

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Prefatory Note

PARTS I. and II. of this work contain fairly complete genealogical records of the families of John Reading and Thomas Howell, pioneers of West New Jersey. The remaining parts are more limited, and cover but a portion of the families therein treated.

I am particularly indebted to Mr. William Rumford Howell, of Philadelphia, for valuable assistance in connection with the Howell family, and to the eminent Rhode Island genealogist, John Osborne Austin, Esq<sup>r</sup>, from whose invaluable collections I have obtained much material relating to the early descendants of Lewis Latham.

The Readings in England

THE precise antiquity of the surname Reading is difficult to determine. The name is supposed, however, to have had its genesis during the period of the Saxon Heptarchy, and to have been derived from the Saxon tribe Radingas, the descendants of Raeda, whose best monument is their most enduring settlement, Reading,* the shiretown of Berks, England; and it is this local nomenclature which furnished, after the Norman conquest, a surname for some of its citizens, who, through the vicissitudes of war, or from choice, migrated elsewhere within the kingdom.

Certain it is that the family Reading, never a numerous one, was of ancient seating in Hertfordshire and in London, and that the surname was variously spelled and indifferently used by the earlier members thereof as de Redynge, Rydinge, Redding, and Reading.

Robert de Reading, monk of Westminster, a chronicler of the events and opinions of the age in which he lived and bore a part, was perhaps the most interesting of the early personalities of the name. He was the author of that portion of the Flores Historiarum † embraced within the years 1307–1325, and contained in Chetham MS. 6712, of which there is a copy in Cotton MS. Cleopatra, A 16. Dr. Luard, in his edition of this work, says that the history of Edward II.'s reign, by Robert de Reading, at Westminster, "must rank as of equal authority with the other chroniclers of that time." Of the writer nothing is positively known but that he died in 1325, and that he was the brother of John de Redynge, of London, whose will ‡ was proved in 1327, and probably the son of William Redynge, high sheriff of London, 1316, who in his will, § 1320, names sons William, John, and Robert.

* This town must have been of considerable importance under the Saxon kings, for William of Malmesbury states that the Danes, towards the close of the ninth century, seized its castle and intrenched themselves therein after their defeat at the battle of Ashdown by Ethelwolf, Earl of Berkshire.

Reading, under the Domesday Survey, had ascribed to it not more than twenty-eight hagæ or houses, which small number is to be accounted for by the town having been attacked by the Danes in 1006, on the invasion of Sweyn, King of Denmark, when the place was almost destroyed.

The Reading Family

Henry Redynge held lands in the parish of St. Martin Wallingford, county Berks, 1 Richard II.

Edmund Redynge, as prior of Bisham, parish of Bray, county Berks, was party to an agreement between that priory and William Bangor, Esq<sup>r</sup>, in 1434, to which is attached a fragment of the ancient seal of the convent, in use before its re-foundation,—a large oval, representing the Virgin seated and holding a globe surmounted by a cross.*

The Redinges of Croydon, county Surrey, were early of note. Richard de Redynge was enfeoffed of the Manor of Whitehorse, Croyden, some ten miles from London, in 1360, by John de Chirbury, marshal to Edward III., who had obtained a grant of free warren. Of this family, though somewhat later, was John Redynge, Esq<sup>r</sup>, treasurer to the household of Prince Henry, afterwards Henry VIII. The following inscription to his memory and that of his wife was formerly to be seen in Croyden Church: "Here Lyeth John Redinge Esq<sup>r</sup>, late Treasurer to Prince Henry, son to Henry VII, and Mary his wife, Mistres to the Prince of Castell; which John deceased the third daye of January, Anno MCCCCCVIII." The tomb bore these arms: Arg. three boars' heads couped sa. (for Redinge) impaling, barry of ten arg. and gu. a lion ramp. crowned or (for Brandon).† He was brother to Hugh Redinge, of Leominster, county Hereford, Esq<sup>r</sup>, and married Mary, the daughter of Sir William Brandon, sister of the standard-bearer slain by Richard III. at Bosworth Field, and aunt of the celebrated Duke of Suffolk. From the will‡ of Sir Thomas Brandon, her brother, dated 11 January, 1509, she would appear to have survived her husband.

James Reading was a benefactor of St. Mary's, Newington, Southwark, London, and with his widow is buried under the communion table of that church. The stone marking the spot contains the arms, Arg. a chevron between three boars' heads couped sa.; also the inscription, "In hope of a glorious Resurrection, lie the Bodies of James Reading, Esq<sup>r</sup> and Mary his Third Wife, whose exemplary Piety towards God, Integrity towards Man, Charity to the Poor and Humility towards All, made them live desired, and die lamented by all that knew them. Lovely and pleasant they were in their Lives, and in their Death, not long divided. He departed this Life the 24 Day of November, 1694, in the 70th Year of his Age, and she on the 9th of August, 1697, in the 62<sup>d</sup> Year of her Age."

The Reading name is thus represented in the early alumni of Oxford University:

Henry Reading (Redyng), chaplain, 18 June, 1505.

John Reading (Redinge), of Hart Hall, in or before 1568; will proved at Oxford, 27 June, 1583.

printed in a broadside.* It was at this juncture that he was reappointed to his prebendship of Canterbury, and also to the rectory of Chartham, near by, where, after a long life of mingled prosperity and affliction, he died 26 October, 1667, and was buried in the chancel of Chartham Church. He left sons John, William, and Thomas. His publications were numerous. Among them may be named: "Job's Hour; a Funeral Sermon at Dover, 10 March, 1623." London, 1624; "Moses and Jethro: or, the Good Magistrate, preached at St. Mary's in Dover, on the Election Day, on Exod., 18, 24." London, 1626; "Brief Instructions concerning the holy Sacrament, for their Use who prepare themselves to receive the Lord's Supper." London, 1645; "An Antidote against Anabaptism, in a Reply to the Plea for Anabaptists." London, 1654; "Sermon in the Cathedral Church of Canterbury concerning Church-music, 2 Kings, 3, 15-16." London, 1663, etc., etc. In manuscript, fit for the press, were several sermons preached before the king; comments on the whole Bible; a Latin MS. in folio, containing a comment, paraphrase, and explication of the whole New Testament, dedication to General Monk, and many others.†

Nathaniel Reading, Esq<sup>r</sup>, probably the M.A. from Merton College, Oxford, was bred at the Inns of Court, London; called to the bar; was a noted counsellor and orator. In his youth he made a tour of Europe, and was in Naples at the insurrection of Masaniello. Indeed, it is said that he was secretary to the usurper and condemned to the scaffold, but that upon the delivery of a fine oration, which much impressed the people, he was pardoned, and immediately returned to England. He was counsel for the Popish lords committed to the Tower of London for complicity in the Popish plot, and for too great zeal on their behalf was likewise imprisoned in the same place. Through the influence of the Earl of Antrim, who was at the head of the Papist party in Ireland, he was liberated, and was later commissioned to collect the fee farm-rents in arrears by the delinquency of George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, from the Level of Hatfield Chase, in the counties of York, Lincoln, and Nottingham. This was the greatest chase of red deer in the possession of the crown, and contained upwards of one hundred and eighty thousand acres, and Mr. Reading's position was far from being a sinecure. For a period of more than forty years, as appears from his memorial to the commissioners of the Court of Sewers, there was a perpetual struggle between himself and the tenants, and he encountered in the discharge of his duties no less than thirty-one set battles, wherein several of his undermen were killed and many wounded. He died, far advanced in years, at Belton, Lincolnshire, in 1712 or 1713. By his wife, Arabella, sister to Sir Winston Churchill, and aunt to John Churchill, the great Duke of Marlborough, he had four sons,—

John, who held a major's commission and is thought to have died in Ireland ; Lionel, who was many years an officer in "the Emperor's army ;" Thomas, a captain of foot under Queen Anne ; and Robert, who was lieutenant-colonel of Clayton's regiment of foot, and behaved well at the battle of Dumblane against the Pretender's forces in 1715, and at the battle of Glenshiel, in Scotland, the year following, where he commanded in chief and took a large number of prisoners.

John Reading, chorister of Lincoln Cathedral, 1675, and later of Winchester College, was an eminent musician and musical composer of his day, and to him is ascribed the well-known college song Dulce Domum. The Latin graces sung before and after meat are also attributed to him. He died in 1692.

John Reading, a relative, possibly son, of the former, was born in 1677, and educated at Chapel Royal under Dr. Blow ; was organist of Dulwich College, which he left for Lincoln Cathedral in 1702, and was subsequently organist of St. Dunstan's-in-the-West, London, and of the united parishes of St. Mary Woolchurch Haw and St. Mary Woolnoth. His hymn, adopted by the Portuguese embassy, and known as the Portuguese Hymn, is still familiar as "Adeste fideles," and is sung at Christmas-tide to the English adaptation, "Oh, come, all ye faithful." He died at London, 2 September, 1764. John Stanley, the famous blind organist, was one of his pupils.

Sir Robert Reading, of Dublin, was created a baronet of Ireland, 27 August, 1675. He was buried at Newark, county Notts, 25 March, 1689, having married Jane, Countess of Mountrath, widow, and daughter of Sir Robert Hannay, baronet of Scotland. Their only daughter, Elizabeth, married James Hamilton, sixth Earl of Abercorn.

John Reading, one of the Crown surveyors for the bishoprics of Canterbury, Winchester, Chichester, Ely, and London, made valuation returns for the "several bishopricks within the Lyne" in 1647, under act of Parliament of the preceding year. And one John Reading, Esq<sup>r</sup>, no doubt the same, purchased, 19 March, 1648, a parcel of the Manor of Marton, bishop lands in York, for the sum of £185 17s. 4d.

The English Parliament returns, prior to the eighteenth century, give the following Readings as members of the Lower House :

Thomas de Reding, Leominster Borough, county Hereford, 1295.

ARMORIAL BEARINGS.

That the Readings of the several counties of England, wherein the name is found, sprang from a common origin, would seem to be manifest from the similarity of their coat-armor, which is thus blazoned in Burke, Papworth, and other heraldic authorities :

Reding, Reeding, Reading, of county Hereford, and London ; confirmed by Camden, Clarendieux, November, 1609. Ar. a pheon gu. between three boars' heads erased sa.

Reading. Ar. three boars' heads coupé sa.

Reding, Reading, of county Kent. Ar. three boars' heads coupé sa. Crest, a gillyflower stalked and leaved ppr.

Reading, of Hereford. Ar. three boars' heads erased sa. Crest, a griffin sejant holding in the dexter paw a garland of laurel all ppr.

Reading, of London, 1697. Ar. a chevron between three boars' heads erased sa. Crest, a griffin's head erased or.

Reading, of Lansdown-Place, Brighton. Ar. on a chevron between three boars' heads erased sa., a trefoil slipped of the field. Crest, on a mount vert a hind's head coupé ppr., gorged with a collar nebulée sa. and holding in the mouth a branch of cinquefoils vert. Motto, Dieu défend le droit.

The science of heraldry assumed no tangibility until the end of the twelfth century, but from that period the devices employed therein were endless in variety, "from the highest of things celestial to the lowest of things terrestrial," and, while they embodied the ideal character of all symbols, were in themselves simple and expressive. Indeed, the more impressive their simplicity the greater the supposed antiquity of the coat-armor.

It will be seen that the characteristic charge or device of the above armorial matriculations was that of the three boars' heads. This was also the distinctive charge used by John Reading, a barrister of the Inner Temple, London, who in 1629 was co-trustee and executor, with the ever-memorable John Hampden, John Winthrop, and Thomas Dudley, of the will of Isaac Johnson, the wealthiest patentee of Massachusetts Colony, and in 1630 and 1631 was the adviser of John Winthrop, governor of that colony, in some matters at law in England. The seal of this John Reading, preserved among the "Winthrop Papers," is practically identical with that used by Colonel John Reading, founder of the Reading family in New Jersey, and suggests a near relationship. Fac-similes of the two seals are here given :

John Reading and his Descendants

COLONEL JOHN READING, the founder of the New Jersey family of this surname, was without doubt of gentle birth, and enjoyed in his youth the advantages of a good education. It is thought that he was of London, England, or that vicinity, where a family of the name had been seated from at least the thirteenth century. The date of his emigration is not known, but was probably some time in 1684, in which year he is found in Gloucester county, New Jersey, as appears from the record of a suit in the court of that county at the March term, 1687, between John Reading and one John Itholl, concerning the title to certain lands, wherein Daniel Reading, a witness, testified that John Reading surveyed the land in question as early as 1684.*

Some years before Colonel Reading came to West New Jersey he was interested in the movement to promote the settlement of the province, and in 1677 made his first purchase of lands there, consisting of one-sixth of a propriety.† The deeds for the same are not of record, but the fact is shown in later conveyances, by one of which, dated 1 November, 1687, John Reading conveyed unto Matthew Medcalf two hundred and fifty acres of land, a portion of "his second taking up of a one-sixth of a propriety in the said province, by virtue of Indentures of lease and release, bearing date 28th and 29th August, 1677, and made between Edward Byllynge of Westminster in the Kingdom of Great Britain, the trustees of the one party, and the said John Reading and partners of the other party;"‡ and practically the same recital is found in a deed of 1 March, 1697, by which Reading conveyed unto Samuel Thorn, of Long Island, one thousand acres of said propriety interest.§

It was intended at first by the West Jersey proprietors to divide the province

* The relationship of Daniel Reading to John Reading is unknown. It is believed that they emigrated together, and that possibly Daniel was the father of John. If not, he was no doubt a brother. Daniel Reading was one of the first justices of Gloucester county, and high sheriff from 1689 until 1691, but would appear to have left the province about the latter date. The probate records of New Jersey give no clue as to his decease, and it is conjectured that he returned to Europe and died there.

† A propriety was one equal undivided hundredth part of the province.

into ten parts, called tenths, fronting on the Delaware river; and in pursuance of such scheme, in 1677 a company was formed in London, known as the London Company, to settle one of the tenths. Colonel Reading may have been a member of this company. If so, the fact gives significance to the words "John Reading and partners" used in the above deeds. If not of that company, the reasons for the suggestion that London was his birthplace are lessened, particularly as at the time the London company was formed a similar movement was on foot in county Dublin, Ireland, where a prominent branch of the Reading family then resided, and from whence, it is quite possible, John Reading emigrated to New Jersey, which latter suggestion is somewhat emphasized in the fact that the tenth in which he settled was known as the "Irish" tenth.

On his arrival in the province he located at what is now Gloucester City, and here resided many years. In 1685, the year after his arrival, he was elected a member of the assembly, and attended its sessions at Burlington.

In 1682 West New Jersey was divided into two judicial districts or counties, one of which had its seat at Burlington, and the other at Salem. A third district was formed in 1686, when the proprietors, freeholders, and inhabitants generally of the third and fourth tenths, or the territory between the Pensauken and Oldman's creeks, met at Arwames (Gloucester City) and organized a jurisdiction or county, by the adoption of what may be termed a county constitution. This was the origin of Old Gloucester, the only county in New Jersey that derived its existence from the direct action of its own people. That Mr. Reading was an actor in this movement is assumed from his service in the assembly of the previous year and his large landed interests within the jurisdiction. On the organization of the county, Gloucester Town,* now Gloucester City, was made the county seat. The town was surveyed and laid out in lots. Mr. Reading was one of the surveyors, and of the eighty-eight lots into which the town was divided he became the owner of a majority.

In 1688 he was chosen clerk of the county, the most important office within the gift of the people, the duties being the transcribing and keeping the records of the courts and the recording the probate of wills and land conveyances. The early county clerks were men of superior education, and John Reading was no doubt selected on account of the pre-eminent qualifications which he was known to possess for the position. He held the office until 1702, being annually re-elected, which fact is evidence to the faithfulness with which he performed the duties of his trust, as well as the esteem in which he was held by his constituency.

* Gabriel Thomas, in his History of New Jersey, written in 1698, says of Gloucester, "There is Gloucester Town, which is a fine and pleasant place being well stored with summer fruits, such as cherries, mulberries and strawberries; whither the young people come from Philadelphia, in the wherry boats, to eat strawberries and cream, within sight of which City, it is sweetly located, being three miles distant from thence." Oldmixon, writing in 1708, says, "Gloucester is a good town and gave name to a county. It contains one-hundred houses and the country about is very pleasant."

Colonel John Reading

In 1693 he was granted the ferry franchise over Gloucester river, and on the Delaware from Gloucester to Wickaco, Philadelphia. The record of the grant is still preserved, and is of interest, in that it shows how the early fathers guarded public interests and placed a limit on the charges of public carriers. The following is from the court records, under date 1 June, 1693 :

“The Grand Jury consenteth to and presenteth the proposals of John Reading, for keeping a ferry over Gloucester River, and from Gloucester to Wickaco, at ye prices following. That is to say for a single man and horse two shillings and six pence ; and four shillings per head for more than one horse or cow, and one shilling and six pence for a single man, and one shilling per head where more than one from Gloucester to Wickaco, and five pence per head for horses, cows, etc., and two pence per head for man without horses or cattle, over Gloucester River. To all which ye Bench Consents.” (History of Gloucester, Salem, and Cumberland Counties, page 109.)

Colonel Reading was one of the largest landed proprietors in the province. Mention has been made of his purchase, in 1677, of one-sixth of a propriety, or one-sixth of one equal one-hundredth part of the province ; also of his extensive holdings of town-lots in Gloucester. Of his further acquisitions these may be noted : one-eighth of a propriety, purchased of Maurice Trent in January, 1695-6 ;* fifteen hundred acres, purchased the following month of James Read ; † the propriety of Andrew Robeson (one-hundredth part of the province), purchased in September of the same year ; ‡ four thousand acres, purchased in February, 1700-1, of Sarah Welch and Susanna Turner ; § and one-eighth of a propriety, conveyed to him by William Biles in 1704. §

From the first settlement of West New Jersey until 1681 the public affairs of the province were conducted by commissioners acting under appointment of the proprietors. During the latter year a complete colonial government was established, and a legislative assembly chosen, which body assumed the power to manage the landed interests of the proprietors. This continued until 1687, when the assembly declined further superintendence of the interests especially belonging to the proprietors, and signified to them that they might choose a convenient number from among themselves to transact the business of the proprietors ; whereupon they found it expedient to enter into an agreement, in part as follows :

“WHEREAS by experience it hath been found, that the concerns particularly relating to the proprietors of the province of West New-Jersey, by reason of the great difficulty of getting them together, upon several emergent occasions, have been greatly detrimental not only to the carrying on and progress of the same necessary and public concerns, but also very chargeable and burthen-some to the said proprietors, especially those of them who live at a great distance; and also complained of by the members of the general assembly, as taking up a great part of their time, in an affair particularly relating to the proprietors; and finding that the affair touching the public concerns of the said proprietors, may be carried on with far less charge and burthen to the whole, and with more effect by such numbers of persons, as by the proprietors shall be esteemed fit and qualified on their behalf, to transact and agitate their public affairs as proprietors: We therefore, underwritten proprietors of the province aforesaid, being met together at Burlington, in the same province, this fourteenth day of the twelfth month, anno 1687, by a general appointment of the same proprietors; do therefore unanimously agree together as followeth, (viz.) That eleven proprietors within the said province, shall be yearly and every year, nominated, elected and chosen, by and amongst the said proprietors, to be commissioners and trustees at a day certain; six whereof in the county of Burlington, and five within the county of Gloucester, in the province aforesaid; who shall be, and are empowered to act and plead in all such affairs, as do, and shall generally concern the body of the said proprietors of the same province, as fully and effectually as if the whole body of the same proprietors were together. . . .'*

On this agreement, with some variations afterwards, is founded the present constitution of the Council of Proprietors of West Jersey, which body has had continuous existence since the agreement was made, annual elections having taken place at Burlington for the choice of its members. John Reading is named in the agreement as one of the first councillors, then styled "commissioners and trustees." The other members chosen were: Samuel Jennings, Thomas Olive, William Biddle, Elias Farre, Mahlon Stacy, Francis Davenport, Andrew Robeson, William Royden, William Cooper, and John Wills, all of whom were men of prominence. Samuel Jennings had been governor of the province, speaker of the assembly, and member of the governor's council; Thomas Olive was at the head of the commissioners who governed affairs from 1677 until the more stable government was formed in 1681, when he became speaker of the assembly, and in 1684 and 1685 the governor; William Biddle, the emigrant ancestor of the family of that name in Philadelphia, had served in the assembly, the governor's council, and as justice of the courts of Burlington county; Elias Farre had been of the governor's council and a member of the assembly; Mahlon Stacy had served in both these capacities, as also did Francis Davenport and Andrew Robeson; William Cooper had served four years in the assembly, and William Royden and John Wills were large and influential land-owners. All of these had preceded Colonel Reading to the province, and his selection to a seat in the council was a compliment to him, as well as evidence that he was regarded by his co-proprietors as a man of high character and possessed of the ability required for administrative functions. That he met the best expectations of the proprietors is shown by his annual re-election to the council until his decease.

