, King George County, Virginia, son of William Wallace of Galrigs and direct male descendant of William Wallace of Ellerslie (1270-1305), Scotland, aka "Braveheart".

John Frogg was also Major of the militia and commanded founding father and Supreme Court Chief Justice, John Marshall (1735-1855) during the French and Indian War. Through his marriage with the Strothers, he was brother-in-law to Patrick Henry and the uncle to President Zachary Taylor.

John and Elizabeth were wealthy plantation owners who speculated a considerable amount of land in northern Virginia. According to one of the first Frogge historians, Bettie Brittain Myers Egle, DAR 33990: The land upon which the Court House for Fauquier County was built was provided by John and Elizabeth Frogg.

The Frogg plantations were used to cultivate Sweet Virginian Tobacco which was tended by slaves. These slaves were given to John's heirs after his death.

One of John and Elizabeth's son, Arthur died at a young age. Oral tradition states that he killed a duel. Other than one obscure reference in Chalkley, no other documents exist for him signifying he died young. Another son, John Frogg, Jr. was killed at the Battle of Point Pleasant in October 1774 while acting as sutler for the American militia against the Indians.

As was the expected custom of the gentry class, all of John and Elizabeth's children married into wealthy prominent families including military officers, sheriffs and large land holders.

John and Elizabeth's sole surviving namesake, William Frogg would spawn some of the first settlers of present day Pall Mall, Tennessee. Most of the Froedge and Frogge families of America today can trace their roots to Col. John Frogg and Elizabeth Strother Frogg.

John Frogg, being referred to as a captain at an early age had gained experience as a sheriff from his step-brother, Captain William Battell. He would have been moderately educated as a youth and probably had periodic private tutors paid for by his adopted family.

The area of Augusta and Prince William County that John Frogg had lived can best be described by Colonel Byrd during his visit in 1732:

"Besides Colonel Willis, who is the top man of the place, there are only one merchant, a tailor, a smith, an ordinary-keeper, and a lady who acts both as a doctress and coffee woman" [19].

The Valley of Virginia was also described as being, "Between the Alleghany mountains and the Ohio river, within the present limits of Virginia, there were some villages interspersed, inhabited by small numbers of Indians; the most of whom retired north west of that river, as the tide of emigration rolled towards it. Some however remained in the interior, after settlements began to be made in their vicinity. This region of country was then only used as a hunting ground, and as a highway for belligerent parties of different nations, in their military expeditions against each other. In consequence of the almost continued hostilities between the northern and southern Indians, these expeditions were very frequent, and tended somewhat to retard the settlement of the valley, and render a residence in it, for some time, insecure and unpleasant" [50].

One of the earliest churches where John Frogg resided was Saint George's Parish Church in Spotsylvania was established in 1732. Below are some of the early vestrymen:

Augustus Smith, William Grayson, John Waller Thomas Chew, Geo. Wheatle, William Hansford, H. Sharpe, John Taliafero, Francis Thorton, Goodrich Lightfoot, Larkin Chew, Z. Lewis, Hon. John Robinson [father of Beverley Robinson, loyalists], Henry Beverley [former Governor of Jamaica and prisoner at Vera Cruz], Ambrose Grayson, Henry Beverley, Edward hickman, John Chew, F. Taliafero, John Waller, Jr., Wm. Robinson [John's Uncle, m. Ann Watts], Rice Curtis, William Battaley [Battaile], John Taliafero, Jr. Richard Tutt, John Thornton, Rice Curtis, Jr., William Waller Edward Herndon, Robert Jackson, John Spottswood, Feilding Lewis, Joseph Brock

Most of these families were inter-related or their children would later marry into each others families. The names in bold would play an integral role in John Frogg's life.

Sometime prior to 1794, the elderly John and Elizabeth Frogg sold their home and moved into the home of their daughter Mary Frogg Cowardin and her husband, Col. John Cowardin who lived near Fort Lewis in Bath County. John wrote his will on 19 August 1794 at their home in Bath County which was proven 14 Jul 1795. John died nearing the age of 84. John's widow, Elizabeth survived a short time later appointing her son-in-law John Cowardin executor of John's will.

William Cave also listed in Gregg's Estate Division. His sister married a Strother. He was also a fellow sheriff and John Frogg witnesses Cave's will in 1742.

9 November 1738 (age 24)

Captain John Frogg marries Elizabeth Strother (1721 - aft. Jul 1795) in Overwharton Parrish, Stafford County, VA ^[14]. Elizabeth was 17-years old and was second daughter of thirteen children of William Strother III (1697-1732) and his second wife, Margaret Watts (1700-1754). Elizabeth's parents were wealthy Virginia planters who married circa 1718 and resided in King George County Virginia "on Ye Branches of Hassell Run" of which he paid 100 pounds sterling on October 1, 1725. Elizabeth's mother, Margaret was the daughter of Richard Watts and Mary () Watts. According to ^[73] Elizabeth died in 1752. However, it is likely in error as Elizabeth was mentioned in John Frogg's will written 19 Aug 1794. It is unlikely John married a second Elizabeth with no marriage record, but it is possible.

The Strothers had and would have remarkable ties with the gentry of Virginia. Margaret (Watts) Strother had a sister named Mary Watts who married first Col. Henry Ashton (7/30/1671-11/3/1731) and second John Ashton whose families married into the John and Augustine Washington families of Virginia. Margaret had another sister Ann Watts who married William Robinson of King George County, vestry of Hanover Parish and signer of the Northern Neck Declaration (Lord Fairfax). The Strothers sold land, opposite of Fredericksburg, to Augustine Washington, father of George Washington in 1738. William passed away at the age of 35, Margaret married second, Captain John Grant (?- 1754) of Stafford County between 1732 and before 1739 ^[32].

Possibly due to his role as a sheriff, John Frogg is listed as the security in the will of George Wheatley and in 1752 when George dies, John also attests the will. George was likely born in the Isle of Wight or Prince George County where John (1670) and Thomas (1717) can be seen probating their wills, respectively. George received a patent on Wild Cat Run in Fauquier County on 24 Dec 1716 adjacent to where John Frogg would settle. George became an early vestryman at St. George's Parish Church in Fredericksburg, Virginia. He married Mary Henry on 3 Dec 1729 in Spotsylvania County, Virginia. She was the sister of John Henry (?-1773) and aunt to the orator, Patrick Henry (1736-1799), Governor of Virginia.

Circa 1740 John Frogg and Elizabeth (Strother) Frogg give birth to William Frogg, in Prince William Co, VA. William married Mary Mitchell (c1745 - aft 4 Sep 1804), daughter of Cornelius and Jane Mitchell of Beverly Manor. William Frogg died in Cumberland County (Overton, TN), Kentucky after purchasing land in 1806 and after apparently being enumerated in his son's household when the 1810 census was taken for Burkesville, Cumberland County, Kentucky.

Cornelius Mitchell can be found in Culpepper County in March 1756 in Henning's Statutes (Vol. 7), listed as a foot soldier under Captains John and Francis Strother for 95 days of service.

John Frogg and Elizabeth Frogg as young newlyweds become guardians of, Sarah and Thomas Bullock (3 mos. old) whose parents had become deceased. Typically, guardians were relatives. In order to feed a three month old baby, Elizabeth had to have been nursing at this time.

John and Elizabeth give birth to Jane "Janey" Frogg (11 Nov 1741 - aft 1830) who later married her neighbor, Manoah Crawley (1740 - 26 May 1823) who lived just south of Broad Run in Fauquier County. Manoah may have also been born with the first name John and his surname was typically spelled "Cralle" or "Crallie" or Cralley. He was likely born at Cherry Point Neck in Northumberland County and had close ties with the Ball and Kenner families. The marriage record between Jane and Manoah has not been found by this author but likely took place about 1765 and likely before the birth of their first son, Richard named after Manoah's father. The Crawley family are among the Cavaliers and Pioneers of American settlers in Virginia. The Crawley name appears to have corrupted to Corley. According to some researchers, Manoah took a lease in the Manor of Leeds in 1767 and this is apparently the land where Manoah lived until his death in Fauquier County. During the Revolution, he was wealthy enough to appoint his neighbor, James Smoot (1764 - 1783) to take his place in service. Manoah made his 'Will' on 19 Dec 1817, and it was proven 26 May 1823. He declared his wife's name as Janney Corley. Manoah can be seen paying taxes in 1782 on one white poll and one slave in Fauquier County and in 1799 for the personal taxes in Fauquier County. When the 1810 Census for Fauquier County, Virginia, Manoah Corley and Jane Frogg can be seen living with Hezekiah and Elizabeth, their two youngest children. Manoah and Jane are enumerated in the 1820 census for Fauquier County, VA ^[71]. When the 1830 census was taken for Fauquier County, Jane Crawley can be seen listed as head of household enumerated between age 80 and 90 ^[70].

Children of MANOAH CRAWLEY and JANE FROGG are:

- i. LEWIS CRAWLEY, b. 1765, Culpepper Co., VA; d. February 11, 1871, Rappahannock Co., VA. (Named after the Lewis family; Jane's brother married Agatha Lewis)

William Cave of Overwharton parish wrote his will. William's sister, Sally Cave married a Strother and thus related to John Frogg. John witness the will on 17 July 1742 [Stafford County, Virginia Will book M page 338-339]. William Cave, third child to Benjamin Cave and Hannah Bledsoe, was a wealthy plantation owner and slave holder was also justice of the peace for Orange County, Virginia and married Ann (___). William died 14 Aug 1742 and had son James (b. 24 Apr. 1741). Benjamin Cave came to Virginia from England in 1725. He and Abraham Bledsoe, his brother in-law, held a patent for 1,000 acres of land in Rapidan river 1728. Benjamin was vestryman of St. Mark's Parish, Culpepper County, VA., 1731-1740, and of St. Thomas' Parish, Orange County, 1740 until his death. This family were all of the Established Church of England. Benjamin Cave represented Orange County in the House of Burgess 1756. [28]