At a meeting of the council, held the following year, Colonel Reading was chosen a commissioner "to examine all deeds, take a minute of the same, and issue warrants to the surveyor general, for the surveying and taking up of lands; keeping a record of the same," for the inhabitants of Gloucester County, "or to any others as occasion may require." While holding this position he was also the recorder of the county, and as such transcribed on the records a number of deeds executed by himself, and in many instances attached his own name thereto in the triple capacity of grantor, commissioner, and recorder; an example of which is shown on the opposite page.

John Reading was elected a member of the assembly of 1697, and attended its sittings at Burlington. Andrew Hamilton, the governor of the province, was also in attendance, and officially communicated to that body the fact of the "conspiracy" of the previous year to assassinate King William and restore the throne to King James. Governor Hamilton urged the assembly to follow the example of parliament and formally pledge themselves to uphold the authority of the King against all his enemies. Those members not Quakers heartily responded and signed the agreement (practically identical with that signed by the members of parliament in February, 1696),* which follows:

"WHEREAS there has been a horrid and detestable Conspiracy formed and carried on by Papists, and other wicked & Traitorous Persons, for assassinating his Majesty's Royall Person in order to Encourage an Invation from France on England, to subvert our Religion, Laws and Liberty; We whose names are hereunto Subscribed, do heartily, sincerely and solemnly profess, Testify and Declare, that his present Majesty King William [is] Rightfull and Lawfull King of the Realms of England, Scotland and Ireland, and that neither the late King James, nor the pretended Prince of Wales, nor any other Person hath any Right whatsoever to the same; And we do mutually promise and Engage to Stand by and assist each other to the utmost of our Power in the Support and defence of his Majesty's most Sacred Person and Government against the late King James, and all his Adherents, and in case his Majesty come to any violent or untimely death (which God forbid), We do hereby further freely and unanimously oblige ourselves to unite, associate & Stand by each other in revenging the Same upon his Enemys & Their Adherents, and in Supporting and defending the Succession of The Crown, according to an Act made in the 1st year of the Reign of King William

* Lord Macaulay in his history, writing of the discovery of the plot to assassinate the King, and the action of parliament thereon, says, "The King went in state to the House of Lords, sent for the Commons, and from the throne told the Parliament that, but for the protection of a gracious Providence, he should at that moment have been a corpse, and the Kingdom would have been invaded by a French army. . . . The Houses instantly voted a joint address, in which they thankfully acknowledged the divine goodness which had preserved him to his people, and implored him to take more than ordinary care of his person. . . . Sir Rowland Gwyn, an honest country gentleman, made a motion of which he did not at all foresee the important consequences. He proposed that the members should enter into an association for the defence of their Sovereign and their country. . . . An instrument was immediately drawn up, by which the representatives of the people, each for himself, solemnly recognized William as rightful and lawful King, and bound themselves to stand by him and by each other against James and James's adherents. Lastly they voted that, if his Majesty's life should be shortened by violence, they would avenge him signally on his murderers, and would, with one heart, strenuously support the order of succession settled by the Bill of Rights. It was ordered that the House should be called over the next morning. The attendance was consequently great: the Association, engrossed on parchment, was on the table; and the members went up, county by county, to sign their names."

The Quakers responded in milder form. Their principles forbade them to pledge themselves “to unite, associate and stand by each other in revenging” the enemies of the king should he meet a violent death at their hands, and they therefore united in a paper declaring their loyalty to the king, and their abhorrence at his attempted assassination.†

This division of the house of assembly into Quakers and non-Quakers is of special interest in connection with John Reading. It has been assumed by some writers and by many of his descendants that he was a Friend, which assumption is without warrant, as is clearly shown in his alignment with the non-Quakers. If further evidence were needed to justify this conclusion, it is found in the fact that on several occasions he held military commissions.

He was in 1701 again chosen to the Assembly, when he served as clerk of that body.

In 1702 the proprietors of East and West New Jersey surrendered to the Crown their claim to the right of government, whereby the two provinces became united in one, under the style of New Jersey. Shortly thereafter Queen Anne appointed her cousin, Edward, Lord Viscount Cornbury, “Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over the aforesaid country of Nova Cæsarea, or New Jersey.” The composition of the council to serve under the new régime now became the subject of deep interest with the political factions of the province, and numerous recommendations

Five only of those named by the Earl of Nottingham were preferred, John Reading being of the unsuccessful number, although the honor of a seat in the council came to him later. It will be noticed that he is styled “Capt” in the foregoing list. This title he acquired as early as 1695, when he was in command of a militia company in Gloucester county.†

In the year 1703 the council of proprietors concluded to increase their landed possessions, and appointed John Reading, John Wills, and William Biddle, Jr., their agents to treat with the Indians above Trenton Falls for the purchase of lands. In pursuance thereof, the commissioners named negotiated with the chiefs Himhammoe and Caponnochon, and purchased from the former a tract of land “adjoining to the division line, and lying on both sides of the Raritan River,” and from the latter chief a tract "lying between the purchase made by Adlord Bourde, and the bounds of the land belonging to Himhammoe fronting upon Delaware river," amounting in all to about one hundred and fifty thousand acres.*

The council of proprietors later fell under the displeasure of Lord Cornbury, partly, it would seem, on account of the purchases made from the Indians, which displeasure manifested itself in 1706 by the following summons :

"Edward Viscount Cornbury Captain Generall & Gouvernor in Chiefe in and ouer the Prouince of New Jersey New York and all the Territories and Tracts of Land Depending thereon in America & Vice Admirall of ye same &c

The council duly responded to the summons, and made formal answer to the matters inquired of.

Some time between the years 1704 and 1709, Colonel Reading removed from Gloucester county to what was then the northern part of Burlington county, but which later became Amwell township, Hunterdon county. His first purchase of lands there was in 1704. It is surmised that he was attracted to the locality during the previous year, while traversing its vales and hills in his negotiations with the Indians on behalf of the council of proprietors. He found the natural beauty of the country, and its suitability for agricultural purposes, to exceed that of Gloucester, and was doubtless thus induced to acquire an estate there, and remove thither. The first accurate knowledge of his removal is derived from a deed dated 12 November, 1709, in which he styles himself of "Mount Amwell in the county of Burlington." Mount Amwell would seem to have been the name of his estate, from which doubtless came the name Amwell township.

His estate lay on the Delaware river, covering what is now the towns of Stockton and Prallsville, and his residence was at Stockton, where he established a landing, known as "John Reading's landing," as shown by the following minute of a petition to the governor and council of Pennsylvania under date of 27 January, 1710-11 :

The road thus projected was later constructed, and is known as the “Old York Road.” Crossing the Delaware at Reading's Landing, it was laid out to Newark, New Jersey, on the bed of the old Indian path, and was the early highway to New York City.

In 1709 Robert Hunter succeeded Lord Cornbury as governor of the province. Governor Hunter was disposed to adopt some measures called for by the public generally, which met the opposition of the majority of his council, particularly William Pinhorn, Daniel Cox, Peter Somnams, and William Hall, and so troublesome did these members become that the governor, in a letter of 7 May, 1711, complained to the Lords of Trade and Plantations, and asked that they be removed, and submitted the names of persons to take their places, among which was that of John Reading, styled by the governor, “Proprietor and Clerk to the Councill of Proprietors.” † The change was opposed by the governor's enemies, and remonstrances were made against those recommended for appointment. In January following, Governor Hunter renewed his recommendations, and, in the mean time, commissioned Colonel Reading one of the judges of the supreme court of the province.‡ The “London Society of the Proprietors of New Jersey” met in London, May, 1712, to consider the change of councillors. They agreed to support Governor Hunter's recommendations, and appointed the president of their body to wait upon the Lords of Trade to inform them that the nominees of the governor were "men of substance and probity," and to urge their appointment.* Among those who opposed this effort of the governor was the Rev. Jacob Henderson, a missionary of the Church of England, stationed at Dover, Kent county, Delaware. Henderson bitterly assailed the proposed nominees, and so unjust were his charges against these men that the ministers of the Church of England in New Jersey, as well as those in New York, summoned Henderson to make answer to the charges. This action on the part of the clergy doubtless led the Lords of Trade to submit the matter of the appointment of the governor's nominees to the Bishop of London, in the following letter :

"TO THE RT. REVEREND FATHER IN GOD HENRY LORD BISHOP OF LONDON.

"MY LORD

The Lord Bishop's reply was favorable, whereupon the Lords of Trade presented Governor Hunter's recommendations, with their endorsement of the same, to Queen Anne.‡ For unknown reasons, her Majesty held the matter under advisement until April, 1713, when she confirmed the nominations.§ Colonel Reading entered on his duties as one of the council, 5 December, 1713, in the records of which body, of that date, is this minute :

"Her Majestys Letter of the seaventh of May 1713 Constituteing John Reading Esq' to be of the Councill for this province being read and the said John Reading Esq' haveing taken the Oaths &c he then tooke his place accordingly." ||

for the organization of Hunterdon county, and while it is not known who offered the same, it is believed that it was the work of Colonel Reading, and that he is entitled to be called the father of the county. The minutes of the council, under date of February, 1713-14, contain this entry :

“John Reading Esq<sup>r</sup> Reported from the Comitty to whome the bill Entituled An Act for erecting the upper parts of the Western division of New Jersey into a County [had been referred] that the Comitty had Gone through the said bill and made Severall amendments there unto [and] he was directed to Report to this board when they will please to Receive the Same

“Ordered that the Request [Report] be made Immediately

“And the Amendments being Read were agreed to by this board And the bill soe amended Read the third time & the Question being put whether the bill soe amended doe pass

“It past in the afirmative

“Ordered that John Reading Esq<sup>r</sup> doe Carie the bill with the Amendments to the house of Representatives for their Concurrence”

On the 8th day of the following month the Legislature enacted a militia law.* Ten days later, 18 March, 1713-14, Governor Hunter commissioned John Reading “Captain for the militia company of Amwell & the upper part of Hopewell, Hunterdon county,” † and on 23 December, 1715, ‡ he was promoted to a lieutenant-colonelcy “in the Regiment commanded by John Hamilton Esq<sup>r</sup>,” which latter appointment Colonel Reading held at his decease.

Colonel Reading's life, always active and honorable, came to a close, at his seat in Hunterdon county, in October, 1717. It is said that he was buried in the grounds of Buckingham Meeting, Bucks county, Pennsylvania. If so, it was doubtless this fact that suggested the idea that he was a Quaker. It must be remembered, however, that it was not uncommon then, and is not now, to bury others than Quakers in the burying-grounds of Friends. His age at his death is uncertain, although it is assumed that he was over sixty-one years, as he purchased lands in 1677, and must therefore have attained his majority before that time.

Letters of administration on his estate were granted to his son, John Reading, 2 November, 1717, and in December following, an inventory of the personal estate was filed, a fac-simile of which, taken from the probate records in the office of the Secretary of State of New Jersey, is herewith interleaved. The “tankard” specified in the inventory was of silver, and bore the Reading arms. It was probably an heirloom, and was certainly brought to this country by Colonel Reading. Upon his decease it became the property of his son John, who, in his will, bequeathed it to his grandson, John Reading. The latter, in his will, dated 20 October, 1815, thus disposed of it: “It is my wish, that the silver tankard given me by my grandfather Reading, and the family coat of arms, which I have, should not go out of the family.

I therefore give and bequeath them to my eldest son John Reading, during his life, and after his death to my son Joseph, and if he not be living at the time of my son John's death, then to my eldest son and eldest male descendants forever." The son John here mentioned died without issue, and the tankard became the property of Joseph, who gave the same to his son, Judge James Newell Reading, upon whose death it passed into the possession of his son, Henry Southard Reading, who now holds it, and from whom the accompanying portrait was obtained.

According to family records, Colonel Reading's wife was Elizabeth : her maiden name, however, and the dates of her birth, marriage, and death, have not been ascertained. The marriage probably occurred before their emigration.

Children of Colonel John and Elizabeth Reading :

2. JOHN READING, born in Gloucester, New Jersey, 6 June, 1686 ; died in Hunterdon county 5 November, 1767 ; married Mary Ryerson.
3. ELSIE READING ; married Captain Daniel Howell.

Governor John Reading

GOVERNOR JOHN READING<sup>2</sup> (Colonel John Reading<sup>1</sup>) was born at Gloucester, in Gloucester (now Camden) county, New Jersey, 6 June, 1686. The father, having enjoyed the advantages of a liberal education, desired the same for his children, John and Elsie, and, with this object in view, he sent them with their mother to England, where they remained several years. The mental training of the son would appear to have been of a superior character, from the facts that he was selected for a seat in the governor's council when but thirty-two years of age, and that he rose to greater distinction than did any other of the native-born sons of the early New Jersey colonists.

But little is known of the younger Reading's life until the decease of his father. Being an only son, he probably resided with or near the father, and assisted him in his work as surveyor and in the management of his extensive landed interest. He inherited from the latter a large patrimony, especially in lands, which, with the estate he had previously acquired in his own right, made him by far the wealthiest man in Hunterdon county.

On the 3d of November, 1718, a little more than a year after his father's decease, he was nominated by Governor Hunter to a seat in the provincial council, which selection was highly complimentary not only to the son, in view of his youth, but also to the memory of the father. Had Colonel Reading not served in his councillorship with full acceptance to the governor, it is unlikely that the son would have been named for such position. This alone, however, would not account for the selection. Governor Hunter was doubtless frequently a guest at the manorial home of Colonel Reading, and on such as well as on other occasions met the son and found him of large intelligence and possessed of the elements of character that had made his father one of the most valued of the governor's advisers. These qualifications, with the fact that Mr. Reading's large wealth gave him importance in the colony and a personal interest in the proper management of public affairs, may be regarded as the influences which led the governor to the appointment.

While the nomination was pending before the king, Mr. Reading was further honored by the governor in being named one of the commissioners to run the north boundary line between New Jersey and New York, and also one of the commissioners to run the lines between East and West New Jersey. The former appointment was made 28 March, 1719, and the work was completed 25 July, same year.* The latter appointment was made about the same time, and in connection therewith the council of proprietors of West New Jersey, at a meeting 12 August, 1720, by unanimous vote selected Mr. Reading as surveyor to assist James Alexander, surveyor-general of the province, "in running the said division line throughout the whole work." * These appointments furnish ample evidence of Mr. Reading's standing as a surveyor.

In July, 1719, Governor Hunter made a voyage to England, and on his departure delivered the public seals and papers into the hands of Honorable Lewis Morris, the senior councillor, who then became acting governor. Governor Hunter never returned, but while in England he was active in furthering the appointment of a new governor, and in securing the confirmation of his nominees to the council, both of which were accomplished 24 June, 1720, when his Majesty commissioned William Burnet governor, and appointed a council, which included the name of John Reading. Governor Burnet arrived in the province and began his administration 22 September, 1720. For unknown reasons, Mr. Reading seems not to have been eager to enter on his councillorship. Finally, however, he responded to the call made upon him, and on 25 March, 1721, attended the governor, and was sworn into office, which action is thus recorded on the minutes of the council :

" John Reading who is appointed in his Majesties Commission to the Governour to be one of his Majesties Councill appeared and took the Oaths appointed by his Majesties Commission and Subscribed the test and abjuration.

" The Oath of Councillor was Given to him as follows

" You shall swear to the uttermost part of your Cunning, witt will & power you Shall be true and faithful to the Kings Majestie our most dear and Sovereign lord and to his highness heirs and Successors Kings and Queens of England according to the Limitation of the Statute made to that purpose for the Establishment of the Succession of the Crown Imperiall of the Realm of Great Britain you Shall not know nor hear anything that may in anyways be prejudicial to his Majesty or to his heirs and Successors in form afores'd or to the Common wealths peace or Quiet of his Majesty's Realm or this province but you Shall with all dilligence reveall and disclose the Same to his Majesty or to such person or persons of his highness councill as you think may and will honestly convey and bring it to his majesties Knowledge you Shall Serve his majesty truely and faithfully in the room and place of his Highness Council for this province, you shall Keep close and Secret all such matters as shall be treated, disputed and resolved off in Council without disclosing the same or any part thereof to any but to such as Shall be of the Council. uttermost of your power witt and Cunning, So help you God—Then John Reading took his place at this Board."*

The office thus entered upon, Mr. Reading retained until 1758, when he resigned. On two occasions during the period, as president of the council, he became acting governor and commander-in-chief of the province, of which mention is hereinafter made. The duties of a councillor were twofold,—one as adviser to the governor in matters of administration, and the other as a member of the council when, as the upper branch of the legislature, it sat with the assembly in legislative sessions.

On 10 February, 1727, Mr. Reading was commissioned "Collonel of ye Military Regiment of ffoot for ye county of Hunterdon, whereof Daniel Cox, Esq<sup>r</sup> was Collonel,"† and on the same day he was appointed president judge of the court of common pleas of that county.‡ On 14 August, same year, he was commissioned surrogate for Hunterdon and Somerset counties,§ and 6 November, 1728, was appointed by the Crown one of the judges "to try pirates." In addition to these offices, he held, throughout the time of his councillorship, that of one of his Majesty's justices of the peace, to which position all the councillors were from time to time appointed; and, 18 April, 1740, he was appointed one of the officers for Hunterdon county to enlist men in the king's service in the war then waging against Spain, and in that year was also appointed by the king one of the commissioners to define the boundary between the colonies of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, which latter appointment bears added testimony to his high repute as surveyor. He was also for some years one of the agents for the family of William Penn in managing their landed interests in New Jersey. The following is an advertisement in the York Gazette of January 14, 1735 :

“Sundry Tracts of valuable Land lying in the Eastern and Western Division of New-Jersey, belonging to the honourable Proprietaries of Pennsylvania, are to be Sold viz.

On the decease of Lewis Morris, governor of the province, 21 May, 1746, the administration fell to Colonel John Hamilton, who remained at the head of the government until his decease, 17 June, 1747. Mr. Reading then became president of the council, and, as such, succeeded Colonel Hamilton as acting governor and commander-in-chief, being the first native-born Jerseyman to govern the province. On taking command he forwarded this letter to the Lords of Trade and Plantations :

President Reading's administration was a brief one. On the 10th of August following, he was succeeded by Jonathan Belcher, of Massachusetts, who had received the king's appointment to the governorship in the previous February. Governor Belcher was then in England, but, sailing for America, arrived in New York on 8 August, and two days later took the oath of office and assumed the government, as appears from this minute of the council :

Governor Belcher continued at the head of the government until his decease, 31 August, 1757. President Reading was still the senior member of the council, and the administration, of right, devolved upon him. His age and infirmities, however, were such that he at first declined to act, but he finally consented, though with the utmost reluctance, to assume the duties. In the mean time, Robert Hunter Morris, the councillor second in rank, sent the following letter to the Earl of Loudoun, commander of his Majesty's forces in North America :

“ ELIZA' TOWN Sepr 7th 1757

“ TO THE EARL OF LOUDOUN

“ MY LORD,

“ I had the Honour to write to Your Lordship on the 29th Ultimo soon after which Mr. Belcher died, & I was in Hopes, as the Government devolved upon Mr. Reading, that he wou'd have taken upon him the Administration, and informed Your Lordship of that Matter.