John and Elizabeth Frogg give birth to Agnes Frogg (1746-aft 1810) who marries first, Captain John Oliver. (c1740 - 1799) on 17 Jul 1760 ^[65] ^[66]. John Oliver must be distinguished from four other John Olivers who were living in Northumbria, Augusta, King George and King & Queen County at the time ^[78]. John Oliver that married Agathy Frogg settled in Warm Springs, in what would become Greenbrier County West Virginia ^[Chalkley]. John Oliver appears to be the same person who served as private along with his brother-in-law, John Frogg, Jr. "The Sutler" (Lt. White's platoon) at the Battle of Point Pleasant in 1774. He took over for Captain Samuel Vance during the Revolutionary War on 21 Nov. 1780 and he or his Augusta County relative received land warrants in the Ohio Territory for his service ^[74]. John Oliver was a justice of the peace for Bath County and aided in its establishment. He became one of the largest landholders in Bath County and a prominent citizen. In 1787 Chalkley recorded that he deeded land to Mary Frogg and her husband, John Manoah Cowardine in Augusta County. Chalkley states that John and Agness had no heirs. He died intestate ^[Chalkley] in 1799. On 26 Mar 1801 Agnes married 2nd Thomas Edington (1750-?) in Bath County, Virginia ^[65]. The Oliver's and Edington's were neighbors as seen in land records for Bath County. Agnes may be the woman enumerated in the house of Thomas Edington as seen in the 1810 Census for Bath County, Virginia ^[67]. This Thomas would have to be her stepson as his age range was less than 45 years of age. Thomas and Agnes left no issue

About 1744 (age 34)

Elizabeth Frogg is born and named after her mother. She is not mentioned in her father's will and likely died prior as her husband remarried twice afterwards. According to Virginia Marriage Records, Elizabeth Frogg (c1744 - 1794) marries sheriff, Henry Spering (? - probate 30 Jun 1802) in Albemarle County, Virginia, (Surety Samuel Moses) ^[72] ^[73]. He was a testee to Isaac Waugh's will whose executor was, Jane Richardsons. Henry aided in the establishment of Staunton's fire company. He married second, Jane Price on 9 Apr 1795 and Third, Rebecca Blackmore on 21 Sep 1796, both were widows. His will was probated 30 June 1802 and his administrator was William Patrick.

May 26, 1745 (age 31)

John and Elizabeth give birth to Captain John Frogg "The Sutler" in Prince William Co, VA. He later married his cousin, Agatha Lewis (1753-1836). Their marriage took place on 18 Oct. 1770. Agatha was the daughter of Thomas Lewis (27 Apr 1718 - 31 Jan 1790) and Jane Strother. Thomas Lewis and John Madison both married Strothers and were surveyors and members of the Virginia House of Burgess (1738). Along with John Frogg, they were some of the largest landholders in Prince William County. John Frogg "The Sutler" was killed on 10 October 1774, at Point Pleasant, VA in the battle between the Virginia militia (Commanded by General Andrew Lewis) and the Indians by Cornstalk. Capt. John was one of forty-six officers and soldiers killed on that day. His name is among those listed on the Point Pleasant Battle Monument. After John's death, Agatha married Col. John Stewart of Greenbrier, County. Agatha was the granddaughter of John Lewis:

4 Nov 1745

John's brother-in-law, John Madison is appointed Clerk of the Court by Governor, Thomas Nelson and purchases 731 acres of land next to John Frogg in Beverly's Manor.

Hon. Thomas Lewis (27 Apr 1718 - 31 Jan 1790), John Frogg's brother-in law who married Jane Strother, survey's land for William Beverly for what would later become the Town of Staunton, Augusta County, Virginia. The Town of Staunton would become the birthplace of President Woodrow Wilson. In 1736 William Beverley, a wealthy planter and merchant from Essex County, Virginia was granted over 118,000 acres by the Crown in what would become Augusta County, Virginia. Lewis purchased 2,000 acres from Beverley, along the already named Lewis Creek, about a mile east of what is now Staunton, Virginia. He named his home "Bellefonte". [Wikipedia]. Thomas Lewis gave birth to many children, one of which, Agatha marries Captain John Frogg, "The Sutler".

Heflin's Store:

Heflin's Store is located in a village initially named George Town that developed in the early nineteenth century at the nucleus of a milling and agricultural settlement on Broad Run west of Thoroughfare Gap. During the westward expansion of Prince William County, the earliest grantees to this fertile Broad Run Valley crossed the Carolina Road and arrived by way of the gap between the Leathercoat and Biscuit mountains of the Bull Run range in 1725. These settlers and their followers found the racing waters of Broad Run and the upper and lower forks of its southeast-flowing Trap Branch suitable for gristmills, and there were a dozen within the vicinity by 1815.' Although Capt. John Frogg appears to have built the first or second earliest gristmill here before 1747 upon the same 1743 land grant that would contain the future Little Georgetown store and village, its precise location remains unclear.'

The necessary travel network from the west, east, north and south for access into the community and transport of produce to ports in the larger towns of Georgetown and Alexandria was well defined by the first quarter of the nineteenth century. The Thoroughfare Gap Road was extended beyond the Pignut Mountain to the Blue Ridge, taking it northwest past White (The) Plains and west to Calmes Gap in 1748.' Mills influenced highway development from the Winchester Road east to Thoroughfare Gap for Jonathan Chapman's mill in 1764. Indicating increasing travel, the Fauquier County court ordered improvements to this now-called Blantyre Road from the Broad Run Meeting House, distanced to the east on Barker's Run on the present Beverley's Mill Road, to the Thoroughfare Mill in 1799 and from the courthouse to Skinker's Trap Branch Mill in 1824. Typical of English settlement, the hamlet formed on both sides of the main Thoroughfare Gap Road that cut through the northern quarter of Captain Frogg's land grant leaving the plantations outlying, but unlike Salem (Marshall) or the village of Paris, no formal grid plan developed. Planter James Gunnell began buying multiple parcels north of the Gap Road in 1799, and the southern boundary of his 662-acre plantation comprised the northern edge of Little Georgetown, while the opposite south side belonged to James Morgan and