“ By His Majesty's Commission under the Great Seal to the Late Governor in Case of His Death the Powers of Government devolve upon the Eldest Councillor, if there be no Lieut. Governor on the Spot, & the Council have in the Strongest Manner, pressed Mr. Reading (who is first upon the List of Councillors for this Province) to take the Administration upon him ; but he persists in his refusal, which will throw the Province into very great Confusion, as no Act of Government can be done, nor can the other Branches of the Legislature proceed without him.

“ His Majesty's Council have requested me to inform Your Lordship of these Matters, & I have the Honour to be, My Lord,

About the time this letter was written, President Reading concluded to qualify, and, being unable to leave home, summoned the council to meet him there, that he might take the oath of office. Three members of the council responded, when, on 9 September, the oath was administered and the governorship entered upon, as is shown in this abstract from the council minutes :

“The Honourable John Reading Esq. upon whom the Government of his Majestys Colony of New Jersey had devolved, by the Death of his late Excellency Governor Belcher, Came into Council and Took the Oaths required by the Law, and also the Oath for the Due Execution of his Office, and the Impartial Administration of Justice and the observance of the Laws of trade. After which his Majestys Royal Commission and Instructions to the Late Governor, together with the great Seal of the Colony and the Seal of the prerogative Court were delivered to him.

“His Honour by advice of Council issued a Proclamation for continuing all officers Civil and Military in their respective offices till further order.

“After which his Honour directed the Secretary to inform the Speaker and House of Assembly on his return to Elizabeth Town, that it was his pleasure that the House should adjourn themselves for ten days, then to meet at Burlington and that they should thereafter be adjourned for ten days at a time till his Majestys service should require their meeting.”*

Upon assuming office, President Reading forwarded the following letter to the Honorable Thomas Pownall, the Royal Governor of Massachusetts, whose commission also named him Lieutenant-Governor of New Jersey, and empowered him to act as such in the event of a vacancy in the governorship :

“ Sepr 10th. 1757

“TO HIS EXCELL<sup>y</sup> GOVERNOUR POWNALL
“MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY

“Upon the late Governor Belcher's Death, I have taken upon myself the Administration of the Government of the Province of New Jersey, as eldest Councillor residing and Qualified thereto ; tho' at the same Time, have heard, that your Excellency has a Commission of Lieutenancy for the said Province ; But as Your Excellency did not reside and the Assembly was then sitting, and cou'd not rise without an Adjournment from a Person qualified to the Administration of the Government, I have adjourned them for ten Days to Burlington, and design to continue them by Short Adjournment to a Longer Time, if nothing of Emergency happens, This I thought was of absolute necessity to be done, and that Anarchy and Confusion might be thereby prevented.

“I hope Your Excellency will take into Your Consideration, that as I am an aged and infirm Person, and not fit to bear the Weight or Burthen of Government, it wou'd be extreamly grateful to me, that I might be superseded and relieved by an appointment of some Person in my Stead, immediately to be made, (if consistent with Your Excellency's Commission,) for I have been for some Time past, and now am, (in Order to cure an old Distemper) under the care and Direction of a Doctor, in Preparation to undergo a Course of Physick, which is Directly to be enter'd into.

“I am, Sir, with strictest Regards, Your Excellency's most obedt. humble Servt.

“JNO READING.” †

A few days later Governor Pownall arrived in the province, and on 22 September, 1757, took the oath of office and assumed command. Upon his arrival he met with some criticism of President Reading's delay to qualify, and, calling upon him, acquainted him with this fact. From what followed that evening, it is apparent that Governor Pownall was fully satisfied with President Reading's action, but thought it wise to have his reasons for the delay placed upon record, and so arranged with him the correspondence which follows :

on the day following his arrival in the province, he returned to Massachusetts, leaving the government to President Reading, all which is evidenced by the minutes of the council of that day and the letter of Governor Pownall, both of which are here given :

“ His Honour the Lieutenant Governor came into Council—and desired the board to inform him whether they knew of any extraordinary affair in this Colony which made his longer continuance among them necessary.

“ They acquainted him that they knew of nothing of an unusual nature at present subsisting in this Colony.

“ After which he acquainted the Board that as his Majesty's service requires his presence in his Government of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, he should immediately begin his journey thither, and leave the administration of the Government in the hands of the Honourable John Reading, Esq. on whom it regularly devolved as being the eldest Councillor named in his Majesty's royal instructions to the late Governor Belcher.”

“ The Lieutenant Governor retired and returning into Council informed the Board that he had been to take his leave of Mr. Reading who was confined to his chamber by indisposition of body and that he had delivered to him his Majesty's Royal Commission and instructions to the late Governor Belcher, together with the publick Seals of the Colony.” *

“ SIR,

“ Being appointed by His Majesty's Commission to me as Lieutenant Governor of His Province of New Jersey to administer (in case of the Death of the Governor in Chief) the Powers contained in His Majesty's Commission & Instructions to His Governor ; and knowing how essential to the Peace & Property, and consequently the Liberties of the Subject, a due Execution of the Powers of Government as granted by the Crown to this Province is, I did immediately repair to this Province upon my first hearing of the Death of Governor Belcher. The Government must at all Times upon my Absence from the Province devolve upon the Eldest Councillor. I was therefore extremely happy upon my Arrival to find it in the Hands of a Gentleman so worthy as Yourself. I must acquaint You that I have given my Consent to the Resolve of the two Houses of Legislature for Raising One Company of one Hundred Rangers as asked by Lord Loudoun for His Majesty's Service and I must desire you will directly Issue out the Commissions and Give Orders for the raising the Men forthwith. The Necessity of His Majesty's Service in my Government of the Massachusetts Bay, requires my Immediate Return to that Province. the Administration here by His Majesty's Commands devolves on you upon my Departure from this Province to your Wisdom & Care I Recommend His Majesty's Service & the Peace and Interest of the Province. I am extremely sorry for your own Sake, and that of the Province for your ill State of Health, & so feeble a Condition of Body. But I trust by God's Favour you will be able to carry on the ordinary Administration of the Government, and tho' the Journey from Boston to this Province be long & fatiguing, yet if any matter extraordinary, or of such a Nature as requires more vigorous Execution than your weak State of Health will Enable you to go Thro with I will upon Notice from you at a Moments Warning, repair hither to the Aid & Service of the Province.

In October following, the General Assembly of the province convened at Burlington, and received from President Reading his first message, which follows :

“GENTLEMEN OF THE COUNCIL AND OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

“When, Upon the Death of his Late Excellency Governor Belcher, the Administration of the Government Devolved upon me, the Bodily Infirmities under which I laboured, and the Advanced age it hath Pleas'd God to Favour me with, Rendered the Administration too Burthensome for me Chearfully to undertake, and my Fear Lest the General Service should have suffered from my Inability to enter into Vigorous Measures were Reasons Very Cogent and forcible to determine Me to Shun an Active Life, And Nothing But the Obedience I owe to His Majestys Commands could have Prevail'd on me to Assume the Reins of Government ; in the Execution of which my duty my Interest and my Warmest Inclination will Lead me by Every Just and Prudent Measure to Promote the Security of His Majestys American Dominions in General and the Peace Ease and Happiness of this Province in Particular, and I Hope for Your Aid & best Advice upon all Difficulties that May occur in these Times of Uncommon Danger and Distress.

“His Excellency Thomas Pownall, Esq'r Governor of Massachusetts Bay and Lieutenant Governor of this Province being acquainted that the Government of this Colony was Unsettled Prompted by a Zeal for his Majestys Service, Undertook a fatiguing Journey from Boston and Arrived here where he Found me in the Administration thereof, and did me the Favour to Assure me, that if any Extraordinary Matters Should Require more Vigorous Execution, than the Weak State of my body Should Enable me to Perform he would on the First Notice from me at a Moments Warning, repair here to the Aid and Service of the Province.

“A Declaration so Tender in Respect to myself Demands my Sincerest Return of Gratitude, and in Respect to the Colony Entitles him to their Greatest Esteem and regard : and I Must Recommend it to you to make a Generous Provision for the Expenses of his Late Journey, and for Such as the Exigency of Affairs shall Make it Necessary for him to Undertake hereafter ; and for the Support of the Commander in Chief of the Colony.

“It was with Reluctance that you were Called together at a time when your Private Affairs Require More than the Ordinary attendance ; but the Distressed Situation of the Frontiers which is Represented to me by Letters from several of the Principal Inhabitants ; and the Fitting out the One Hundred Rangers for his Majestys Service made Your Immediate Meeting of Absolute Necessity Notwithstanding the Parental Care the Legislature of this Colony have Shewn to the frontier Inhabitants, it Appears upon Tryal that the Forces Stationed there are insufficient to Prevent the Ravages of the Enemy, nor need I to Expatiate upon the Calamities that would Follow if the Settlers above and about Paoqualin, should be Terrified so as to Abandon their Improvements, these Letters the Secretary will Lay before you. You May assure yourselves that I shall Never Press an Useless Expense upon you ; but Good Economy dictates that we ought to Advance Freely when the Preservation of the whole is at Stake. I have wrote to his Excellency the Earl of Loudoun to procure a Company to Garrison Our Block Houses, & if his Lordship shall find it Convenient, to Spare them, our own Troops may be profitably Employed in Scouting Parties.

“My Bodily Disorders render it Impracticable for me to Attend your Present Meeting at Burlington, and as you may not Incline to go through More than what is Recommended to you, I Hope my Being here will not Occasion Much Delay. If you find it Convenient there will be a Necessity of Adjourning you to Trenton, which I will do on a Message to that Purpose. I am Thankfull to Heaven that there is an Appearance of my being Able Shortly to meet you at your Usual Places of Sitting. The Good Effects that this Colony has experienced from that Harmony and Good Agreement which has Happily Subsisted between the Branches of the Legislature, will I

“ October: 11th 1757”

Prior to the union of the provinces, Perth Amboy was the seat of government of East Jersey and Burlington of West Jersey. After the union the two seats were retained, and the general assembly, to accommodate the people of both sections, usually alternated between the two places. Frequently, however, temporary changes were made to meet the pleasure of the governor, which inconvenienced the public. One of such changes occurred in October, 1757, when the assembly met at Trenton, to suit the convenience of President Reading, who seems to have located there at that time for medical treatment. The assembly felt the importance of having President Reading reside at one or the other of the official seats, and, recognizing that his physical condition was such that it would discomfort him to be compelled to stay at an inn, offered to provide at the public expense a home at each capital for the use of himself and family, which offer was gracefully communicated to President Reading in the following letter of 22 October, 1757, from the speaker of the assembly :

“ SR

“ I Am Ordered to Inform you that it is a Considerable Pleasure to this House as well as Most of the Inhabitants of this Colony that the Government has in the course of Providence, devolved upon a Gentleman, whose Great Age & Experience Estate and Residence among us and Known good Dispositions must Naturally Prepose us in Favour of your Future Conduct and render it a Matter of Little doubt with us that Love and Esteem will as Naturally follow you in A Publick Capacity ; as it has done in Many Private ones ; and that there may be no Occasion Hereafter Administrated, to interrupt that Harmony with which we Please ourselves that Publick Affairs will be done during your Administration ; we Must Intreat your Honour, to Remove to one of the Usual Places of Doing the Publick Business, your Advanced age and Precarious state of Health makes it Absolutely Necessary ; And when your Honour Considers the Great disadvantages under which the Publick Business has lately been done ; the Great Expence it has occasioned and the many Hardships those Concerned in the doing it have been Obliged to Expose themselves to, we Doubt not your Honour will be of Opinion with us that such a Measure will Greatly facilitate his Majestys Service, and Dispatch the Publick Business, Conformable to his Majestys Instructions and the Established Constitution of the Colony and be Great Ease to all Concerned.

Early in March, 1758, circular letters from his Majesty's secretary of state, William Pitt, to the royal governors in America, arrived from England, announcing the appointment of Major-General James Abercrombie to succeed the earl of Loudoun in the command of the King's forces in North America, and the purpose of his Majesty to vigorously prosecute the then pending war, and calling upon the provincial governments to raise troops to unite with the King's forces in "offensive operation against the enemy." These letters were handed to Governor Delancey, of New York, who despatched those intended for the governments in the other colonies. The one to President Reading was delivered to him, 6 March, together with those for the governors south of New Jersey. The latter he at once forwarded to Honorable William Denny, governor of Pennsylvania. A fac-simile of the letter of transmission is here-with interleaved.

President Reading responded immediately to the King's call, and summoned a meeting of the general assembly, which convened at Burlington, 23d of the same month. On the following day, being then present with the council in their chamber, he directed the house of representatives to also attend him there, when he delivered the following addresses :

"GENTLEMEN OF THE COUNCIL AND OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

"Having the Honour of his Majestys Commands of the thirtieth day of December Last, Signified to me by the Right Honourable William Pitt Esq'r One of his Majestys Principal Secretaries of State, It became my duty to Call you Immediately Together that you might by your Vigour and Dispatch, have the Opportunity of Shewing the most Gratefull Return to his Majesty, for the Tender Concern he Manifests for his Loyal Subjects in this Part of his Dominions So far Removed from His Royal Presence, the Unexampled Expence Great Britain Chearfully Subjects herself to for the Security of these Colonies Demands the utmost Exertion of your force, to co-operate with the Kings Regular Troops, for the reducing Enemies whose Sole View must Evidently be the Distruction of Your Liberty Property Civil and Religious Rights and Everything that is dear to you. “The Secretary shall lay before you a Letter I have Received from His Excellency General Abercrombie whom His Majesty has been pleased to appoint Commander in Chief of his Troops in North America in the Room of the Earl of Loudoun, and with the Same Power and Authorities in Which he Recommends the Utmost Application and Dispatch in forming the Levies

“I must Entreat you not to Suffer any Jealousy of the Conduct of the Other Colonies, [to] Enter into your Councils, but to Act for yourselves Independantly and detached from Every other Consideration that the Emergent Necessity of Securing to Yourselves and your Posterity the Happiness of Englishmen under the Administration of the best Kings, who Has always had a Just Regard for the Liberties of his Subjects & has given the Most Evident Proofs that He Esteems his Happiness as Interwoven with that of His People, I must Strongly Recommend it to you to fall upon the Speediest and Best Methods of Raising the Greatest Body of Troops this Colony can furnish, and in Case the Proposed Numbers should not be Voluntarily Inlisted within a Limited time by the Methods you Shall fall upon, that I Should be by a Law for that Purpose Enabled to Compel them, so that they may be ready in time to assist in the General Attempt of obtaining by force of Arms that Repose and Security, which Past Events Plainly Shew us we can Never by any other Method expect to Enjoy.

“Colonel Peter Schuyler is now Here and has Considerable Arrearages & Demands; that Gentlemans Conduct has done Honour to the Colony and Entitles him to its Esteem and his humane Disposition which Extended to all his Captive Countrymen has Endeared him to America; I shall Propose the Recommendation of his Affairs and those of Captain Shaw, who brought home the Troops who were Captivated by the Indians after the Surrender of Fort William Henry, and of the Troops returned by the way of Europe, from Oswego untill you have taken Resolutions Respecting the Forces now to be raised, as that Consideration ought to be Paramount to every Other but doubt not but in the Course of this Session, their Particular Circumstances of which I shall Inform you will meet with due regard from you as well as the future Care of the Frontiers; which by the Blessing of Providence on the Vigilance of our Troops, have been protected through the Winter; and a Quiet for a long time before unknown to the Upper Inhabitants, happily Preserved.

“Then the Speaker and House of Assembly returned and His Honour withdrew.”*

About the time President Reading thus addressed the assembly, he issued a proclamation for the raising of a regiment for immediate service, knowledge of which is derived from the following advertisement in the Pennsylvania Gazette, under date of 27 April, 1758 :

“TRENTON IN NEW JERSEY,
“April 18, 1758.

“Whereas there is a proclamation issued out by the Honourable John Reading Esq. President of his Majesty's Council and Commander in Chief of New Jersey, for the Raising a Regiment of One Thousand Men, and paying them a Bounty of Twelve Pounds, to have one coat, a pair of cloth Breeches, a white shirt, a check ditto, two Pairs of Shoes, two Pair of Stockings and one Pair of Ticken Breeches, a Hat, a Blanket, Canteen and Hatchet, and to serve till the 15th day of November, and receive One Pound Thirteen shillings and six pence a month. All those that are free and willing to serve His Majesty King George in the above regiment, by repairing to Trenton at the Sign of the Wheat-Sheaf, or to the house of John Cummings, where William Douglas is beating up to raise a Company, shall on their enlistment, receive a Dollar to drink His Majesty's health,* enter into Present pay, and have good quarters provided for them.

“WILLIAM DOUGLAS.”

About the date the above-named proclamation was issued, President Reading appointed a day of fasting and prayer, which fact is thus noted in the New Universal American Magazine of May, 1758 :

“22 May [1758] PERTH AMBOY.

“The Hon. John Reading, Esq. President of this province, hath issued a proclamation, appointing Friday, the 9th of June, to be observed as a day of fasting, prayer and humiliation throughout the said province.”

President Reading's second administration came at an interesting time in the history of the colonies. It was in the midst of the period known as the French and Indian War, and at the most critical time in that period. Large demands were made by the mother government on the colonies for assistance in the struggle, which made the position of a royal governor far from enviable, standing, as he did, between the Crown and the people. Pressed by the Crown for support, upon him fell the duty of dispelling the apathy of the people and arousing them to action, a task often difficult of accomplishment, owing to the poverty of the people and the tardiness of legislative movement.

However, President Reading proved equal to the emergency. Reluctant, on account of weight of years and the inflictions of disease, to burden himself with the responsibilities and anxieties of state, yet, having from a sense of duty taken upon

* The offer of “a Dollar to drink His Majesty's health” was not confined to the recruiting officers of New Jersey. The same newspaper, in its edition of 4 May, 1758, contains this advertisement :

“Whereas a proclamation is issued out by the Hon. Wm. Denny, Esq., Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania, New Castle, Kent and Sussex upon Delaware, for the raising of 2700 men, paying them a bounty of Five pounds & seven pounds advance, and forty-five shillings a month during the campaign. All those who are willing to serve his Majesty King George upon the above said terms, by repairing to my house, in the township of Warrington, Bucks county, or to the house of John Craig, Tavern Keeper, in the township and county aforesaid, shall, upon their enlistment, receive a dollar to drink His Majesty's Health, enter into present pay, and good quarters provided by himself the same, he gave to the work his best efforts, and exhibited a degree of patriotism, and fitness for executive service, unsurpassed by his predecessors or successors in office.

The last meeting of the council under his administration was held at Trenton, 22 May, 1758, on which occasion he signed warrants for the pay of the officials of the colony. Among these is one for one hundred and twenty-five pounds "To himself Or Order for a Quarters Salary as Commander in Chief of this Colony, due 21st inst." Three weeks later, the Honorable Francis Bernard arrived from England with a commission as governor, and on 16 June he qualified and succeeded President Reading in the government. At a meeting of the council on the following day, Governor Bernard laid before that body a letter "received from John Reading, Esq. late President of his Majesty's Council of this Colony, representing the distresses of the frontiers . . . and advising His Excellency that he had a few days since, ordered a detachment of one hundred men to their relief from the regiment of Hunterdon, Somerset and Morris." This, no doubt, was President Reading's last public act under his governorship.

In the King's "Letter of Instructions" to Governor Bernard, the name of John Reading appears at the head of the council. President Reading was, however, still determined to retire from public life. On 28 July, 1758, he waited upon Governor Bernard at Burlington, and informed him that "his great age and infirmities rendered him incapable to perform the duty of one of his Majesty's Council and desired that his Excellency would be pleased to accept of his resignation and dismiss him from his Majesty's service." Governor Bernard "thanked him for his services, and promised him to represent the affairs of his Majesty's Council in order to obtain his approbation of such dismissal," and, with the unanimous consent of the council, "did suspend [excuse] him from the office and duty of a councillor of this colony, until his Majesty's pleasure be known." The King in due time accepted the resignation and appointed a successor.

On his release from public office, President Reading retired to private life, in which he remained until his death, 5 November, 1767. His last will and testament, executed 1 October, 1767, and the codicil thereto, executed 29th of same month, six days before his death, bear unmistakable evidence that he retained his mental faculties until the end. Both the will and codicil are lengthy and interesting papers, and are inserted in this volume at the end of the chapter on the "Reading Family." The will itself is in the testator's handwriting. The communion service provided for in the same was later procured and presented to the Old Amwell Presbyterian church, with which he was connected, and in whose burying-ground his body lies. It is still in use, and is shown in the accompanying portrait.

The personal character of an ancestor, and the degree of esteem in which he was held by his contemporaries, are ever matters of interest to posterity, and in these respects President Reading's descendants are, happily, not left to speculation. Type and ink have preserved an outline of his character, and of the esteem in which he was held by those who best knew him, in the following testimonial from the Pennsylvania Gazette of 28 January, 1768, written by one of his neighbors, probably his pastor :

“One of our Correspondents from the Country writes us as follows, viz.

“AMWELL, IN HUNTERDON COUNTY, NEW JERSEY.

“‘ MESSIEURS. HALL AND SELLARS,

“ ‘ Altho’ I am one of your constant Readers, yet I have been a little surpris’d, that I found no mention made, in any of the public Papers, of the Death or Character of John Reading, Esq. late of this Place, especially as his Station and Character was eminent. That God, who has said, “The Righteous shall be had in everlasting Remembrance,” no Doubt expects that we should actively concur in accomplishing that sacred Declaration ; And besides, as Example teaches more powerfully than Precept, so, illustrious Examples of Virtue being set before us, excite us to a noble Emulation. These Considerations have induced me to give you the following Strictures of his Character. The God of Nature endowed Mr. Reading with good natural Powers—a Genius above the common Level. His Judgment was clear and manly ; his Thoughts under good Command ; his Expressions ready and pertinent. He justly supported the Character of being a strictly honest man ; one of unshaken Integrity and Uprightness. He was under the Advantage of an early liberal Education ; and had his mind enriched with a useful Store of Knowledge—all which Things conspired to qualify him to act with Dignity in the several important Stations in which he was placed in Life ; and he had the deserved Honour of being entrusted with some of the most important offices in the Government. He was early appointed a Member of his Majesty’s Council in this Province, and was twice the President-Governor of it, which important Offices he executed with a becoming Dignity, Judgment and Fidelity. And though distinguished with such honourable Trusts, he did not appear at all elevated by them, but behaved with that Meekness and Gentleness ; that Evenness and Agreeableness, that happily marked his whole Character ; and with Condescension and Respect to the meanest and poorest, as well as to the greatest. He was remarkably inoffensive and cautious in his Conduct, and steady, solid and grave in his Deportment ; yet he was not morose or sullen, gloomy or unpolite. It might be said, without flattering Panegyric, that he never undertook any Trust, to which he was not eminently faithful, nor sustained any Relation, whether of a Husband, Parent, Friend, Counsellor or Ruler, but he was conscientious in the Discharge of it. And he had the rare Art of doing worthily without appearing conscious of it. He was temperate in his Enjoyments, and charitable to the poor ; and was far from being vain and showy in his Appearance ; on the contrary, he was plain and unaffected ; when he spoke, it was with a natural Guard and Prudence ; seldom did an unguarded Word drop from his Lips—He did not love to deal in Calumny or Detraction, or engage in Party Quarrels, but was a quiet and peaceable Member of Society ; was scarcely known to speak to the Disadvantage of any, even though their Conduct was disagreeable, but prudently concealed his sentiments in his own Breast, and suffered their own actions to be the severest Libel on their Fame. He manifested an high Regard to Religion, and was a constant Attendant on public Worship ; was Catholic in his Sentiments, and loved good Men of every Denomination of Christians—He had a strict Regard to Truth, and was punctual to his Word—Was universally beloved, and died lamented on the Fifth Day of November last.’ ”

He died before his father, and the latter in his will made ample provision for the widow and children of the son. He married,† 21 November, 1746, Isabella, daughter of William Montgomery, Esq<sup>r</sup>,‡ by his wife Susanna, widow of John Wood, and daughter of Samuel Furnis, of Burlington county. Mrs. Reading was born in Upper Freehold, Monmouth county, New Jersey, in 1727, and died in Hunterdon county, 9 January, 1800. She married (2) Henry Bailey, who died June, 1807.

‡ William Montgomery was born at Ayr, Scotland, 7 February, 1693, and came to New Jersey with his parents in 1701. He was commissioned justice of the peace for Hunterdon county, 28 March, 1749, and for Monmouth county, 21 December, 1757. His will, dated 24 November, 1769, proved 26 September, 1771 (New Jersey Wills, xv. 164-7), names daughter Isabella Bailey and her youngest sons Montgomery and Alexander Reading, and daughters Rebecca and Mary Reading. Mr. Montgomery was a son of William Montgomery by his wife Isabella, daughter of Robert Burnett, Esq<sup>r</sup>, one of the principal proprietors of the province of East Jersey, and was descended from Hugh, third Lord Montgomery, created earl of Eglinton, and from Robert Bruce, King of Scots, Robert II., King of Scotland, William the Conqueror, Henry II. of France, and other royal lines. (See "Americans of Royal Descent," 126-7.)

§ This date is from the "Beatty Genealogy." License to marry was issued in New Jersey, 13 January, 1746. (New Jersey Marriage Licenses at Trenton.)

|| He was the son of John Beatty by his wife Christiana, daughter of James Clinton. John Beatty was an officer in the British army, and a native of county Antrim, Ireland, and his wife was a sister of Charles Clinton, whose son George was successively general in the army of the Revolution, governor of New York, and vice-president of the United States. widow, in 1729. In his youth he engaged as a travelling merchant, and on one of his business excursions in the neighborhood of Philadelphia met the Reverend William Tennent, the founder of the "Log College," who, discovering that young Beatty was well educated and possessed the true missionary spirit, induced him to study for the ministry. On the completion of his education at the "college," he was, 13 October, 1742, licensed to preach, and on 26 May, 1743, became pastor of the Presbyterian church at the Forks of the Neshaminy, Bucks county, Pennsylvania. The Presbyterians were at that time divided into two factions, the "Old Side" and the "New Side," and Mr. Beatty joined the former. He was associated with David Brainerd in some of his missionary work among the Indians. Inheriting a martial spirit, which he communicated to his children, he went as chaplain in 1756 to the military forces sent out by Pennsylvania under Benjamin Franklin to repel the incursions of the Indians, and on 16 April, same year, he was commissioned chaplain of the Pennsylvania regiment under Colonel William Clapham, raised for service in the French and Indian War. During the following year he was appointed by the governor a commissioner, with Edward Shippen, John Hughes, and James Galbraith, to build a fort and barracks at Wyoming for the Delaware Indians and the Ten Indian Nations, and on 9 June, 1758, was commissioned chaplain of the first Pennsylvania battalion, under Colonel John Armstrong.

In 1760 he was sent to Europe by the Synod to solicit subscriptions for "the fund for the relief of poor Presbyterian ministers, and ministers' widows, and their children," and while in England he witnessed the coronation of George III., was presented at Court, and received a handsome donation from his Majesty. He made a second visit to Europe in 1767, accompanied by his wife and her sister, Mrs. Hackett, the trip being taken on account of the ill health of his wife. In 1762 Princeton college conferred on him the degree of A.M., and in the following year he was chosen a trustee of that institution, and in 1772 was sent to the island of Barbadoes, to solicit aid for the college. Here he was stricken with yellow fever, from which he died. His publications were: A sermon preached at Fairfield, New Jersey, 1756, at the ordination of Rev. William Ramsey, entitled "Double Honor due to the Laborious Gospel Minister;" "Journal of a Two Months' Tour among the Frontier Inhabitants of Pennsylvania, 1768;" "Letter to the Rev. John Erskine, D.D., in regard to the Indians being Descendants of the Ten Tribes;" "Further Remarks respecting Indian Affairs."

Governor Reading conveyed to Mr. Beatty, 28 October, 1765, two hundred and seventy-two acres of land in Sussex county, New Jersey, the deed reciting that the conveyance was made in consideration of the marriage which had taken place between said Beatty and Ann, the daughter of said Reading. For a fuller account of the life of Mr. Beatty and of his descendants than is here given, see "Record of the Family of Charles Beatty," published in 1873.

26. MARY BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 21 April, 1747; died 2 May, 1842; married, 7 June, 1770, Reverend Enoch Green, son of William and Lydia (Armitage) Green. Mr. Green was born near Trenton, New Jersey, 29 December, 1734; died at Deerfield, Cumberland county, New Jersey, 2 December, 1776. He was graduated at Princeton in 1760, and after a course in theology entered the ministry, and on 9 June, 1767, was installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church in Deerfield, in which he remained until his decease. He served for a short period as chaplain in the Revolutionary army, and there contracted camp fever, of which he died.
27. CHRISTIANA BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 7 June, 1748; died circa 1764.
28. JOHN BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 10 December, 1749; died at Trenton, New Jersey, 31 May, 1826; married (1) 22 March, 1774, Mary, daughter of Richard Longstreet, Esq<sup>r</sup>, of Princeton. She died 1815, aged fifty-nine. He married (2) in 1818, Catharine, daughter of Barnt de Klyn Lalor, of Trenton. She died 27 January, 1861, aged 88. General Beatty was graduated at Princeton in 1769; studied medicine, and entered on the practice of his profession in Bucks county, Pennsylvania. At the outbreak of the Revolution he engaged in organizing a regiment of militia in Bucks county, of which he was made colonel, but relinquished the same when, on 5 January, 1776, he was commissioned captain of the First company, Colonel Robert Magaw's battalion (Fifth Pennsylvania), of which he was promoted major, 12 October, 1776. He was with his command in the disastrous campaign of White Plains and on Long Island, and was taken prisoner at Fort Washington, 16 November, 1776. He remained in confinement until May, 1778, when he was exchanged, receiving the appointment on the 28th of that month of commissary-general of prisoners, with the rank of colonel, which position he resigned 31 March, 1780. He then took up his residence at Princeton, New Jersey, and re-engaged in the practice of his profession. He served in the New Jersey legislature, and was speaker of the lower house, and represented his state in Congress in the years 1783-5 and 1793-5. In the latter year he was chosen secretary of state of New Jersey, which position he retained until his decease. He was a brigadier-general of militia, president of the Trenton and Delaware bridge company, and of the Trenton banking company, and from 1785 until 1802 a trustee of Princeton college.
29. ELIZABETH BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 26 March, 1752; died 1825; married (1) 25 October, 1775, Reverend Philip Vicers Fithian, born in Greenwich, Cumberland county, New Jersey, 29 December, 1747. He was graduated at Princeton in 1774; studied theology, and was commissioned, 20 June, 1776, chaplain of Colonel Newcomb's battalion, "Heard's Brigade;" served in the campaign on Long Island, and died in camp at Fort Washington, 4 October, 1776. She married (2) 4 March, 1780, Joel Fithian, a cousin of her first husband, born in Cumberland county, 29 September, 1748; died 1821. He was high sheriff of Cumberland county three years; commanded a company of militia in the Revolution; and served in the assembly, also in the legislative council of New Jersey.
30. MATTHEW BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, died young.
31. CHARLES CLINTON BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 10 February, 1756; was graduated at Princeton, 1775; commissioned, 8 January, 1776, second lieutenant in Colonel Wayne's battalion (Fourth Pennsylvania); served with his command in New York and at the battle of Three Rivers and at Ticonderoga. The term of enlistment of the regiment expired in January, 1777, and on its return to Chester county, Pennsylvania, Lieutenant Beatty met his death, 16 February, 1777, by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of Captain Caleb North.

32. READING BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 23 December, 1757; died at Newtown, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, 29 October, 1831. He was a student of medicine at the breaking out of the Revolution, but at once entered the army as ensign in Captain John Richardson's company, in Colonel Magaw's battalion (Fifth Pennsylvania), and with his brother was taken prisoner at Fort Washington, 16 November, 1776; exchanged 8 May, 1778, when he was made ensign in the Sixth Pennsylvania Continental Line. On 1 May, 1780, he was commissioned surgeon of the Eleventh Pennsylvania Continental Line; transferred to Colonel Proctor's Artillery, 10 September, 1781, and served until the close of the war. He married, 20 April, 1786, Christiana, daughter of Judge Henry Wyncoop, of Bucks county, Pennsylvania. She died 18 April, 1841.
33. ERKURIES BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 9 October, 1759; died 3 February, 1823. He was preparing for Princeton at the commencement of the Revolution, but abandoned his studies for the army; was commissioned, 2 January, 1777, ensign of the Fourth Pennsylvania Continental Line, under Colonel Lambert Cadwalader; promoted second lieutenant, 2 May, 1777; lieutenant, 2 June, 1778; paymaster, 1 June, 1779; and adjutant, 17 May, 1780, serving until the close of the war. He was wounded at the battle of Germantown, and was with his regiment at the surrender of Yorktown. On 20 November, 1781, he fought a duel with Captain Mentzer of the Maryland Line, in which the latter was killed. In 1784 he was one of the two officers selected by the officers of the Pennsylvania Line to collect the pay due them from the government. From 1786 to 1788 he was paymaster for the western army under General Harmar, and in 1789-91 was the commandant of Fort St. Vincent; he was promoted major under St. Clair, resigned from the army 11 January, 1793, and retired to Princeton. He became colonel of a New Jersey regiment of militia; judge of the county court; member of both branches of the legislature; mayor of Princeton, and a trustee of the Presbyterian church at that place. He was one of the founders of the Pennsylvania Society of the Cincinnati. He married, 21 February, 1799, Mrs. Susanna Ferguson, née Ewing, widow of Major William Ferguson, who was killed at St. Clair's defeat. Their son, Reverend Charles Clinton Beatty, LL.D., was the founder of the Steubenville female seminary, and president of the board of trustees of the Western theological seminary at Allegheny, Pennsylvania; and gave an endowment of fifty thousand dollars to Washington and Jefferson college.
34. GEORGE BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 28 June, 1763; supposed to have been lost at sea.
35. WILLIAM PITT BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, born 31 March, 1766; removed to Columbia, Pennsylvania, where he became a merchant, and an elder of the Presbyterian church there. He married, 8 November, 1799, Eleanor, daughter of John Polk, of Neshaminy, Bucks county, Pennsylvania.
36. ANN BEATTY<sup>4</sup>, said to have been born in 1768, at Greenock, Scotland, and buried with her mother at that place.

6. COLONEL GEORGE READING<sup>5</sup> (Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, 26 February, 1725, and died in Bourbon county, Kentucky, 12 August, 1792. He inherited from his father large landed interests in New Jersey. It is believed that he adopted the profession of his father and grandfather, that of surveyor, as his father bequeathed to him his "surveying instruments." He was commissioned one of her Majesty's justices of the peace for Hunterdon county 3 April, 1755, was one of the representatives of that county in the colonial assembly of 1761-2-3-5, and as early as 1774 became surrogate of the county. Early in the Revolution he removed to Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, and settled on a farm near Fort Ligonier. His sons John and George accompanied him, the other children remaining in New Jersey. On 2 April, 1788, he was commissioned one of the sub-lieutenants of Westmoreland county, with rank as lieutenant-colonel, and on 2 June, 1780, was recommissioned. Writing to his brother, Captain Thomas Reading, of Amwell, 23 January, 1779, he mentions that he had returned to his farm from Fort Ligonier, where he had been "upwards of seven months," and that his son John had "become a great traveller and warrior." Under date of 25 April, 1779, he further writes to his brother: * ". . . Son Jonne arrived safe home.

* Colonel Reading carried on an extensive correspondence with his brother Thomas, and many of his letters are in the possession of Mrs. Alexander Gulick, of Princeton, New Jersey. In one of 16 July, 1779, he writes: "The enemy have not appeared on our borders since the first of May, when myself, my two sons, and Henry Hise's three sons, had a narrow escape, we being in great danger by them. Henry Hise, Jr., and my John were fired on by three Indians. They escaped, but a young man in company was shot thro' the breast and killed. . . . I purpose sending John down to Kentucky and the falls of Ohio, in a month or six weeks to take up and secure land, if he likes the country. We have the most favorable accounts of that country. It is a land to be desired, where the winter (not like Pharoah's lean kine) dont devour the summer; withal very healthy, where I hope to end my days. I intended to have come to see you once more, . . . but the troublesome times and dear travelling prevented, and I hardly expect ever seeing the Jerseys again." In a letter of 12 March, 1780, he writes that he has made arrangements to "go down the Ohio," in a "craft" which he had built for this purpose, and further says: "I should be glad to know what son Sam is about, and where he is, if in the army, or has left the service, and a mind to enter into trade. If he is, I know of no place equal to the Falls of Ohio* for a young man to push his fortune in. There is a large town laid out, and a great number of inhabitants already settled in it, and a considerable trade carried on with the Spaniards on the Mississippi. The Falls of Ohio bids the fairest for the largest trading inland city in North America, and will be the Metropolis of a new State in a few years. . . . I would strongly recommend it to Sam, if he has or intends to leave service, to immediately push for the New settlement . . . and bring with him his sister Betsey, where, if she is unmarried, she need not be afraid of her having pick and choice of a husband. John says he will yet fetch one of his sisters from the Jerseys, and come by the way of New Orleans and so to Philadelphia. . . . I should think it the greatest pleasure of my life in my aged days to have one of my daughters and son Bille with or near me. . . . Pray do take care of my books. John says when he comes he will bring them away with him. He and George take great delight in reading." Under date of 19 March, 1783, he writes from "Lincoln county, Kentucky Settlement," as follows: ". . . I need not say what a pleasure and satisfaction it would be to me to have some more of my children with me, especially Amelia and Bille, but how to get them here I cannot tell, . . . as the way coming is difficult and dangerous, but when once here I should look on their being safe, and if Amelia should come, married or unmarried it is in my power to make it worth her coming. As for Betsy, I never expect to see her here, but shall remember her. George and I continue to keep house by ourselves, in hopes of one of his sisters coming to keep house for us. . . . We have all things in plenty, and live as well as any person in Kentucky. . . . George was out a campaign last Fall in the Indian country. They destroyed several of their towns; killed and took several of them [Indians] prisoners, and lost but one man. . . ." In a letter dated at Crow's Station, Lincoln County, June, 1793, he writes: "I and George purpose that if there is peace with the Indians next Spring, to move on the north side of Kentucky to Licking, on a small tract of land [200 acres] I purchased," and in several letters written this year he refers to the "long captivity" of his son John.

Before his return we were enforced at Ligonier, the Indians having committed hostilities at Brushy Run, abt 18 miles from Fort Pitt; killed and captured 18 persons, since which they have appeared in several parts of this county. . . . We are still enforced here but at work daily on our farms; hope in a few weeks to move home altogether: have a few men stationed here to protect the Fort, and a number scouting on the frontiers. . . ." An attack would seem to have been made on the fort by the Indians on the following day, when Colonel Reading forwarded the following letter to General Joseph Reed, then President of Pennsylvania, whom he had known when both were residents of Hunterdon county, New Jersey :

"DEAR SIR,

"From our former acquaintance I am the more emboldened to make free with you. Your letter of the 27th ult<sup>o</sup> I rec<sup>d</sup> Pr Col<sup>o</sup> Jn<sup>o</sup> Shields. I accordingly communicated it to the inhabitants and used my best influence with them to stand their Ground, in consequence of which several staid here which otherwise would have gon in hopes of speedy relief, which is yet delayed. This day the Enemy made a breach upon us, killed one man, taken one prisoner, another man missing, two families living some distance from the Fort, not known what is become of them, we not having men sufficient at this post to send out, being reduced to a very few inhabitants, and but eight men and boys as a guard to the Fort. I am sorry to say that unless we have some speedy support and protection we shall be obliged to abandon this important Post, several of the inhabitants being entirely out of bread, must goe 40 or 50 miles for what is got, and pay a most exorbitant price for. We dread being blocked up in a few days, the Enemy appearing numerous, and of course our creatures all destroyed, if that should be the case our situation will be most distressing.

In 1780 he removed to that section of Virginia which in 1792, on the admission of Kentucky into the Union, became Bourbon county in that state. Here he made large purchases of land, as shown by his will, which follows :

"WILL OF GEORGE READING.