William Skinker, owners of the Trap Branch Mills. Gunnell, who applied for an ad quod damnum for his own water gristmill at this site in 1813, sold them this land four years later. The account books of Morgan and Skinker indicate the building of another mill at Trap Branch in 1821, and this is believed to be the addition of a sawmill which still existed in the mid-twentieth century.' It could also indicate that the plaster mill was separated 60m the gristmill. The mills and miller's house appear to have been the first buildings from which supporting trades, meeting houses, a few residences and outbuildings emerged in service to surrounding plantations. The 1727-1760 reign of King George II inspired numerous towns named after him in America, including the larger Georgetown established on the Potomac River in 1751, which seems to have caused the occasional attachment of "Little" to the evolving name of this village in Fauquier County. "George Town," first appears in an 1816 deed for four acres of land adjacent to the Trap Branch Mill dam.' Neighboring farmer Edward C. Turner of Kinloch also knew the village as George Town in 1839. In 1824, a surveyor platted James Gunnell's plantation west and south of Broad Run, north of the Gap Road and Trap Branch for his heirs and placed "L Georgetown" on the plat near the crossroads site of the future Heflin's store." The surveyor located Skinker's Cooper Shop north of Trap Branch and the main road. This is important because Mr. Gunnell had requested in his will that a stonewall be erected around the graves of himself and his wife that were to be laid near the cooper shop of William Skinker. The shop, graveyard and Gunnell mansion were all located just north of the mills about five tenths of a mile to the east of "L Georgetown" on the main Thoroughfare Gap road." Of additional significance to the Little Georgetown community, Mr. Gunnell devised to his neighbors and strangers that may have occasion for it a half acre of land for a cemetery beginning at two black oaks near the cooper shop running towards the mountain for fifty percent of the distance and back again in an oblong square. He probably meant for the line to run to the east toward Biscuit Mountain because of its closer proximity than Pignut Mountain on the west [58].

Sixteen year old George Washington learns the trade of land surveyor and surveys land in Virginia for Lord Fairfax. Also that year, the "Harper's Ferry begins to ferry people across the Shenandoah River.

John Frogg's and Elizabeth Strother gave birth to Mary "Polly" Frogg (c1748 – aft 1820). Mary later marries, Col. John Cowardine (10 Nov 1745 – 1802) near Short Hill in Greenbrier, WV about 1778. In 1782, John and his first wife, Margaret were living in Augusta County, Virginia paying one poll and owning 3 slaves. [43]

Cowarin and his brother in law, John Oliver purchased land in Bath County near Warm Springs, Bath County, Virginia and lived there the remainder of their lives. According to Annals of Bath County, Virginia, Col. John Cowardin was one of the first settlers near Fort Lewis and is listed as head of household in Bath County's first district in 1791. When the 1810 census was taken, Mary Cowardin can be seen living adjacent to her sister, Margaret (Frogg) Lewis in Bath County, Virginia ^[81]. John and Mary (Frogg) Cowarden had the following children:

1. John Lewis Cowardin (1776 - 24 Sep 1853) m. Mary "Polly" Rhodes White (? - 3 Dec 1830). She d. near Danville, VA.

Payments made for repairing mill dam. Receipts from Mr. McGraw per account of John McKenzie, Captain Frogg.

9 Sep 1749 (age 35)

At some point prior to 1749, John Frogg's Scottish neighbor, Dr. Michael Wallace (11 May 1719-Jan 1767) becomes his business partner. Whether they were related or not it is not known. Their kin were from the same area of Scotland. Together, they purchased several thousand acres of Virginia land over the next several years.

Dr. Michael Wallace (11 May 1719 - 1767) was the son of William Wallace (? - bef 1734) and Elizabeth Wallace, of Galrigs, Parish of Dundonald in Ayrshire (present day Newfield), Scotland, merchant, and of the same family as Sir William Wallace, heroic defender of Scottish independence [A.K.A Braveheart]. The Wallace pedigree can be traced back to 1163 AD [21]. John Frogg's business was an indentured by his Scottish uncles via Lawrence Dinwiddie to Dr. Gustavius Brown (10 Apr 1689 - Apr 1762) and his wife Francis Fowke, of Rich Hill Plantation, Mainside, Charles County, Maryland, eldest son of Richard Brown [59]. Wallace learned the trade of "Physick", surgery and Pharmacy [27]. In 1747, Michael Wallace married the daughter of his apprentice, Elizabeth Brown after she snuck out of her second story bedroom window with the help of a fellow students. They eloped and settled at Fredericksburg, Virginia where he had a very large medical practice [27]. Michael Wallace practiced in Culpepper, Fauquier and Loudoun Counties. He was employed by the vestry of St. Mark's parish, Culpepper County in 1755 and in 1756, the vestry paid him 800 lb. of tobacco (then Va. Currency), for curing Eliza Maddox. Michael can be seen in the same tax list as John Frogg in 1756 for Elk Run (Manassas Township) Prince William County [57]. John's will was recorded in King George County in 1767. He and his wife, Mrs. Brown lie side by side in the old colonial grave yard at Falmouth, VA. Dr. Michael Wallace's family bible, printed in 1683 contains his genealogy and is now in the possession of Judge W.H. MacBrayer, Lawrenceburgh, KY [56].