"In the name of God—To all whom these presents may hereafter concern :

"I, George Reading, of the County of Bourbon and State of Kentucky being in the 67 years of my age, but through the mercy & favor of the Almighty, preserver and disposer of mankind, I do yet retain a perfect disposing mind and memory being sensible from the infirm state of my Constitution, that I must ere long pay the last tribute to nature by death, do make this my last Will and Testament in manner and form following : (That is to say) after my decease I desire my Executors hereinafter named to bury my body in a decent manner, (it matters not to me where, so it is put out of sight under ground)— The debts that I owe the law will provide for their being paid. As for my personal estate I have none but my wearing apparel which is but trifling, which after being appraised

I give to my son George Reading. The landed estate which it hath pleased the Lord to favour me in acquiring since I came to Kentucky, I dispose of as follows: I will and bequeath to my eldest son, Samuel Reading, and to his heirs and assigns forever, the equal and undivided half part of 1760 acres of land lying in the forks of Kentucky and Benson Big Creek, on the south side thereof, which was entered and surveyed in the name of Anthony Foster, Junr., but the surveyor's platt was endorsed by said Foster directing the Register to issue the patent in said Foster's and my name as tenants in common.

"I will and bequeath to my son John Mullen Reading, and to his heirs and assigns forever, 400 acres of land which Simon Kenton entered and surveyed for me in my name lying on both sides of Flemmings Creek, a branch of the Blue Lick fork of Licking.

"I will and bequeath to my son George Reading and his heirs and assigns forever, the homestead or place whereon I now live, containing 200 acres of land which I bought of Col. John Hinkson.

"I will and bequeath to my sons, John Mullen Reading, George Reading and William Reading and to their heirs and assigns forever as tenants in common and not as joint tenants the equal undivided half part of 3000 acres of land which was entered and surveyed in the name of William Logwood, the half of which I was to have for entering and surveying, as will appear by an agreement left in the hands of George Stoval Smith—1529 acres, part thereof, is surveyed on the head waters of the north fork of the Rowling fork—1000 acres, another part thereof, is surveyed on the east side of Benson's Big Creek, where formerly the road crossed which went from Harod's old town to Squire Boon's, and the remainder 471 acres is surveyed on the south side of Kentucky River above Benson's Little Creek, adjoining James Arnold's survey of 200 acres on the S. W. and South East.

"I will and bequeath to my sons John Mullen Reading and George Reading, and to their heirs and assigns forever, my share of 773 acres of land as was divided by George Smith sometime in November last and was entered and surveyed in the name of Shearman Nunnery lying on the waters of the South Fork of Benson's Big Creek, and bounded on the north by Armstrong, on the east by Robinson, and on the south by George Smith—200 of which to be severed of the west end to go to the said George Reading and the remainder, be it more or less, to the said John Mullen Reading.

"I will and bequeath unto my sons John Mullen Reading and George Reading, and to their heirs and assigns as tenants in common forever 383 acres of land (it being my share of a survey of 1060 acres made in the name of Thomas Smith lying on the south fork of Benson's Big Creek, bounded on the south by George Slaughter, on the north by Stewart's and on the west by Flourney's land to be by them equally divided between them in quantity and quality.

"I will and bequeath to my sons George Reading and William Reading and to their heirs and assigns forever as tenants in common, the equal and undivided half part of 675 acres of land lying on the South Fork of Benson's Big Creek, bounded on the north by Armstrong's land and Nunnery's land, by Pittengen on the west and Thomas Smith's on the south, which was entered in the name of Lawrence Flourney, of which I was to have the half part for entering and surveying as per agreement with George Smith to be equally divided between them in quantity and quality.

"All the residue and remainder of lands entered and surveyed on shares as will appear by the before mentioned agreement made with George Smith, of Powhatan County, and State of Virginia, and left in hands of his brother George Stoval Smith, and all other my entries and land warrants, I will and bequeath unto my son George Reading and to his heirs and assigns forever.

"Lastly—I do nominate and appoint my sons John Mullen Reading and George Reading my only Executors to this my last Will and Testament.

In 1767 Colonel Reading was appointed guardian to his nephew, Samuel Hackett, son of his sister Elizabeth Hackett, widow, then about to make a voyage to Europe, and his surrender of the guardianship two years later is shown in a letter to Governor Franklin, a fac-simile of which is herewith interleaved. He married Rebecca, daughter of John Mullen,† a merchant of Hunterdon county, by his wife Elizabeth Edwards. The date of Mrs. Reading's death is unknown, although she would appear to have died before her husband removed to Pennsylvania.

Children‡ of Colonel George<sup>3</sup> and Rebecca (Mullen) Reading, all probably born in Hunterdon county :

37. SAMUEL READING<sup>4</sup>, born about 1758 ; died in 1838 ; married Sarah Gouverneur.
38. JOHN MULLEN READING<sup>4</sup>, born 1760 ; died in June, 1833 ; married Mary Porter.
39. GEORGE READING<sup>4</sup>, born 1762.

* Bourbon County Will Book, A, 123.

† John Mullen, of Amwell, in his will dated 6 July, 1747, proved 11 September, 1749 (New Jersey Wills, vi. 278), names wife Elizabeth, son William, and daughters Rebecca, Sarah, Elizabeth, and Mary,—children all under age,—and gives brick house and land in Burlington to daughter Rebecca. Mr. Mullen resided at first in Burlington county, and on 14 September, 1729, obtained license to marry Elizabeth Edwards. (New Jersey Marriage Licenses.) His son William, in his will, dated at Trenton, 18 December, 1765, proved 21 March, 1766 (New Jersey Wills), names sister Rebecca, wife of George Reading Esq<sup>r</sup>; sister Sarah Biles, widow of Thomas Biles, and sisters Elizabeth and Mary Mullen, and gives legacy to Samuel Reading, "son of George and Rebecca Reading."

‡ But little information has been received of the family of Colonel George Reading. His second son, John Mullen Reading, was of Lincoln county, Virginia, in 1784, where he executed a deed on 27 March of that year. (Sussex county, New Jersey, Deeds, A, 137.) He would, however, appear to have returned for a time to Hunterdon county. George Reading, the third son, executed deeds in Bourbon county, Virginia, under dates of 27 March, 1784, and 4 May, 1787, respectively. (Sussex County, New Jersey, Deeds, A, 137; Ibid., N, 2, 169.) The following items, furnished by the United States Commissioner of Pensions, relate to these brothers :

"John Reading, a soldier of the Revolutionary war, made an application for pension on August 21, 1832, at which time he was 72 years of age and residing in Franklin Co., Kentucky, and his pension was allowed for two years' actual service as a private in the Penna. troops Revolutionary war; a part of the time he served under Capt. Knox and Col. Proctor. He enlisted in Westmoreland Co., Penna. His widow, Mary, made application and received a pension for the service of her husband as above set forth."

"George Reading, a soldier of the Revolutionary war, made an application for pension on May 23, 1833, at which time he was 71 years of age and residing in Pike County, Missouri, and his pension was allowed for eighteen months and twelve days' actual service as a private in the Penna. troops, Revolutionary war; a part of the time he served under Capt. Logan and Col. Kirkham. He enlisted in Westmoreland Co., Penna."

7. CAPTAIN DANIEL READING<sup>3</sup> (Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Old Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, 2 February, 1727, and died there, 15 October, 1768. He was county collector from 1759 until 1765, and served as captain in the militia. He married, 26 February, 1755,‡ Euphemia Reid, daughter of Colonel John Reid,§ by his wife Mary Sands. Mrs. Reading married (2) 13 April, 1772, Peter Imlay, Esq<sup>r</sup>, of Monmouth county. The Pennsylvania Gazette of 27 October, 1768, contains the following account of Captain Reading's death:

“AMWELL, NEW JERSEY, Oct. 17, 1768.

“On Wednesday the 5th inst., a melancholy accident happened here. On the afternoon of the same day, Captain Daniel Reading, son of the Honorable John Reading, Esq., late of this place, deceased, and two other gentlemen, each with his fowling piece, charged with some shot, went out to divert themselves, in the pursuit of game in the neighboring woods, and they having discovered a squirrel on a tree, one of the gentlemen presented, but the object moving, he took down his piece, and, as he confidently thinks, half cocked it. Whilst they were walking about the tree, in order again to discover the same game, the gun of the gentleman, who had presented, being in his hand, accidentally went off, and Captain Reading, being at a little distance, in a direction nearly straight before the muzzle of the gun, unhappily received the charge in his right arm above the joints of the elbow, which not only lacerated the flesh and fractured the bone where it struck, but broke it off short a little above where it entered. With some difficulty, he got home, and in most excruciating pain, which continued for some days. Skillful surgeons were immediately called to his relief, who willing, agreeably to his own desire, and that of his friends, to use their utmost endeavors to save his arm, did not proceed to an amputation. Little or no fever ensued, and after a few days the pain abated, and the wounded part began to suppurate. But notwithstanding many flattering symptoms of a favorable issue, yet, on the morning of the 15th inst., he unexpectedly and suddenly expired, without any visible mortification in the parts, unless livid and blueish streaks under his wounded arm, and on his side might be judged indications of it.

“Captain Reading's placid, easy, and of a benevolent engaging disposition and conduct, had rendered him the object of universal esteem and affection, wherever he was known; hence his death is very justly and greatly regretted. It is not only an unspeakable loss to a deeply afflicted widow, and a large family of children, but to the particular Society to which he belonged, of which he was a useful member, and to all his acquaintances. He was one of the most loving and affectionate of husbands and tenderest of fathers, and a steady friend, and his immature and unexpected death, in the prime of his days, and in the midst of usefulness, shows the vanity of man, in his best estate, and the great necessity of attending to our Lord's admonition, 'Be ye also ready, for in such hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh.'”

11. CAPTAIN THOMAS READING<sup>3</sup> (Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Old Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, 27 September, 1734, and died there 15 December, 1814. He was an ardent patriot in the Revolution, and one of the foremost men in the county. He was chosen by Congress, on 9 February, 1776, captain of the sixth company, third New Jersey regiment, "First Establishment," commanded by Colonel Elias Dayton, and was in service with his command in northern New York and Canada until the discharge of his regiment, 23 March, 1777. In June, 1778, he was appointed one of the agents* of the state for procuring provisions for the use of the army, and other supplies for carrying on the war, in which capacity he rendered valuable services. He was commissioned a justice of the peace for Hunterdon county as early as 1783, and was for many years one of the judges of the court of common pleas. Captain Reading was one of the founders of the Presbyterian church in Flemington, and a member of its board of trustees, and on 6 July, 1797, was ordained an elder, with power "to conduct divine worship and read a sermon when the pastor was absent." He was a large land-owner. His home estate, formerly that of his father, contained over four hundred acres, and was located near what is now Flemington Junction. He married Rebecca Ellis, daughter of Jonathan Ellis,† of Waterford, Gloucester county, New Jersey, and granddaughter of Simeon Ellis by his wife Sarah Bates.

|| Of JOHN REID the following memorandum, written by himself, has been preserved :

" At Niddrew Castle, the parish of Kirkleston, [I] was born the 13 February, 1655-6, and there baptized, where my father was gardener and my grandfather before him. I was bound an apprentice to a wine merchant in Edinburgh in January 1667, but my master dying before the expiration of my apprenticeship, I returned 9br 1673. My father being dead, and my mother being married again, I went to the famous Hamilton Gardens for improvement. Here I was deluded to embrace Quakerism. From thence I went to Drummond 9br 1675. Thence to Lawres, alias Fording, 27 9br 1676. There I wrote the Scotch Gardener, and was married 29 9br, 1678 to Margaret daughter of Henry Miller of Cashon, in the parish of Kirkintelloch, where she was born and baptized anno 1644-5. She had likewise embraced Quakerism. My eldest daughter, Anna was born at Lawres, 24 January, 1679. We came to Shank, 4 9br 1680. My second daughter, Helena, was born there the 2nd October 1681. My third daughter, Margaret, was born there the 11th May, 1683. We went to Leith, for our voyage to America, the 2 August, 1683, and came on board ship the 10th and the next day at Aberdeen, where we staid to the 28th 10br. Entered Sandy Hook and landed on Staten Island the 19th, went to Elizabethtown the 23d and to Woodbridge 10 January, 1683-4. My daughter Margaret died the 15th and was buried the next day at Amboy. We removed to the House in the field at Amboy, 13th 10br, 1684. My son John was born there 27th July, 1686, came to Hortensia 26 10br 1687. My daughter Anna was married to Captain John Anderson, 7th 10br 1701. I first received the sacrament of the Body and Blood of Jesus Christ in the Church of England, 28 March, 1703. John Reid's removal to America was at the instance of the proprietors of East Jersey. Upon his arrival he became deputy-surveyor to the province, and an engraved map, drawn by him, of lands on the Raritan, Millstone, Rahway, and South rivers, and in other localities, is in the library of the New Jersey Historical Society. He received from the Proprietors in 1686 a grant of land in Monmouth county, which he called "Hortensia," and to which he removed. Up to this time he had acted as clerk of the Amboy Quaker Meeting. In 1687 he was one of the commissioners to settle the boundary between East and West Jersey, and as early as 1696 became one of the council of proprietors of the former province. In 1687 he was appointed by the proprietors of East Jersey to act as their agent in case of the death or absence of George Wilcocks, and in the same year was appointed King's attorney for Monmouth county, but refused the office. He was several years a member of the East Jersey assembly, also of the first assembly which met after the union of the two provinces, and of subsequent ones. In 1703 he was appointed surveyor-general ; in 1709 was recommended by the Lords of Trade for a seat in the provincial council, but failed of appointment ; from 1709 until 1714 he was one of the land commissioners, and in 1711 was president judge of the court of quarter sessions of Monmouth county. He was the author of "Observations on the Laws of New Jersey." He died at Hortensia, 16 March, 1723, and his head-stone is still standing in Topanemus graveyard, near Freehold. He married, 29 November, 1678, Margaret Miller, by whom he had four children :

ANNA REID, who married Honorable John Anderson, president of his Majesty's council of New Jersey, and, by virtue of such office, acting governor and commander-in-chief of that province in 1736.

20. CAPTAIN JOHN READING<sup>4</sup> (John<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Hunterdon county, New Jersey, in 1751; died there, 30 November, 1820. He was known as "valliant" John, and is believed to have been so styled on account of service in the Revolutionary army. In 1776 John Reading was ensign in the company commanded by Captain Thomas Reading, was promoted second lieutenant in Captain Doughty's company, third battalion, Second Establishment, and 1 January, 1777, first lieutenant, Captain Cox's company, same battalion. He retired from the army 26 September, 1780.* Later, possibly after the Revolution, he held a captain's commission, and in a suit in the supreme court† of New Jersey, 11 November, 1788, he is styled "Captain John Reading, Esq." His will,‡ dated 20 October, 1815, was proved 18 October, 1820. He married, 7 April, 1772, Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph Hankinson, Esq.§ of Readington, Hunterdon county, by his wife Rachel. She was born 27 November, 1748; died 19 June, 1817, and both she and her husband are buried in the graveyard of Amwell Presbyterian church.

21. MAJOR CHARLES READING<sup>4</sup> (John<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born in Hunterdon county, New Jersey, but the date of birth and the date and place of death have not been ascertained. He was a Revolutionary soldier,|| having served as lieutenant and captain of the third regiment Hunterdon county militia, and after the war was a major in the militia, by which title he is styled in the probate of the will of his step-father, Henry Bailey. He was a member of the county board of chosen freeholders in 1792, and a trustee of the Flemington Presbyterian church from that date until 1814. On 8 September, 1804, he and his wife Abigail conveyed land which he had received from his father. He married Abigail, daughter of Thomas Hunt, of Amwell.

New Jersey, 22 November, 1755 ; died there, June, 1832. He was educated to the law, but at the commencement of the Revolution he entered the army, holding a lieutenant's commission in the New Jersey militia, and is said to have served under General Richard Montgomery at Quebec in December, 1775, and also in the battles of Brandywine, Germantown, and Monmouth. After the close of the war he went to sea as supercargo, but was unfortunate, lost his patrimony, and later engaged in merchandising and farming.

130. ELLEN ROGERS<sup>5</sup>, married John Chambers.

Children of James and Ellen<sup>4</sup> (Reading) Montgomery :

131. ESTHER WOOD MONTGOMERY<sup>5</sup>, died at Trenton, New Jersey, 7 July, 1875.
132. JOHN MONTGOMERY<sup>5</sup>.
133. WILLIAM READING MONTGOMERY<sup>5</sup>, born 10 July, 1801 ; died at Bristol, Pennsylvania, 31 May, 1871. He was graduated at the United States military academy in 1825, and became second lieutenant in the third infantry, with which regiment he served until 1838 on garrison and frontier duty, also performing the duties of disbursing officer during the removal of the Choctaw Indians from Mississippi to their reservation. He obtained a captaincy, 7 July, 1838, and served on the Canadian border during the disturbances of 1838-46, in the Florida war of 1840-42, and in the occupation of Texas in 1845. He took part in the war with Mexico, was wounded at Resaca de la Palma, and brevetted major, and at Molino del Rey he was again wounded, although not until he had succeeded to the command of his regiment, which he led at Chapultepec and the capture of Mexico. His services won for him the brevet of lieutenant-colonel, and he was promoted major in December, 1852. He was stationed at Fort Riley, in Kansas, during the trouble in that territory, and there pursued a course of strict impartiality, although his personal feelings were in favor of the free state men ; but his actions failed to meet with the approval of his superiors, and he was dismissed from service. At the beginning of the civil war he organized the first New Jersey volunteers, joined the army of the Potomac, and aided in covering its retreat from Bull Run. He was commissioned brigadier-general of volunteers 17 May, 1861, and appointed military governor of Alexandria, Virginia. Subsequently he held a similar office in Annapolis, Maryland, and then in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, until 1863, after which he served on a military commission in Memphis, Tennessee. Failing health caused his resignation on 4 April, 1864, and after a brief interval of mercantile life in Philadelphia, he retired to his home in Bristol. He married his cousin, Hannah B. Wood, daughter of Thomas Newbold Wood by his wife Ann Reading (No. 153).

47. ANN READING<sup>4</sup> (Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born near Flemington, New Jersey. The dates of her birth and death have not been ascertained. She was living 29 November, 1817, the date of her husband's will,* in which she is named. She married Thomas Newbold Wood,† a prominent and wealthy citizen of Burlington county, New Jersey, who died there in 1823.

Children of Thomas Newbold and Ann<sup>4</sup> (Reading) Wood, born in Chesterfield, Burlington county :

147. GEORGE WOOD<sup>5</sup>,‡ born 6 January, 1789; died 17 March, 1860; married, 30 July, 1823, Mary E., daughter of Isaac Kip by his wife Catharine Van Wagenen.
148. READING WOOD<sup>5</sup>, born 20 April, 1791; died unmarried.
149. WILLIAM EMLEY WOOD<sup>5</sup>, born 31 October, 1793; died unmarried.
150. MARY GRAY WOOD<sup>5</sup>, born 7 September, 1795; died 19 November, 1878; married, 29 December, 1814, Thomas Black, Esq<sup>r</sup>.
151. DANIEL READING WOOD<sup>5</sup>, born 3 November, 1797.
152. THOMAS WOOD<sup>5</sup>, born 12 January, 1800; married Mary, daughter of Thomas S. Field.

* Will proved 17 June, 1823, and recorded in Burlington county, will book C, 340.

† WILLIAM WOOD was an early settler in Burlington county, where he married, 10 October, 1682, Mary Parnell, and died 24 September, 1722. His son William married, 30 April, 1724, Susanna, daughter of Samuel Taylor, and had son William, who married, in 1753, Anna, daughter of Thomas Newbold, and by her had Thomas Newbold Wood, named in the text.