1748/9 (age 35)

John Frogg is listed as one of the vestrymen of Hamilton Parish Church after its second division. The records seemed to be used by both the Dettingen Parish and Hamilton Parish. He was listed as "subscribing to the test". The first minister was James Keith, of Peterhead, Scotland, a younger son of a distinguished family; he had been destined for the Church, but attracted to the cause of the Pretender. Keith fought in the Jacobite uprising of 1715 and on its suppression fled to Virginia.

Circa 1752 (age 42)

John and Elizabeth Frogg gave birth to Margaret Frogg (c 1752 - aft 1820) near Morrisville, Virginia. Margaret married her cousin, Captain John Lewis (1 Nov 1749 - 1790) and moved to Warm Springs, Virginia in 1776. Margaret Frogg's husband was the eldest son of Thomas Lewis (April 27, 1718 - January 31, 1790) and Jane (Strother) Lewis (1731 - 19 Sep 1820), and a nephew of General Andrew Lewis. John was seriously wounded at Point Pleasant along with his brother-in-law, John Frogg Junior, "The Sutler". John Lewis recovered and served under Washington at Valley Forge and was present at the surrender of Cornwallis. He died in 1789 at the age of 39 leaving four children, one of which Thomas is listed in his will. His undated will was proven on 21 September 1790 in Augusta (later Bath) County and executed by his wife, Maragaret (Frogg) Lewis and testified by Agatha (Lewis) Frogg, widow of John Frogg, Jr. His wife, Margaret (Frogg) never remarried and retained their Warm Springs Plantation as late at 1806 ^[60]. In July 1804, she and John Lewis (son?) and her brother-in-law, John Cowardine are listed in the Inventory Estate of Andrew Sitlington. When the 1810 census was taken for Bath County, the widowed Margaret can be seen living next to her sister, Mary (Frogg) Cowardin, owning three slaves. When the 1820 census was taken, she can be seen living next her son, John Lewis and her now widowed neighbor and sister, Mary (Frogg) Cowardin is likely also living in Margaret's home ^[80]. Margaret is listed as, my daughter, Margaret Lewis in her father's will when it was written in 1794.

Margaret and John Lewis “of Warm Springs” gave birth to at least the following children:

1. Thomas Lynn Lewis who is prob. The Thomas Lewis of Bath who m. Elizabeth Bellor on 12 May 1802.

Bath County was settled in 1745 by pioneers of mostly Scotch-Irish descent; many were educated, Presbyterian men from Ulster, Ireland. The "father" of Bath County was John Lewis, who first settled with his wife, Margaret Lynn, northwest of Staunton, Virginia, in 1732 at Fort Lewis. By 1740 he had purchased land on the Cowpasture River which he gave by deed to his only American born child, Charles, who settled at Fort Lewis in 1761 with his new bride, Sarah Murray. Charles later died at the Battle of Point Pleasant in 1774. Another son of John Lewis, Andrew, along with Thomas Bullitt, obtained a patent for the Hot Springs tract of 300 acres. They built the first hotel on the site of the present Homestead Resort in 1766.

Visitors began coming to the springs of Bath County by 1750 and by the early 1800's records indicate 6,000 visitors were coming to the springs annually. An act of the Virginia assembly, passed December 14, 1790, created Bath County from the counties of Augusta, Botetourt and Greenbrier. The first court in Bath County convened on May 10, 1791, at the home of Margaret (Frogg) Lewis in Warm Springs, which became the county seat. Named for the English resort city of Bath, the county quickly became a national resort attraction. The soothing mineral waters that flow from our springs have attracted visitors for over 200 years.

As sheriff, John Frogg files a complaint against Bryan Matthews for being a vagrant. The term vagrant refers to a person who is idle, refused to work although capable of doing so, and lived on the charity of others (beggar). The term vagrant has been replaced by homeless person as a way of describing a person who is without means or a permanent home.

Traditionally, communities tended to regard vagrants with suspicion and view them either as beggars or as persons likely to commit crimes. In England vagrants were whipped, branded, conscripted into military service, or exiled to penal colonies. In colonial America vagrancy statutes were common. A person who wandered into a town and did not find work was told to leave the community or face criminal prosecution.

French & Indian War

In early 1754, Col. George Washington completes his Fort Necessity at Great Meadows. Receiving additional reinforcements and supplies and with no immediate French reprisal, Washington continues building his road toward the Monongahela River. By late June, having knowledge of a French expedition sent to attack him, Washington attempts to retreat east of the Alleghenies. Having failed to receive needed supplies and with his men exhausted and sick, George Washington is forced to halt his retreat at Great Meadows. On the morning of July 3, 1754, the French force with their Indian allies arrives at the Meadows and begin their attack in what becomes the first battle of the French and Indian War. The eight-hour battle fought during heavy rain results in a French victory and Washington's only formal surrender. Fort Necessity is burned to the ground the following day, July 4th, and Washington and his men are allowed to march back to Ft. Cumberland.

After the demise of the French Empire, England, now the most powerful empire in the world and the strongest since ancient Rome would celebrate for another 12 years until America declared its independence.