‡ GEORGE WOOD was graduated at Princeton in 1808, and, after studying law with Richard Stockton, was admitted to the bar in 1812, and settled in the practice of his profession at New Brunswick. In 1831 he removed to New York, where he took high rank among lawyers. L. Q. C. Elmer, justice of the supreme court of New Jersey, pronounced Mr. Wood "probably the ablest man New Jersey has produced," and said that his "intellect was of the highest order, entitling him to rank with Mr. Webster." On one occasion, when William C. Preston, of South Carolina, was about to argue an important case in the United States supreme court, Daniel Webster asked him who was on the other side. Preston replied that it was a man from New York, whose name he could not recall, and said, "A sleepy-looking fellow named Wood, I think." "If it is George Wood," said Webster, "I advise you to look out how you wake him up." In 1845, Mr. Wood was strongly recommended to President Tyler for a seat in the United States supreme court. The degree of LL.D. was conferred on him by Hamilton college in 1842 and by Union in 1845. (Appletons' Cyclopædia of American Biography; Collections of New Jersey Historical Society, vii. 417.)

49. THEODOSIA READING<sup>4</sup> (Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>3</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born near Flemington, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, where she died about 1804; married Reverend Thomas Grant, son of Thomas Grant by his wife Catharine Stevens, born at New York city, 16 March, 1763, and baptized at the Presbyterian church of that city, 21 March of the same year. He was graduated at Princeton in 1786; ordained to the ministry by the presbytery of New Brunswick, New Jersey, in 1791, and on 13 December of that year was installed as pastor of the united churches of Amwell and of Flemington, Hunterdon county, New Jersey. It was during his pastorate that the church at Flemington was built. In April, 1809, Mr. Grant's failing health compelled him to request a severance of the pastoral relation between himself and the several congregations, which was accordingly done, when he retired to Mill Hill, near Trenton, where he died 10 March, 1811.* His will, proved at Burlington, New Jersey, 9 April, 1811, showed him to be possessed of considerable real estate in Virginia, and his personal property was inventoried at twenty-five thousand dollars. He married (2) 6 December, 1805, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of John Bryan, Esq<sup>r</sup>, of Somerset county, New Jersey. She died 9 June, 1807, and is buried in the Old Amwell burying-ground. One child, Elizabeth, was the issue of this union. He married (3) Mary E. —, who survived him.

He received under the will of his father an estate of some two hundred and fifty acres, on the bank of the Delaware river, immediately opposite what is now Lower Black Ledge. The eastern line is marked by a creek, which empties into the Delaware at what is now the head of the feeder of the Delaware and Raritan Canal ; it embraced what was at one time the most valuable shad-fishery between the head of tide-water, Trenton, and Easton. With it was connected the ferry right from the Jersey side. This ferry has long since disappeared, and a bridge at Point Pleasant station has taken its place. The old stone mansion, about one-half mile from Bull's Island station, is still standing. ## The Reading Family

77. GEORGE READING<sup>4</sup> (Captain Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born near Flemington, New Jersey; married his cousin Anastasia Reid (No. 93), daughter of Augustine Reid by his wife Sarah Reading. But little is known of this family. They removed from New Jersey before 1802, and it is possible that there were other children than those named below.

Children of George<sup>4</sup> and Anastasia (Reid) Reading :

- 227. GEORGE R. READING<sup>5</sup>, married, 24 January, 1808, Jane Simpson.
- 228. AUGUSTINE R. READING<sup>5</sup>, born 11 September, 1802; died 9 May, 1882; married Catharine Ann Reading (No. 485).

79. ELLIS READING<sup>4</sup> (Captain Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born near Flemington, New Jersey; died at Flemington in 1808.* The name of his wife has not been ascertained. In a deed dated 25 September, 1821, it is recited that "Ellis Reading, third son of Thomas Reading deceased, died in the lifetime of his father, leaving male issue living namely, Thomas H. Reading," and in a deed of 20 March, 1821, the said Thomas H. Reading joins his wife Elizabeth in conveying land in said county, in which deed Thomas H. Reading is styled "eldest son of Ellis Reading deceased."† There may have been other children than those here named.

Children of Ellis Reading<sup>4</sup> :

- 229. BURNS READING<sup>5</sup>, died before 1821.
- 230. REBECCA READING<sup>5</sup>.
- 231. THOMAS H. READING<sup>5</sup>, born 8 August, 1793; died 17 May, 1859; married Elizabeth Runkle.

80. 234. GEORGE W. BERTRON<sup>5</sup>, married Henrietta Rohrman, of Philadelphia.
235. SAMUEL READING BERTRON<sup>5</sup>, born at Philadelphia, 17 December, 1806; died of yellow fever at his plantation, "Greenwood," near Port Gibson, Mississippi, 7 October, 1878. He was graduated at Princeton in 1828, and subsequently entered the theological seminary at that place. A Port Gibson newspaper, in an article on his death, says, "Mr. Bertron was one of our oldest and most respected citizens. Early in life he chose the South for his home and field of labor. By marriage he became related to some of the most worthy families of Claiborne county, and for nearly half a century he has figured in the social and ecclesiastical life of this community. . . . His intelligence was profound and highly cultured, which, in connection with his whole-heartedness and rare conversational powers, made him a most agreeable companion, and gathered about him many warm friends. . . . The first few years of his life he devoted to the ministry, in the Presbyterian church, and was a preacher of far more than ordinary ability. He first ministered to a congregation in Philadelphia, and after going South his labors were gratuitously bestowed on feeble churches; and although he at length abandoned active service on account of a bronchial affection which disabled him from public speaking, yet interest in the cause of Christ he ever maintained. . . ." Mr. Bertron took a lively interest in the establishment of the Chamberlain Hurt college in Port Gibson, and was elected its president. He married (1) 5 August, 1834, Caroline Christie, of Port Gibson; she died in 1839, leaving two daughters; he married (2) in 1847, Mrs. Catherine Barnes, of Claiborne county, Mississippi, who died in 1849; he married (3) 5 August, 1857, Otilie, daughter of Francis Mueller by his wife Lambertine von Potthof. Mrs. Bertron was born 25 December, 1829, at Bruchsal, Grand Duchy of Baden. Their son, Samuel Reading Bertron, is a member (1898) of the banking firm of Bertron & Storrs, of New York city.

82. SARAH READING<sup>4</sup> (Captain Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born near Flemington, New Jersey; died near Titusville, New Jersey, 13 March, 1836; married, 19 March, 1807, Captain Joseph Phillips, son of Job Phillips* by his wife Phœbe Howell. He died near Titusville, circa 1832-3.

Children of Joseph and Sarah<sup>4</sup> (Reading) Phillips, born near Titusville :

236. PHŒBE HOWELL PHILLIPS<sup>5</sup>, born 11 March, 1808; died at Topeka, Kansas, 9 January, 1892; married Rev. Joseph Barlow, of Franklin, Pennsylvania.
237. JOSEPH READING PHILLIPS<sup>5</sup>, died at Kansas City in 1873; married Elizabeth, daughter of John Van Kirk.
238. JOHN HOWELL PHILLIPS<sup>5</sup>, M.D., born 31 March, 1814; died at Beverly, New Jersey, 1 March, 1878; married Elizabeth A., daughter of James Carson, of Bucks county, Pennsylvania.
239. MARY PHILLIPS<sup>5</sup>, married John W. Phillips, of Pennington, New Jersey.

* PAUL HENRY MALLET-PREVOST was born in Geneva, Switzerland, 20 January, 1756; died at Frenchtown, New Jersey, 5 January, 1835; was for many years one of the justices of the peace for Hunterdon county. He had three sons: (1) GENERAL ANDREW MALLET-PREVOST of the United States army, the father of the late Major-General Charles M. Prevost, whose daughter, Anne Mallet-Prevost, is the wife of Honorable Charles B. McMichael, of Philadelphia. (2) HENRY MALLET-PREVOST, named in the text. (3) LOUIS MALLET-PREVOST. The family of the second son, Henry Mallet-Prevost, have in their possession an interesting account of the family, written by him early in the present century, from which the following is extracted:

" 1787. In the Autumn of this year, I went for the first time to Paris, with my father and mother, and returned to Geneva in the Spring.

" 1788. My father's concerns as a banker obliged him to spend the winter in France. In the Autumn we returned to Paris and settled there.

" 1789, July 14th. The Bastille was taken. We lived in the street of Richelieu. I remember the scene perfectly. The cannon roared terribly & frightened me much.

" 1790. In the course of the Summer we moved to Neuilly & returned to town in the Autumn.

" 1791. We moved to Passy and lived in the house which Dr. Franklin had occupied. It was then—I was such a boy—that I heard of Franklin and Washington for the first time.

" 1792, August 10th. We were at Passy during the terrible slaughter, and some of our unfortunate countrymen were murdered almost under our own doors. We were collected for some hours in a family group in the garden, expecting the same fate, although my father was a furious republican and had borne arms part of the day. During the succeeding days, he saved several Swiss, some of whom repaid him afterwards with cruel ingratitude.

" 1792, September 1st & 2d. In consequence of the Massacre of these two days, my father sent us to 'St. Andre,' an estate of his near the sea shore, above Abbeville, where we spent two months very delightfully for me, who

355. LEWIS ANDREW PREVOST<sup>6</sup>, born at Philadelphia, 20 March, 1818 ; died without issue, at Pisa, Italy, April, 1852 ; married Laura McCarty, of Fredericksburg, Virginia.

191. JOHN READING<sup>5</sup> (Joseph<sup>4</sup>, Honorable Joseph<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Kingwood, New Jersey, 8 October, 1789 ; died 12 November, was so forcibly struck with the management of this large farm, that at this day, I could draw an accurate plan of the buildings, yard & surrounding fields.

" Before we returned to Passy, my father had failed in business, and entered in a military line as administrator of the convoys of the Army of Dumourier, whence he shortly went to that of the Rhine, under Custine.

" 1792. We followed him to Strasburg in December, and remained there until October, 1793, when the allies, having forced the Camp Weissenburg, threatened Strasburg and my father removed us to Espinal in Lorraine. A few days previous I beheld the bombardment of Kehl, opposite Strasburg, a beautiful scene indeed for one who was too young to reflect on the horrors of war.

" On the 10th or 11th of December, my father, who had become very obnoxious to the French rulers, both as a Swiss & a friend of humanity, found out that an order had just arrived in the army then stationed near Huningen in Alsace, for his arrest. He accordingly fled at noon, accompanied by a young Frenchman named Defresnoye, under the fire of the French piquets. My father never did anything like other men. He escaped from Basle. My mother luckily getting the information in time, set off with us, in the depth of winter, without servants, in an open carriage, & after many providential escapes, reached Geneva through Lyons and Chambray, on New Years Day, 1794,—but the French residents demanding us from the Geneva government, we had to escape in a boat to the Bernese territory, and two days afterwards joined father, who had given us up for lost, at the hospitable mansion of a generous friend, Baron Hugieres, living between Lausanne and Goendin.

" But if my father was obnoxious to the tyrants of France, he was no less so to the Aristocrats of Berne. His enthusiastic attachment to democratic principles, not diminished by all his sufferings, and his well known activity, rendered him a suspected character. He was forced to leave us, and traversed Germany, not without being several times seized as a French spy. He arrived in Holland, whence he sailed for England, and in June embarked for New York, where he landed in July.

" November, the same year, he settled at Alexandria, now Frenchtown, on the Delaware, in Hunterdon county, New Jersey.

" 1795. In February we left the hospitable roof of St. Barthelemy & arrived in March at Hamburg, whence we sailed in the ship Concord, Capt. John Thompson, & landed in Philadelphia, July 7th, 1795. On July 10th we went up to Frenchtown.

" 1804. August 26th, I was married by the Rev. Thomas Grant, at his own house in Amwell, to Miss Amy Harrison Reading of Kingwood. Witnesses, my brother Andrew, Miss Anna Williamson daughter of Abraham Williamson of Amwell, a brother of Mr. Grant's living in New York, & others.

" 1805. A son born, named John Harrison Prevost, after his maternal grandfather & grand uncle."

* " We have been permitted to copy the following extracts from a letter from Mr. P. A. Reading, now living at Lambertville, N. J., to General William Lilly. Mr. Reading is one of the pioneers of the anthracite regions, and his letter will interest all our readers. Under the date of Feb. 20th he writes :

" MY DEAR GENERAL : I have read with much pleasure and interest the sketch of your life in the column of "State Celebrities" in the Philadelphia Press. It is a truthful and a meritorious history, and has revived in my mind a long entertained intention of giving you a history of the origin of Hazleton, which may interest you and recall to your mind many events with which you were familiar.

" James Gowen, the father of Franklin B. Gowen, Esq., who has lately figured so prominently in connection with the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, was for years my intimate friend. We were interested in the Beaver Meadow Coal Company, and business connected therewith often called me to Beaver Meadow. At the time I refer to, James Gowen had just moved into his new building on the north side of the Merchants' Exchange, Third and Dock Streets, and opened a wine store. One day, as I was starting for Beaver Meadow, Mr. Gowen said to me : " Reading, you know I have a store at Beaver Meadow, which if well stocked would be a paying investment. I do not possess the experience for running and stocking a country village store, and as you are familiar with the business, I wish you would buy me out." I replied that my business connections were already too numerous to allow me to take the store and give it my personal attention. Gowen insisted that my personal attention would not be needed, as he had a trusty clerk who would manage the store for me. He gave me a letter to this clerk, whose name if I recollect rightly, was Byerly. By Mr. Gowen's direction the clerk showed me all the details of the business and remarked that with a properly selected stock he would double the amount of sales. He offered to conduct the business for a salary or an interest. Discussing the business, the young man said to me : " Mr. Reading, I am inclined to think there is more coal in this neighborhood than is contained in the Beaver Meadow mines." " Why do you think so ?" I asked. " Because, some time ago I went out hunting a little beyond the tavern (kept by Drumheller or Davenport, on the North and South Pike) and I picked up a piece of stone coal like that in the Beaver Meadow mines." In the afternoon, we drove to the spot he referred to, and in a ravine I saw evidences of coal. I had been a clerk in the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company two years, and was intimately acquainted with Josiah White and Erskine Hazard, and had some ideas about coal. It did not take me long to decide that I had stumbled on a valuable discovery, whose magnitude I could only imagine. Byerly told me the land belonged to a watchmaker named Drysdale, who lived on Fifth street below Market, near the sign of the "Indian Queen," Philadelphia. I returned to the city and interviewed Mr. Drysdale, and made him an offer for the land, and also concluded to purchase Gowen's Beaver Meadow store. Dr. Samuel Moore, Director of the United States Mint, was my partner in several lines of business, and on my representation he joined me in the purchase of the Drysdale coal land. Going to the Beaver Meadow again, I met Josiah White, who said: "Well, Pierson, have thee been up to see the Beavers?" Afterwards, Mr. Drysdale told me that a few minutes after Dr. Moore and I had got the refusal of the land, Josiah White and Erskine Hazard had applied to him for the refusal.

"We at once applied for a charter, formed a stock company, and prepared to open the mines. Our association was composed of Dr. Samuel Moore, Abisha Jenkins, Lewis C. Coryell and a Frenchman whose name escapes me now. The State Legislature, being in session, and Jesse R. Burden, presiding officer of the Senate, being a warm friend of both Dr. Moore and myself, he aided us in securing a charter in 1836, for the "Hazleton Coal and Railroad Company." Dr. Moore was elected President of the Company, and P. A. Reading, Secretary and Treasurer. We went at once to work. Our first coal was brought down in boats through the Lehigh and Philadelphia Canal. An Irishman living at Bull's Island took down the first boat-load. Ario Pardee and J. Gillingham Fell subsequently became connected with the operation of the mines, and I well remember that Dr. Moore and myself warmly supported that resolution of the board giving to them, or to Ario Pardee, the contract for mining the Hazleton coal. The Doctor and I worked hard to sustain the credit of the Company, especially during the panic that grew out of the fight over the United States Bank. We borrowed money of Banks at Easton, Allentown, Doylestown and Bristol, depositing our individual stock as collateral on my notes endorsed by Dr. Samuel Moore, until all of our Hazleton stock was placed in this manner. The times grew more panicky, and the banks became alarmed, refused to renew the notes and demanded payment or sale of the hypothecated stock. The screws were tightened. We could not take up our paper, and those who held the stock sold it at a shameful sacrifice. I could name those who bought my Hazleton stock for 65 cents a share and afterwards sold it for $65.00 a share. The result was the Sheriff took us all under his protection, levied on and sold our real estate for the mortgages upon it, which did not amount to a quarter of the original purchase, sold our household furniture and turned us out of doors to start the world again with no capital but our brains, instead of being worth, as we thought, $50,000 apiece. At least this was my condition in 1845, when I became disgusted with the City and the times and came to Lambertville, where I have remained ever since, and where I expect to end my days, which cannot be many, as I shall be 85 years old on the 11th of next October. Dr. Moore's friends bought in his Hazleton stock and turned it over to him for what it cost them. He thus saved the sacrifice and died a rich man. He was a jewel of a man, such as are scarce in these days.

"Well, General, some of your particular friends owe their first step to the bad luck of your humble servant. "Kings arose that knew no Joseph." So be it. Josiah White once said to me: "Why, Pierson, don't thee know that the pioneers are generally the ones to suffer?" I have found it so. When I was last at Hazleton, I put up at a large three-story brick public house, on the very spot, as nearly as I could locate it, where the buggy stood when I made the first examination of the Drysdale tract, from which the town of Hazleton sprang. What a change in scene from wilderness to city."

and died at his ranch, "Buena Ventura," in Shasta county, California, 29 May, 1868.
He was a prominent California "pioneer," whither he went in 1843 as a member of what is known as the Chiles-Walker Company, the first to go by the overland route.*
Upon his arrival he entered the employ of the famous Captain John Augustine Sutter as clerk and chief of trappers. Sutter had established a trapping and trading post at New Helvetia, now Sacramento City, where he built a fort to protect the post from the Indians. In 1844 Major Reading was left in command of the fort, while Captain Sutter marched with all his forces to assist Micheltoreno in quelling the insurrection headed by Castro and Alvarado. The former had shown his partiality for Americans by granting them lands, and this led to the espousal of his cause by our people. In 1844 Reading received the grant of his extensive ranch, "Buena Ventura," in what became Shasta county. In the spring of the following year he visited, on a hunting and trapping expedition, nearly all the northern part of California, the western part of Nevada, and southern Oregon. He afterwards extensively engaged in trapping on the lower Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. "In all these dangerous expeditions his intelligence, bravery, and imposing personal appearance exercised over the hostile Indians a commanding influence that protected himself and party not only from hostile attack, but also secured their friendly aid in all his undertakings." *

Major Reading was active from the first in promoting the revolt which led to securing California to the United States. He participated in the meeting at Sonoma, 4 July, 1846, at which John C. Fremont presided, and resolutions were adopted declaring the independence of California, and war against the Mexicans.† Major Reading was appointed on a committee to prepare a plan of organization, which resulted in the formation of the noted "Bear Flag battalion," but later the first California volunteers, with Lieutenant-Colonel Fremont in command. Reading was made paymaster, with rank as major, and Lieutenant Archibald H. Gillespie,‡ adjutant.

‡ Major Archibald Hamilton Gillespie, son of David Gillespie by his wife Mary Stuart Post, of New York city, bore a prominent part in the steps which led to securing California to the United States. In 1845, President Polk, having in mind, doubtless, the conquest of California, selected Lieutenant Gillespie to go there as the confidential agent of the United States, which fact is thus mentioned by Gillespie in his testimony (1848): "Early in 1845 I received orders from the President and Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Bancroft, to proceed to California by way of Vera Cruz, and the shortest route through Mexico to Mazatlan, with instructions to watch over the interest of the United States in California, and to counteract the influence of any foreign or European agents who might be in that country with objects prejudicial to the United States." He carried with him this letter of introduction from James Buchanan, then secretary of state, to Thomas O. Larkin, the United States consul to California, to wit: "Nov. 1, 1845, I take pleasure in introducing to you the bearer hereof, Mr. Archibald H. Gillespie, as a gentleman of respectability and worth. He is about to visit the north-west coast of America on business, and should he stop on his way at Monterey, allow me to bespeak for him your kind attention. You will find him to be in every respect worthy of your regard. Yours very respectfully, James Buchanan." Two weeks earlier, Mr. Buchanan had forwarded instructions to Consul Larkin on the same subject, in which is contained the following passage: "Lieutenant Archibald H. Gillespie of the marine corps will immediately proceed to Monterey, and will probably reach you before this despatch. He is a gentleman in whom the President reposes entire confidence. He has seen these instructions, and will cooperate as a confidential agent with you in carrying them into execution." Gillespie carried with him a duplicate of the instructions, which he destroyed on the way, after having committed them to memory, for fear that it might fall into the hands of the Mexicans. He arrived in Monterey on 17 April following, where he communicated with Lieutenant Fremont, to whom he also bore despatches from Mr. Buchanan. Immediately after the latter object was accomplished the movement was begun which led to the meeting at Sonoma, 4 July, 1846, as above mentioned, from which it is clear that Lieutenant Gillespie was authorized by the President to construe his written instructions, "to watch over the interest of the United States," to mean, "to secure the overthrow of Mexican power in California, and its annexation to the United States." In one of the engagements which took place Lieutenant Gillespie was wounded. In November, 1847, he was promoted to a captaincy in the marine corps, and was brevetted major in the Major Reading continued in service until the close of the war; was present at the surrender of the Mexicans to Colonel Fremont, and was placed by the latter at the head of the commission on the part of the United States to agree with the commissioners on the part of the Californians on the terms of capitulation. This occurred 13 January, 1847, and the name "P. B. Reading, major California battalion,"* appears at the head of those signing the articles agreed upon. Shortly afterwards differences arose between Colonel Richard B. Mason, of the first United States dragoons, and Colonel Fremont. The latter deputed Reading to Mason to demand an apology, which was refused, and a challenge from Fremont followed. This was accepted, and double-barrelled shot-guns were selected as the arms. Fremont named Major Reading as his second, but the duel, owing to the intervention of friends, was not fought.

On the discovery of gold in 1848, Major Reading went to the gold-fields with a party of sixty Indians, whom, like nearly all the old rancheros then in the State, he employed to help him in mining. This party not only extracted gold in the river banks, but also found it in the gulches and creeks in the vicinity of the present town of Shasta, which locality was long known as Reading's Springs, and was the scene of one of the principal mining rushes in the summer of 1849.

In 1850, Major Reading visited Washington to settle his accounts as paymaster of the California battalion. "The disbursements exceeded $166,000, and had been kept with such neatness and accuracy, supported by vouchers, that the Auditor complimented them as being the best of any presented during the war."† He also visited Vicksburg, Mississippi, where he had resided and been engaged in business before his removal to California. He had failed in his business ventures, and the object of the visit was to pay in gold the principal and interest of his then outstanding indebtedness. This he did to the extent of sixty thousand dollars,—an instance of commercial integrity worthy of being recorded.

The following year, 1851, he was the Whig candidate for governor of California, against John Bigler, but failed of election by a few votes. "Thousands of old Whigs," says the Sacramento Bulletin in an editorial on the day of Major Reading's death, "still assert that he [Reading] was elected, and only prevented from taking office by the sharp practice of throwing out the vote of a precinct near the Oregon line on the pretence that it was in Oregon, although the same vote was afterwards admitted to decide the seat of a Democratic assemblyman." The same authority further says of him, "He has been known to thousands by his urbane and hospitable traits and useful life," and, referring to the overthrow of the Mexicans and the independence of California, "His services were efficient and valuable. By his sagacity, prudence, and vigor, and by the respect inspired by his personal character, he is said by persons familiar with the events of that time to have been a very useful accession to the American cause." The same authority adds, "He will be remembered long in northern California as one of the earliest to appreciate and labor to develop the agricultural capacities of that fertile and picturesque region." H. H. Bancroft, in his "History of California," writes, "Major Reading was a man of well-balanced mind, capable, energetic, and courteous; one whose California record seems never to have furnished material for adverse criticism." *

The Society of California Pioneers, at a meeting held shortly after Major Reading's death, adopted the following resolutions, drafted by a committee, of which Major Gillespie, his companion-in-arms in the California battalion, was a member :

"WHEREAS, It has pleased Divine Providence to terminate the earthly career of our friend and companion, PIERSON B. READING, by which event our Society has sustained an irreparable loss and the State been deprived of one of its valuable citizens, who was deservedly regarded by our people as a man of the highest worth and severest rectitude of character. Be it

"Resolved, That in the decease of Pierson B. Reading, frequently a chosen officer of our Society, we have sustained a bereavement whose only consolation will be found in the remembrance of the noble traits of heart and mind which marked his intercourse with his fellow men. Possessed of the most courteous manners, of enlarged views, and of a highly cultivated mind, united with probity of character, and the most dauntless bravery, he deserves that upon the tomb containing his ashes be inscribed the words that properly typify his life—Reading—the Pioneer."

Major Reading married at Washington, D.C., in 1856, Fannie Wallace Washington, daughter of Dr. Baily Washington † by his wife Ann Matilda Lee.‡ Mrs. Reading now resides in Washington.

242. JOHN GRANDIN READING<sup>6</sup> (Joseph<sup>5</sup>, John<sup>4</sup>, John<sup>3</sup>, Governor John<sup>2</sup>, Colonel John<sup>1</sup>) was born at Flemington, New Jersey, 12 May, 1812; died at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 27 January, 1891. He began his business life at Flemington, where, at the age of seventeen years, he engaged in the merchandise trade, and continued therein until he was thirty-two years of age, when failing health compelled him to retire from business. At the time of his retirement he had acquired a competence, and soon began to advance large sums of money to Mahlon Fisher, of Williamsport, Pennsylvania, to assist in the lumber business. He became so interested in this venture, financially and otherwise, that some five years after his previous retirement he again went actively into business. He associated himself with Mr. Fisher and others, having head-quarters in Williamsport, and soon was largely concerned in the firms of Reading, Fisher & Reading, planing-mills; Reading, Fisher & Co., wholesale lumber dealers; Reading, Bartles & Co., and Reading & Richey, owners of extensive tracts of timber land. Mr. Reading continued in these enterprises until 1878, when he gradually sold out his interests. He was for many years president of the Susquehanna bone company; for ten years president of the Lumbermen's national bank at Williamsport, and president of the Williamsport gas company from 1877 until 1885. When the Union Trust company of Philadelphia was organized, he was chosen vice-president, retaining the position until his death. He was also a

He was educated in the public schools of his native county, graduating from the Flemington high school in 1862, at which time Professor A. Rittenhouse, principal of the school, gave the following testimonial: "The bearer, Mr. Reading, has been a pupil in our school for about two years. He has made the most rapid advancement in his studies, and he has maintained a most strict propriety in his deportment. He is highly esteemed by both teachers and pupils for his amiability of temper, his goodness of heart, his integrity of purpose, his indomitable energy and untiring perseverance as a student, and for his sustained and consistent piety. We regard him as a young man of superior mind, and a person in whom the most implicit confidence may be placed; and it gives us a cordial pleasure to recommend him to the favorable regard of those to whom this may be presented." Immediately after graduation he was placed in charge of the public school at Unionville in that county, but relinquished the same the following year, when he volunteered in A company, third regiment New Jersey cavalry, in defence of the nation. He remained in the

Last Will and Testament of Governor John Reading

" In Nomine Dei, Amen. I John Reading of the Township of Amwell in the County of Hunterdon and Province of New Jersey yeoman, being favoured with health, of a disposing mind and memory (Blessed be God therefore) but in advanced Age, and calling to minde the uncertainty of Life and the inevitableness of Death, Do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament in manner following. First I recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God that gave it, and my Body to the Earth to be buried in christian & decent like manner at the descretion of my Executors hereinafter named; Nothing doubting of the reunion of Soul and Body at the day of Resurrection by the mighty Power of God, and trust to be Saved thro' the merits of my Blessed Redeemer Jesus Christ I will that my funeral Charges and all my just Debts that I shall happen to owe at my decease be justly paid and honourably and commendably discharged. And as touching the disposition of such Temporal Estate as God has thought fit (far beyond my deserts) to bestow upon me, and further than what I already have Granted and Conveyed by Deed duly executed to several of my Children both Sons and Daughters; Which said Conveyances are made without Payment of any annual Rents, Impositions, Burthens or Incumbrances whatever. But notwithstanding they are so Conveyed; I do find it needful and necessary, and it is my Will and Pleasure, and I do as far as in me lyes, Subject those Sons and their heirs executors and administrators and their Lands who have received Debts for their Several Homesteds, and those also of my Children to whom I shall Devise any part of my Real Estate if need require, shall be under a directory, and order and are hereby Subjected and Injoyed Severally to make, and Pay equally amongst themselves (according to the value of Land so held) all and every the hereafter mentioned Disbursements, Annual Payments, Expenses and Contributions as they are herein aftermentioned, Revised, Given or to be don and paid pursuant to the directions of this my last Will and Testament, as they may desire or expect a blessing thereto. And to obviate all seeming reasons that may be objected to an innequality (if any) in the Donations and Devises hereafter mentioned. And to prevent any uneasiness, and dissatisfaction that might accidentally arise thereby, I do hereby declare that I have Devised the Same upon due Consideration of their respective Circumstances a good Conscience and rectitude of minde with a paternal Love and affection to each and every of them.—having thus premis'd I proceed to dispose as above proposed. Having conveyed to my eldest Son John Reading, Jun'r. in his life time amongst Several other things the Tract of Land or ffarms whereon he did then dwell, Scituate in Amwell and afterwards dyed, and by his Will duly made, did appoint his wife Isabel Reading, his Brothers Joseph Reading, and Thomas Reading Executors thereof, thereby empowering his sd Executors for purposes mentioned to sell and dispose of such Lands as he was in expectancy of receiving from me by a devise in my Will when made. I therefore Give and Devise unto the Said Executors the Said Isabel Reading, Joseph Reading and Thomas Reading and Survivors, or Survivor of them their heirs and Assignes for the uses & purposes hereafter mentioned; All that and those Several Tracts, Parts and Shares of Tracts and parcels of Land Situate in the Countys of Morris and Sussex in the Province of New Jersey aforesaid (that is to say) The Northeasterly Part Share and Portion of a Tract of Land lying near to Zuckasuning Plains and the Heads of North and South branches of Raritan River, in the County of Morris being part of five hundred and thirty eight acres besides allowance for highways, besides fifty six acres of Pine right Land lying on the Northwest part thereof, Separated and divided from the South West part of the said Survey by a line running from a White Oak tree marked R. and seven notches South Seventy two degrees and thirty minutes East, fifteen Chains to another Corner White Oak tree marked aforesaid, which contains two hundred and fifty acres more or less. The one full equal and undivided half part of a Tract of Land lying on the Road leading from Greenwich by the Van Etta's ffarms to Hardwick in the County of Sussex containing Three hundred and three acres. As also the full equal and undivided Sixth part of three Several Pieces or Parcels of Land lying to the South East of the afores<sup>d</sup> Van Etta's ffarms in Oxford Township and sd County of Sussex, containing in the whole Seven hundred and two acres, heretofore Purchased, Taken up and Surveyed by me for Oar, Wood & water, and other Conveniences suitable for Iron Works. As also one full and equal fourth part of One thousand Acres of Land besides Highways being the Northwesterly part of Twelve hundred & fifty Acres Scituate at & Newtown, at or near the heads of Paulinskill in the afores<sup>d</sup> County of Sussex, the same into four equall parts to be divided. The one full equal & undivided fourth part of Robesons' Proprietary. The said Several Tracts Shares or Parcels of Land To be held by them the said Isabel Reading, Joseph Reading and Thomas Reading and their assigns upon Trust & Confidence and to the Intent and Purpose, That they or the Survivors or Survivor of them or the heirs of such Survivor, do and shall with all convenient speed after my decease sell the same, or any part thereof to such Person or Persons as they or the Survivors or Survivor of them or the heirs of such Survivor shall think fitt to raise money for the Payment of my said son John Reading just Debts, and if any over plus of the Consideration money shall remain after such Debts are paid, the same is to be divided equally, and is hereby given to his widow the said Isabel Reading, and to all the Surviving Children of the said John Reading Jun'r share and share alike excepting his sons John and Charles. granted to each other, but have hitherto acted upon honourable Principles. In which Survey is included a Bogmeadow said to contain about one thousand acres more or less, claimed by the Representatives of Messrs. Byard, Brockholst and Schuyler (tho' without Boundaries, Survey or Number of Acres) I do further hereby Give, Grant and Devise, All my said undivided Third part of the remainder thereof which is yet unsold; the said third part into three equal parts to be divided unto three of my sons (vizt. Daniel Reading, Joseph Reading and Thomas Reading,) To hold to them and to their Several and respective heirs & assigns in Severally forever. I further Give, Devise and Grant unto my Son in law Charles Beatty and Ann his wife and to their heirs and assigns forever, Two hundred acres of Land besides allowance for highways, Situate at or near the heads of Merrill's Brook, on Scotts Mountain, Oxford Township in the County of Sussex. As also one full equall and undivided fourth part of one thousand acres of Land besides allowance for highways, being the Northwesterly part of a Tract of Twelve hundred and fifty acres of land, Situate at and in Newtown, and near to the heads of Paulins Kill, in the aforesaid County of Sussex. The said one thousand acres into four equall parts to be divided in quantity and quality. And it is my Order, Intent, and meaning, That in all the several Tracts of Land hereby Devised to any of my Children in Partnership, shall be divided as near as may be in quantity as they shall severally hold out in measure by the old lines, and as near as possible in the quality of the Soil, Meadow & Timber. My Will further is, That if it should so happen, That if any of my said Sons their heirs or assigns to whom I have devised, or are other ways Intitled to any of the Homsteads lying in the aforesaid Township of Amwell, should at any time hereafter be vexed, sued or Molested by any person or persons laying a Claim, paramount to that by which they at present stand seised, and shall bring an Action or Actions against such Devisee, or grantee his or their heirs or Assigns, and due notice thereof given to the other Sons their heirs or Survivors, or to the heirs and assigns of the deceased, assignee, or assignees (if it so happen) Then it is my Will and Order, That all my Said Sons, they and each and every of them, and their above written shall joyn, bear, and pay an equal proportion of all such Costs, Troubles and Charges as the Defendant shall be put to in carrying on the Suit, or Suits which he or they shall be put unto in the defence of such molested Title, which if recovered from the Defendant or Defendants, and he or they be lawfully dispossessed thereof (or otherwise by Composition or Agreement which should be generally thought most meet and beneficial) shall equally pay unto the Son or Sons, or Defendants as aforesaid, or any such of them against whom such Recovery or Composition shall be had or made, so great a Sum or Sums of money for such lands as shall be recovered, or Compounded for, as shall be equall in proportion to the number of my Said Sons (the Defendant making one,) And to the performance of this particular clause, all the Estates of my said Sons called their Homsteads are hereby subjected unto, notwithstanding any Gift, Grant or Devise which by any pretence may be taken to the contrary thereof. I further Give and Bequeath unto my beloved Wife, Mary Reading, a Bond for fifty five pounds two shillings and six pence money at eight shillings per ounce due from my Sons Daniel and Thomas Reading, being the price of a negro wench heretofore Sold; Half a dozen of large Silver Spoons, Half a dozen of Tea Silver Spoons and as much of other personal Estates as shall amount to the value of Twenty pounds Proclamation money according to appraisement in the Inventory. As also the annual Sum of Twenty pounds Proclamation money to be paid her quarterly every year by all my Sons, their Executors and Administrators during her natural life. To be collected and paid her in manner aforesaid by one of my Executors hereafter to be appointed. As also the use of one of the Rooms in my present dwelling House, which she shall see fit to chuse with plenty of good and suitable firewood at all seasons of the year, to be cut and brought to the door of her room, and fires thereof at all times to be made, which is to be at the Cost of Thomas only, during her natural life, if he so long lives, if not by my Executors. And the use of the Riding Chair and a Chair Horse from Son Thomas, when and as often as she pleases, And as a Token of my Remembrance, I give unto my Grandson John Reading, eldest Son to my late Son John a silver Tankard. To Son George the Surveying Instruments. To Son Daniel a small Sword and Shot Gun. To Son Joseph the Quarto Bible. To Son Richard the long gun, and to Son Thomas the Silver headed Cane. I also Devise unto my said Son Thomas out of my said Personal Estate, all the remainder of the working and Draft horses which were used upon the farm he now lives on, with an old wagon, Harrow, Iron teeth, Plow Irons, Horse Geers, Tools and Utensils of Husbandry heretofore made use of upon the said farm and Plantation. Also one negro man Slave named Nero and Peg his wife. And as there is a Negro woman Slave called Nanny well Stricken in years, and subject to be disordered with Rheumatick Pains, I will and order that (if she is not otherwise provided for before my decease) she be maintained by any one of my Children, who is willing to take her while she is able to earn her Cloaths and Victuals, but when past labour, to be maintained by my Executors, but at the joynt Cost of all my Children their Executors and Administrators share and share alike. My Fourth Will and Pleasure is, That all my Books of what kind, nature or quality they shall be equally divided and are hereby Given unto all my Surviving Sons, and the eldest Son of the deceased in such manner as is most suitable to their Genius or Inclination, Excepting those of Church History, Religion and Divinity which are to be shared equally. Dr. Whitby's Paraphrase and Commentary on the New Testament in Two Vols ffol hereby given to my Sons in-law Messrs. Beatty and Mills as they shall best agree concerning the same. As marks of distinction of persons particular places of Internment, seems to be necessary, I further Will and Order That decent head

The Howell Family

THE HOWELLS of Wales and of the west of England are surrounded in the Cymric annals by legends as varied as those which compose the Nibelungenlied or the Arthurian circle. Amid the strains of martial music and the clang of arms in the wrestle for supremacy among the various Welsh tribes (temp. 900 et seq.) Howel Dda, or Howel the Good, stands out as the most famous of the early Welsh kings, and he is described in William of Malmesbury's Chronicle as "King of all the Welsh." The son of Cadell, the son of Rhodri the Great, his pedigree was traced by a tenth century genealogist to Cunedda, thence to Ann, cousin of the Blessed Virgin.* Howel succeeded his father circa 909, and, though subject to the lady of the Mercians, Æthelflæd, and her husband, Æthelred, as well as their successor, Edward the elder, became Lord of the North Welsh in 922,† and King of the West Welsh in 926.‡ He attested charters drawn in the reign of Athelstan as "Howel subregulus," in the reign of Eadred as "Howel regulus," and in 949 as "Howel rex." He is styled by Simeon of Durham, a cotemporary, "rex Brittonum." Stripped of legendary lineage and the interesting fictions of those stirring times, Howel's best claim to remembrance is as a law-giver, though the vast code of Welsh laws, which is known as the Laws of Howel the Good, survives only in manuscripts of a period much later than his own. Two Latin manuscripts, one of the twelfth century at Peniarth, the other of the thirteenth century at the British Museum, and a Welsh manuscript of the North Welsh Code, also at Peniarth, contain in their prefaces a full account of the circumstances under which the laws were framed. These set forth that Howel, observing that "the Welsh were perverting the laws," summoned a kind of parliament* to meet him during Lent, at the White House † on the Taf, and that the members thereof critically examined the old laws, abrogated some, amended others, and enacted new ones. The altered code ‡ was then promulgated by Howel, and a curse pronounced upon all who should not obey its mandates, after which he, with the Archbishop of St. Davids, the bishops of St. Asaph and Bangor, and others, specially appointed, made a pilgrimage to Rome, where the laws were laid before the pope, who also gave them his sanction. And from that time until the reign of Edward I. the laws § of Howel the Good remained in force.

The Welsh traditional judgment on Howel, who died A.D. 950, was that he was "the chief and glory of the Britons," that he loved peace, feared God, and governed conscientiously. He married Ellen, the daughter of Loumarc. Her pedigree is also traced by the tenth century annalist through Arthur to Constantine the Great and his mother Helena, who is, of course, claimed as a Briton. They had four sons, the eldest of whom, Owain, succeeded his father, and it was during his reign that the genealogies which have proved of such interest and even value were compiled. The other sons were Dyvnwal, Rhodri, and Gwyn, sometimes called Etwin. ||

HOWEL Y FWYALL

Among the many Welsh warriors of the Howell name whose triumphs and defeats ring down the ages, Sir Howel y Fwyall is one whom fact and fiction alike delight to honor. A descendant of Collwyn ap Tangno, ¶ the founder of the fifth noble tribe of North Wales, he inherited the martial genius of his sires, and fought with the Black Prince at Poitiers, and is by Welsh tradition improperly made the actual captor of the French King. He, however, displayed such valor and did such execution with his pole-axe on this occasion that the prince created him a knight, and "allowed a mess of meat to be served before his axe or partisan forever in perpetual memory of his good service," which mess, after it had appeared before the knight, was carried away and bestowed upon the poor, and the said mess had eight yeoman attendants,

* Which was composed of one hundred and forty prelates, all the barons and nobles of Wales, and six of the best esteemed in every cwmwd.