He married Elizabeth Catesby Cocke, daughter of William Cocke, secretary of state on 14 Dec 1746 ^[40]. He left issues, two of which are John Graham and George Graham who served under Jefferson, Madison and Monroe.*

John Graham first married, Christian Brown (29 Aug 1720 -17 Sep 1742) of "Rich Hills" plantation on 13 Aug 1742 (she died one month later). This marriage made John Graham brother-in law to Michael Wallace who married Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Gustavus Brown and Frances Fowke. In his will, John Graham stated that his father was, "nearly related to Grahame of Gartur and Orchill, and his wife Margaret Graham*, eldest dau. of John Grahm, of Killearn, Stirlingshire, Scot'd, Esq. who was heir at law to the estate of the Duke of Montrose, should he be d.s.p". John Grahm of Killearn was one of 19 children, of whom Catherine married her cousin, John Stewart, of Balmuren, near Belfast, Ireland ^[61].

Dumfries history began as early as 1690 when Richard Gibson erected a gristmill on Quantico Creek. A customhouse and warehouse followed in 1731, and many others cropped up along the estuary by 1732. The Town of Dumfries was formally established on 60 acres of land at the head of the harbor of Quantico Creek, provided by John Graham. He named the town after his birthplace, Dumfries, Scotland.

March 1756 (age 42)

Due to his leadership and experience as the Sheriff of Prince William County, John Frogg was appointed Major of the Virginia Militia He has 23 days of service [62]. He is paid 20 lbs of tobacco per day for his service.

The House of Burgesses, meeting in Williamsburg, VA passed an act for raising militia in the counties of Fairfax, Prince William, Culpeper and Hampshire to man a line of forts from Great-Cape Capon in Hampshire Co. to the south fork of the Mayo River in Halifax. The Prince William militia was commanded by Major John Frogg.

According to a deposition that he made on March 22, 1780 to a recorder in an Augusta County courthouse, sometime in 1755, John Frogg travels the eastern frontiers on horseback with a garrison of men.

John Frogg proves that in March of 1756 he went out on the frontiers of this State with a body of men under his command as a Colonel or Major and served on the frontiers for some considerable time, but whether as a ranging battalion or volunteers, or what other capacity, does not appear [1; page 193].

One of John Frogg's soldiers was a man named Thomas Marshall (1730-1802) who settled on Licking Run in Prince William County, Virginia prior to 1753 [15]. Thomas married Mary Randolph Keith (Thomas Jefferson's cousin) first child was future Chief Justice of the United States, John Marshall (1755-1835), who more than any other person in American history, shaped early constitutional law. Col. John Frogg pays Col. George Washington a visit at his home in Mount Vernon. Col. Frogg offers Mr. Washington 400 acres to Washington for 2400 acres of the Strother Family property in Culpepper County located 46 miles above the Falls of Rappahannock. He tells him that the land is valuable because of the abundance of timber and fertile soil for a plantation.

The following accounts are from George Washington's diary held at the Library of Congress for the year 1760.

Saturday Apl. 5th. [1760] Planted out 20 young Pine trees at the head of my Cherry Walk.

Recd. my Goods from York.

Hauld the Sein again catchd 2 or 3 White Fish more Herring than Yesterday & a great Number of Cats.

Richie and Ross went away.

Made another Plow the same as my former excepting that it has two Eyes and the other one.

So[uther]ly Wind, but not so fresh as that wch. blew Yesterday. However, it blew up a little Rain abt. Dark with a good deal of Lightning & some Thunder.

Sunday April 6th. [1760] Wind at No. Et. and Cool. About 3 Oclock it began Raining and continued to do so (moderately) for about an hour when it cleard, the Wind shifting So[uther]ly.

I just perceivd the Rye grass Seed wch. I sowl in the Garden to try its goodness was beginning to come up pretty thick; the Clovr., Lucerne, & Barley I discoverd above Ground, on the first Instant.

Majr. Stewart & Doctr. Johnston set out for Winchesr.

Monday April 7th. [1760] Raind till 6 Oclock pretty hard and then cleard--Wind So[uther]ly and Cloudy all day.

In the Evening Colo. Frog came here, and made me an offer of 2400 Acres of Land wch. he has in Culpeper for £400. This Ld. Lyes (according to his acct.) 46 Miles above The Falls of Rappahannock--is well Water'd Timberd & of a Fertile Soil--no Impr[ove]ments on it. I told him that I woud get Captn. Thomas Fitzhugh to give me his Opinion of the Land when he went next to his Quarter not far from it--or I woud take it in my way from Fredk. when I next went up there as it lies he says only 8 Miles from the place where Josh. Nevil livd at the Pignut Ridge. One Captn. Kennelly lives within a Mile of the Land and is well acquainted with it.

People kept Holliday [Easter].

George Washington spent his boyhood years at a farm directly across the Rappahannock River from Fredericksburg, Virginia. The farm was known as the Strother Farm when owned by William Strother III. The property is now known as Ferry Farm because of the ferry across the Rappahannock River to Fredericksburg that was begun when William Strother III owned the farm. Legend tells us it was here that George cut down one of his father's favorite cherry trees and tossed a coin across the Rappahannock River ^[3].

George's father, Augustine purchased the Strother Plantation and its home on the Rappahannock River in 1738. The Rappahannock River, although not as wide as the Potomac River, was still a viable artery for commerce. The town of Fredericksburg was emerging as a thriving port of commerce as well. Augustine used his keen entrepreneurial skills by investing as a part owner of three blast iron furnaces - the closest of which was Accokeek. The Strother plantation (later known as Ferry Farm Plantation) was equally located between all three furnaces. Iron was desperately needed by England in its quest to defeat Spain and France in this new era of imperialism and global conquest. Augustine knew production of pig iron would be very profitable for he and his King ^[5].

After the death of George's Washington's father in 1743, George's mother, Mary Ball [Washington] continued to live at Strother Plantation across from Fredericksburg. She was assisted by her teenage son George for another 4 years. In time George Washington became the owner of Strother Plantation^[5] "... lying about 2 miles below the Falls of the Rappahannock, close on the River Side, with a very handsome Dwelling house, 3 Store houses, several other convenient Out-houses, and a Ferry belonging to it ..."

Two of the boldest massacres committed by Indians were when CORNSTALK, a young Shawnee chief, led a band of about 60 of his tribesmen into Greenbrier County in 1763. The first settlement destroyed was at Muddy Creek, under the guise of friendship. Freaderick [sic] SEA, Joseph CARROL, Salty YOLKUM [Yoakum] and others were killed. This was on June 26. The next day, Cornstalk led his warriors to the CLENDENIN Settlement. Pretending to be friendly, they attended a feast given in honor of the white settlers at Archibald CLENDENIN'S home near Lewisburg. At a given signal, the Indians killed all but one person, more than fifty falling victims to the tomahawk and rifle.

Treaty of Paris is executed between the British and French giving all of North America east of the Mississippi, other than New Orleans, to the British. Eight months after the treaty was signed, King George III issued a proclamation whereby men who had served in military units from 1754 until such units disbanded were entitled to bounty land. The acreage was based on the rank held [7]. John Frogg was issued 200 acres of land for his duties.

"Protection was so inadequate at the time that in March, the Indians made a raid on the home of David Cloyd, killing his son, John, tomahawking Mrs. Cloyd so that she died next day, tearing up the house and carrying off about £200 in gold and silver coins. In telling you about this, Mrs. Floyd, a daughter of Col. Wim. Preston says that Col. Preston had gone to Staunton and that Mrs. Preston immediately sent a young man who lived at her house to notify the garrison of a small fort on Craig's Creek ^[69].

Dear Sir Yr. most Obedt. Servt.
March 25. 1768 Gabriel Jones

Gabriel Jones (1724–1806), an able but hot-tempered lawyer given to outbursts of profanity, had long been prominent in Shenandoah Valley affairs. He studied law in England and returned to Virginia in the 1740s. He was appointed king's attorney for Frederick in much of western Virginia during the next three decades. To his contemporaries he became known as "the Valley Lawyer" (GRIGSBY, 2:16–19; BLUE COAT BOYS, 44–45; BARTON, 19–22). He also served the Shenandoah counties as a burgess at various times, representing Frederick 1748–54, Hampshire 1754–55 and 1758–61, and Augusta 1756–58 and 1760–71. It was due in part to Jones's influence and activity that GW was first elected to the House of Burgesses from Frederick County in 1758 (Jones to GW, 6 July 1758; DLC:GW; GW to Jones, 29 July 1758, PHi). Jones lived in Frederick County near present-day Kernstown, Va., from 1747 to about 1753, when he moved to Augusta County, taking up residence at the place where GW visited him today, about 2½ miles down the South Fork of the Shenandoah from present-day Port Republic. His move may have been prompted by the fact that Thomas Lewis and another neighbor, John Madison [uncle to future president], were ~~both~~ [all three] married to sisters of Jones's wife, Margaret Strother Morton Jones (d. 1822).

After the above letter was written, a second letter to George Washington was written by John Frogg's brother in law, Gabriel Jones:

DEAR SIR

I acknowledged the receipt of yours of 25th. February & recommended it to ye. care of Colo. F. Lewis in hopes it might ~~eat~~ meet you in your way to ye. Assembly in March, but whether it did I have not as yet learned & least a miscarriage should have happened, I write this to inform you of my acquainting Messrs. Lewis & Madison with your proposal of paying what you had advanced for ye. deficiency of ye Land purchased from Mr. Strother Executor, they as well as my self do readily agree to advance our proportionable parts as soon as you let me know what it is --

... I am with much esteem & respect Dr Sir

Sometime in 1770 or 1771, John and Elizabeth Frogg's son, Arthur Frogg dies. According to oral tradition, he dies in a duel in Virginia and both parties were killed. Duels were performed typically after insulting someone's honor, especially someone who was a gentleman and whose pride was paramount. Many times both opponents shot in the air, missing their target on purpose for a matter of respect, both walking away angry but respected. However, when tempers were flaring just after the incident, the challengers each chose their location (secretly away from authorities), their weapon, their separation or pace (usually 20 steps) and aimed to kill. Some preferred to shoot first if they were comfortable with their marksmanship, but some also chose to shoot last because if the opponents shot missed, the other person would have as long as he wanted to aim his gun at the torso of the other, an experience, even if unsuccessful, would remain etched in the mind of the challenger opposer.

After twelve intense days of raining, a wall of water came roaring down the James River valley. As water swept through the streets of the local towns, buildings, boats, animals and vegetation were lost. About one hundred fifty people were killed as rivers and tributaries surpassed flood stage and exceeded heights that were an astounding forty-five feet above normal. "... all the great rivers of this country were swept by inundations never before experienced which changed the face of nature and left traces of violence that will remain for ages."

Probably 1793 (age 83)

John Frogg's age is stated in the District Court Records over a land title dispute from Michael Wallace, Jr. son of the decease Michael Wallace, Sr. who purchased thousands of acres of land with John Frogg. *The exact date of the record is not known because the original record has not been obtained by this author. However, using Ancestry.com's trees and substituting the known (or assumed) birthdates of each of the deponents, it appears that the record was taken closer to 1793 and definitely before the end of 1794 when John Frogg's will was probated.

Doctor Michael Wallace - Sir

I writ you the 29th Jan las advising your of your sister Mrs. Agnes Wallace's Death, the Prestingrange By whom that Letter was conveyed, is probably arrived in Virginia before this Date. I then mentioned to you her being much regretted on account of her virtuous and Good Character during her lifetime... As Mr. John Knox goes out in the Boyle, Captain Dunlop, who will now soon be Ready to Sail for Rappahannock River in Virginia, He will deliver you the Seall along with this Letter, and he Will acquaint you of the State of Public and Commercial affairs, which makes it superfluous for me to Insist theron at any Length, only, that the successes of the British Arms in the West Indies particularly in the acquisition of Martinico, the Rupture with Spain, a very ill judged thing in that Court at a time when the Marine and American, African, and Asian Colonys of France their ally, was and had been for some time past so much distressed by Britain, and the very favourable turn the King of prussia affairs have taken by the death of the late Czarina Elizabeth, who with the Empress Queen had pressed very hard on him for some years. But now since Peter the third's accession to the Throne of Russia that Emperor has not only Shown at the Very first favourably disposed to his prussian Majesty, But has also Very lately Signed a Treaty with him for a Cessation of Hostility's and ordered the Russian troops to withdraw from the Prussian territorys, By which eh will be able either to Repell the Empress Queen with Vigour or force her, with the mediation of Russia to an honourable peace; all those Interesting and Important Events, I say (which scarcely any Era of the British chronicle can parallel) must force France very Soon to a peace, presented to her by Britian; as for Spain it has a great Deall to Lose, and little to get from Britain, whilst the British Flag Commands the Ocean, and has in its power Spain's Richest America, and Assian Settlements, So it must be for their Interst to Sue for Peace Soon (especially as Portugal is now Supported by Britain) altho' they, the Spaniards Deserve to pay well for Peace.

Your friends here are in the same situation as I advised you in mine of the 29th of January only I am sorry to tell you that your youngest sister Miss Betty [Elizabeth] Wallace who had a Very Bad Cough, a considerble time before her Eldest Sister's Death continues Still in a Bad way, and is threatened with Consumption [tuberculosis] She is apprehensive of herself, and her Physicians think that her only Chance of Recovery will be Goats milk, Summer Quarters &c. I am sorry the Late and present Distress of your Nearest friends here, But Divine providence must be Submitted to, all the Human Species in every part of the Globe are Subject to the Like; and a few revolving years will Sweep this Generation of the Stage of time, of which none has a better Chance of an happy future State than your friends, for their unaffected peity & Good Life, whom I have ben mentioning to you. Your acquaintances Messrs John Gray and John Mitchell who Resided lately at, or near Fredericksburg on Rappanhannock, and were taken in their passage home last year, & conveyed to France, were (after being 2 months pretty well used at Donon & having the Liberty of Two Miles Round that town on Parole) exchanged, and after their getting to London, were they staid some short time they came Down here, and having settled their affairs, they are Just now on the Point of Returning to London, where they are to Embark in the may Fleet to Virginia, So youll have a Chance of Seeing them in the fall...

*I am with my Sincere Salutations to yourself, Lady and Family Dr Sir

The Book of Wallace

By Charles Rogers

24 Jul 1717

John Wallace writes his will, probated 30 Apr 1723

John Wallace, second son of William Wallace in Hightrees, was sometime a travelling draper at Bury St Edmunds, and latterly a merchant in the city of Glasgow, where he died in May 1723. By his will, executed on the 30th April 1723, he appointed as his executors Thomas Wallace of Cairnhill, and Michael Wallace, merchant in Glasgow, bequeathing to each the sum of £400. He also made bequests to certain relatives at Closeburn and to the poor of that parish; together with a small amount to be used in providing for the gratuitous distribution, among the parishioners, of copies of the Scriptures and of the Westminster Confession. The residue of his estate he devised in terms of a deed of endowment executed by him on the 24th July 1717, whereby he established a school in the united parishes of Closeburn and Dalgarno, at which the children of these parishes might be gratuitously instructed in english, latin, greek, writing, and arithmetic. In order thereto, he appointed as trustees John Wallace of Elderslie, 1 Thomas Wallace of Cairnhill, and Michael Wallace, merchant in Glasgow, brothers-german; also the minister of Closeburn, and the town-clerk of Glasgow. He provided that the schoolmaster should be "a man of good conversation, of Presbyterian principles, and of good literature, and be graduated at some university or college." The Presbytery of Penpont, he requested to take cognizance of the schoolmaster's personal conduct, and, in case of misdemeanour, to remove him from office. And he instructed his trustees that, " if one of the name of Wallace should on a vacancy be found qualified, he should be preferred to other applicants."

I In his continuation of Crawford's Renfrew- School, was a descendant of the family of shire, edit. 1818, p. 429, Hr George Robertson Elderslie, but he omits to indicate his author- remarks that the founder of Wallace Hall ity.