† Now Whitland Abbey in Carmarthenshire.

‡ This was composed of three sorts of laws. The first regulated the king's household and his court; the second, the nation in general; and the third, special customs pertaining to localities and individuals.

§ The so-called Code of Howel Dda, as it now exists, bears unmistakable evidence of later interpolations. Some of the details of its Court laws show curious traces of early English influence, and the systematic representation of the cwmwds points to Norman inquests, or the later shire representation in parliament, otherwise Howel the Good would have anticipated the English House of Commons by more than three hundred years.

who were afterwards called yeomen of the crown, found at the King's charge, with eight pence a day standing wages, which ceremony and stipend continued after the death of "Sir Howel of the battle-axe" until the time of Queen Elizabeth. Howel was also made governor of the fortified castle Cricciaith* by the Black Prince. His portrait and coat of arms were removed from their ancient home, Ystumllyn, to Broom Hall by Rowland Jones, Esq<sup>r</sup>, who purchased the former estate in 1837.

Howel Sele, a descendant of Bleddyn ap Cynfyn, Prince of Powis, founder of the third royal tribe of Wales, was another Howel who made war the chief occupation of life. He was lord of Nannau in Merionethshire, now famous for the extent of its park, its height above the sea, and the beauty of its forest-trees. Not far from the manor-house stood until 1813 the famous oak called "Derwen Ceubren yr Ellyll" ("the demon's hollow tree"), an object of superstitious fear and interest to the peasantry throughout Merionethshire.

Traditions vary as to the part borne by Howel in the terrible insurrection of Owain Glyndŵr, his cousin, but agree that he was an adherent of the House of Lancaster, and that meeting Glyndŵr and his attendant Madog in the park at Nannau, he was by them slain in 1401, and his body deposited in the trunk of the above-mentioned oak, where it remained forty years. After the death of Glyndŵr, Madog fulfilled the dying commands of his warrior master, that the mystery attending the disappearance of Howel should be unveiled. He told his mournful story at Nannau, and an incision was made in the tree, when the skeleton of the murdered chieftain was disclosed grasping in the right hand a rusty sword. The remains were removed and interred in the neighboring abbey of Cymmer, and masses were sung for the repose of the troubled soul of the Lancastrian Howel Sele.

This tradition forms the theme of a fine ballad by the Reverend George Warrington, printed in the notes of Scott's "Marmion." Madog there tells the entire story, which is full of interest to the descendants of Howel Sele, many of whom are in Pennsylvania † and elsewhere in America. The hollow oak is also the subject of a fine engraving, from a sketch by Sir R. Colt Hoare, Bart., made on the day the venerable tree fell, 13 July, 1813.

Military science was, however, not the only profession adopted by the Howells. History and genealogy had their representative in Howel Swrdwal, who flourished between 1430 and 1460, and who wrote a chronicle of Wales and a genealogy from Adam to Edward I., both in Latin.

The church also had its adherents, and one descendant of Howel Dda, of the

Howel name, the Right Reverend Thomas Howell, D.D., wore the episcopal vestment. He was the eldest son of the Reverend Thomas Howell, vicar of Llangammarch, Brecknockshire, and of Abernant in Carmarthenshire, and was born at Bryn, in the parish of Llangammarch, in 1588, and at the age of sixteen was admitted a scholar of Jesus College, Oxford, of which he subsequently became fellow. He was graduated B.A. 20 February, 1608; M.A. 9 July, 1612; B.D. and D.C. 8 July, 1630. On taking holy orders he rapidly gained distinction as a preacher, and was appointed by Charles I. one of his chaplains. He received the rectory of West Horsley in Surrey, and that of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, London, 13 April, 1635; a canonry at Windsor, 16 November, 1636; and the sinecure rectory of Fulham from the Crown, 25 March, 1642. Though by many regarded as a puritan preacher, Dr. Howell was early marked by the parliamentary party as a subject of attack, was driven by it from his London rectory, and subsequently sequestered for non-residence and expelled from West Horsley. He took refuge at Oxford, and was shortly afterwards released by Charles I. to succeed Dr. Westfield, deceased, in the important bishopric of Bristol, just recovered to the royal cause. He was consecrated in August, 1644, and was the last bishop consecrated in England for sixteen years. His episcopate was brief and unfortunate. Bristol was surrendered to the Roundheads, 10 September, 1645, and all the royalist clergy were immediately and violently ejected. Bishop Howell was among the chief sufferers. His palace was pillaged, his wife so exposed to the elements that death soon ensued, and he so hardly treated that he died in the following year. He was buried in his cathedral, under a flat stone marked with the single word "Expergiscar," at once his epitaph and elegy. The citizens of Bristol undertook the education of his children, in grateful memory of their worthy father. He is described by his cotemporaries as having a charm of manner, a seductive eloquence, and a rare insight into state affairs, as well as those of his own office. He married Honor Bromfield, of Chalcroft, Hampshire, by whom he had two daughters and six sons.*

His younger brother, James Howell, the quaint and delightful author of "Epistolæ Ho-Eliañæ," "Londinopolis," "Dodona's Grove," and numerous other works, was born circa 1594. According to himself,† his "ascendant was that hot constellation of Cancer about the midst of the dog-days." He entered Jesus College, Oxford; in 1610, took a degree in arts, and then, "being a pure cadet, a true cosmopolite, not born to land, lease, house or office," went to seek his fortune. After considerable travel in various countries on the continent and the acquirement of several languages, he obtained distinction. He became secretary to Scrope, Earl of Sunderland, sat in parliament for Richmond, Yorkshire, was one of the clerks of the privy council under James I. and Charles I., and subsequently the secretary to Robert

Sidney, Earl of Leicester, ambassador extraordinary from Charles I. to the King of Denmark. He was afterwards made historiographer royal, and was the first in England to bear that title. As a writer he was most voluminous, and embodied in his letters much interesting information gained from travel. His style was humorous and gossiping, and contained frequent allusion to facts elucidative of the history of the times. He was, perhaps, the first Englishman who made literature a means of livelihood. Wood, in his "Athenæ Oxonienses," gives a list of fifty or more of his publications. The antiquity of his family name was a matter of considerable interest to him, and in this connection he wrote, about 1654, to his cousin, Howell Gwyn, Esq<sup>r</sup>, of Wales, thus :

JAMES HOWELL

"And now that I am upon British Observations, I will tell you something of this name Howell, which is your first and my second name ; passing lately by the Cloysters of the Abbey at Westminster, I step'd up to the Library that Archbishop Williams erected there, and I lighted upon a French Historian, Bertrane a Argentre Lord of Forges, who was President of the Court of Parliament in Renes, the chief Town of little Britany in France, call'd Armorica, which is a pure Welsh word, and signifies a Country bordering upon the Sea, as that doth, and was first coloniz'd by the Britains of this Island, in the reign of Theodosius the Emperor, An. 387, whose Language they yet preserve in their radical words : In that Historian I found that there were four Kings of that Country of the name Howell, viz. Howell the first, Howell the second, Howell the Great (who bore up so stoutly against Aetius the famous Roman General) and Howell the Fourth, that were all Kings of Armorica, or the lesser Britany, which continued a Kingdom till the Year 874, at which time the Title was chang'd to a Duchy, but Sovereign of itself till it was reduced to the French Crown by Francis the first. There are many families of quality of that name to this day in France ; and one of them desir'd to be acquainted with me by the mediation of Monsieur Augieur who was their Agent for England. Touching the Castle of good King Howell hard by you, and other ancient places of that name, you know them better than I, but the best Title which England hath to Wales is by that Castle, as a great Antiquary told me."

After many vicissitudes, James Howell died at London in November, 1666, and was buried in the Temple Church. The inscription on his well-preserved monument in the Triforium gallery, descriptive of his chequered life, reads thus : "Jacobus Howell Cambro-Britannus, Regius Historiographus, (in Anglia primus) qui post varias peregrinationes, tandem naturæ cursum peregit, satur annorum & famæ, domi forisque huc usque erraticus, hic fixus 1666."

His will, dated 8 October, 1666, proved 18 February, 1667-8, names brother Howell, sister Gwin, sister Roberta ap Price, children of brother Thomas, viz, Elizabeth, wife of Jeffrey Banister, Arthur Howell, George Howell, also nephew Henry Howell. It is possible that Thomas Howell, of Gloucester county, New Jersey, was of this family.

William Howell,* of Wedon, in the parish of Waygate, gent., made his will 30 November, 1557, and named as devisees his wife Anne, and children John, Henry, Jacob, Isabell, Jane, Cecill, Agnes, Anne, Joane, and Alice; the poor of Wingrove, Hardwick, Wedon, Aylesbury, Whitechurch, and March. He gave a legacy to the high altar of Hardwick church and to the ornaments and bells of the same church. He also directed that his body should be buried in the chancel before the high altar of that church.

A bill of complaint by John Howell, of Wedon, 1573,† sets forth “that his father, also of Wedon, deceased, purchased the manor of Westbury in Marsh Gibbon, in the same county,” and that the same is now in the custody of his brother, Henry Howell.

“Henry Howell, gent., was buried ye 7th day of July, 1625,” ‡ and at his death his son Edward Howell became possessed of the manor of Westbury, which, on 8 June, 1639, he, then “of Grewelltorpe, in the county of York,§ gent,” conveyed to Richard Francis, of Marsh Gibbon, for the consideration of sixteen hundred pounds. About this time Edward Howell emigrated with his family to America,|| locating first at Lynn, Massachusetts, where he held five hundred acres. He, however, removed to Southampton, Long Island, in 1640, of which he was one of the founders, and was a member of the governor’s council of Connecticut from 1647 until 1653.¶ His son Major John Howell, prominent in the civil as well as in the military affairs of Long Island, was baptized at Marsh Gibbon, county Bucks, 20 November, 1624, and died at Southampton, 3 November, 1696, where his tombstone in the old graveyard bears the above-described arms, as is shown in the illustration below.

HOMAS HOWELL was one of the pioneers in the settlement of West New Jersey. By letters patent dated 20 March, 1664, King Charles II. granted unto his brother James, Duke of York, certain provinces in America, the grant covering what is now New Jersey. The Duke of York being thus seized, by deeds of lease and release dated 23 and 24 June, 1664, granted the latter province, "to be called Nova Cæsarea or New Jersey," unto John Lord Berkeley and Sir George Carteret. Nine years later Lord Berkeley sold his moiety or half share to John Fenwick, in trust for Fenwick and Edward Byllinge, who, in 1675, conveyed the same unto William Penn, Gawen Lawrie, and Nicholas Lucas, under certain trusts. Shortly afterwards steps were taken for a division of the province, which was accomplished 1 July, 1676, by the deed of all the parties in interest, Sir George Carteret receiving as his share East New Jersey, and those claiming under Lord Berkeley West New Jersey.* Previous to the partition, Benjamin Bartlett, the son-in-law of Edward Byllinge, became seized of one-half of one equal one-hundredth part or share of the right formerly of Lord Berkeley, one-fourth of which interest he, Bartlett, conveyed unto Thomas Howell by deeds of lease and release dated 31 August and 1 September, 1677, whereby the latter became seized of one-eighth of one-hundredth part or share of West New Jersey. Both deeds are on record in the office of the secretary of state at Trenton. The deed of release expresses a consideration of twenty pounds, and the lease reads :

"This Indenture made ye thirty first day of ye month called august Ano Dom 1677 and in ye nine and Twentieth year of ye Reign of King Charles ye Second over England &c. ## Thomas Howell

The influence which turned Thomas Howell's attention to America and led him to make this investment, is a subject of conjecture. Possibly the venture was pure speculation, or it may have been that he was one of Byllinge's numerous creditors, and that the conveyance to him by Byllinge's son-in-law was in settlement of the indebtedness; but, whatever the motive, Mr. Howell remained satisfied with his purchase, and finally concluded to withdraw from his possessions in England to enjoy those in the New World. On 31 August, 1682, he, with his sons and daughters, embarked at Deal, England, in the "Welcome," for the voyage made historic by the presence of William Penn, proprietor of Pennsylvania, then on the way to place himself at the head of the government established in his province. The "Welcome" arrived at New Castle "on the Delaware" 27 October, where her passengers, with the exception of Penn, immediately landed. Penn remained on the ship until the arrangements for the public ceremonies to attend his landing were completed, when he, too, came on shore and received the welcome of his people. Thomas Howell tarried with his family to witness the landing, and then proceeded to West New Jersey, where he took up his residence on lands surveyed to him under his purchase, on the north side of Cooper's creek, in Waterford (now Delaware) township, Gloucester (now Camden) county.* Judge John Clement, in writing of this location, says: "The survey he made . . . included what is generally known as the Jacob Troth farm on the east, and extended down that stream [Cooper's creek] nearly one mile, and back into the woods about the same distance. The tract of land is at the present day divided into many valuable farms. It was located for six hundred and fifty acres, but doubtless contained within its bounds a much larger quantity of land. Thomas Howell erected a dwelling-house on the same, and there resided for the little time he lived after the settlement." †

* Several of the Howell name emigrated to Pennsylvania about the time Thomas Howell arrived in New Jersey. Of these, John Howell, of Philadelphia, had numerous descendants, prominent among whom were Isaac Howell, one of the signers of the Continental bills of credit; Colonel Jacob S. Howell, clerk of the Pennsylvania board of war in 1776, and receiver-general of clothing of the Pennsylvania militia in 1778; Arthur Howell, an eminent Quaker preacher, who died in Philadelphia in 1816; and Colonel Joshua B. Howell, who commanded with distinction the eighty-fifth Pennsylvania volunteers in the late civil war, and fell in battle, 14 September, 1864, aged fifty-five years.

William Howell, of Castlebight, Wales, is another of the early Pennsylvania colonists. He is said to have come to the province with William Penn, and is claimed by one authority as the ancestor of Major Richard Howell, an officer in the Revolution, and governor of New Jersey from 1794 until 1801. Such claim would seem to be an error. William Howell makes no mention in his will of a son, and is believed not to have had male issue. Major Richard Howell was a son of Ebenezer Howell by his wife Sarah Bond, and grandson of Reynold and Mary Howell, of Newark, Delaware. Reynold Howell purchased a plantation near Newark in 1724, and probably emigrated from Wales shortly before that date. He is one of the patentees named (1758) in the charter incorporating the town of Newark. Dr. Lewis Howell, a brother of Major Howell, was a surgeon in the Revolutionary army, and died of fever on the day of the battle of Monmouth; and Richard Lewis Howell, a son of Major Howell, was captain in the United States army, and the father of Rear-Admiral John Cumming Howell, a distinguished officer in the United States navy. Lieutenant William Howell, another son, was the father of Varina, widow of Jefferson Davis, president of the Southern Confederacy.

Mr. Howell was heartily welcomed to his new home by the colonists who had preceded him, and his worth was such that almost immediately after his arrival he was chosen by his fellow-citizens to a seat in the legislative council of the colony. He met with the assembly which convened at Burlington, 2 May, 1683, and continued its sessions until the 15th of that month; and also with the assembly which met from the 5th to the 8th of September, in the same year, during both of which meetings important laws were enacted.* He was again honored by an election to the assembly in 1685,† and but for his early decease he would no doubt have continued to figure prominently in the public affairs of the colony.

In a deed executed shortly before his decease he is described as "planter."‡ He died at his seat on Cooper's creek in 1687. His will, proved 1 November of that year, is on file in the office of the secretary of state at Trenton, New Jersey, and reads:

"The last Will & Testament of Thomas Howell

"Item I give unto my son Daniel Howell two hundred acres of land he now lives on at his own dispose after my decease wife a strait line on both sides & the said Daniel Howell to have one hundred acres in the next taking up, if it amounts to so much after my three daughters have had each of them one hundred acres a piece.

"Item I give unto my son Mordecai Howell the house I now dwell in with two hundred and fifty acres of land where he pleases to take it and also to have two yoke of oxen & one cow and afterwards my stock of cattel and housell goods to be divided between my Son Mordecai Howell and my three daughters equally and also my Son Mordecai Howell to pay unto my three daughters each of them forty bushell of rye at the end of six yearss and also I make my sonn Mordecai Howell my full and whole Executor to receive what is due to me & to pay all my debts.

"And also my will is that my housell goodes shall not be removed untill my children heare from my wife whether she will com or not or whether she is dead or alive and if she doth com to have them during her natural life."

The will is unsigned, and was probably hastily written in his last illness. It appears to be in the handwriting of Stephen Penston, one of the subscribing witnesses. The other witnesses were Moses Lakin and William Willis, all three of whom made oath at the probate.

At the time Mr. Howell acquired lands in West New Jersey he was of Haxleston, county Stafford, England, but at the date of his emigration he probably resided at Tamworth,§ county Warwick, where he possessed a landed estate, which descended

Thomas Howell married, in England, Katharine —, whose maiden name has not been ascertained. The will of her husband clearly indicates that she did not accompany him to America. She doubtless preferred to remain at home until satisfied that the stay of her family here was likely to be permanent. Her son Mordecai went to England in 1687, and later returned, bringing with him his mother, who took up her residence in Philadelphia, where she died in September or October, 1695. In 1693 she conveyed eighty-eight acres of land on Cooper's creek unto Henry Johnson, who married her daughter Miriam, it being a part of the estate on which her son Mordecai then resided.† The following is a copy of her last will and testament :

" In the name of God Amen the seventeenth day of August one thousand six hundred and ninety-five according to the Computation of the Church of England, I Katharine Howell of Philadelphia in the province of Pennsylvania, widow & relict of Thomas Howell Late deceased of west New Jersey being of good & perfect memorie praised be the Lord, do hereby make & ordain this my last will & testament in manner and forme following—

2. DANIEL HOWELL<sup>2</sup> (Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in England about 1660, and died in Solebury township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, September, 1739. He came with his father to America, in the "Welcome," in 1682, and settled on the plantation given to him by his father, situated on Cooper's creek, Gloucester (now Camden) county, New Jersey. This estate, called "Livewell," and containing two hundred and fifty acres, he sold unto his brother Mordecai Howell in 1687. His landed interests were large and valuable. As the eldest son and heir-at-law he inherited the proprietary interest of his father in West New Jersey, portions of which interest he disposed of in his life time to various persons. In 1690 he removed to Philadelphia, where he served on the grand jury in 1701. The fact of such removal is shown in a deed of 29 September, 1690, in which he is styled as "of Philadelphia, son and heir of Thomas Howell of Gloucester County, deceased." Later he removed to Solebury township, Bucks county, and there resided until his death. By deed of 10 June, 1734, he conveyed unto his granddaughter Elizabeth Howell two hundred acres of his proprietary rights in New Jersey. A portion of this deed, by reason of its value in establishing the connection with the Howells of Amwell, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, is here given :

" This Indenture Made the tenth day of June in the year of our Lord One thousand seven hundred and thirty four Between Daniel Howell of the County of Bucks in Province of Pennsylvania, yeoman, of the one part, and Elizabeth Howell eldest daughter of Daniel Howell late of the township of Amwell in the County of Hunterdon and Western Division of the Province of New Jersey yeo : dec'd of the other part Witnesseth that the said Daniel Howell as well for and in Consideration of the natural love and affection which he hath and beareth towards the said Elizabeth Howell his Grand Daughter as also for the sum of five shillings of good and lawful Money to him in hand paid at and before the Sealing and delivery of these presents by the said Elizabeth Howell the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged he the said Daniel Howell hath given granted bargained sold conveyed and confirmed and by these presents doth give grant bargain sell convey and confirm unto the sd Elizabeth Howell her Heirs and Assigns for ever the just number and quantity of two hundred acres of Land to be had received taken up & surveyed in any part of the Western Division afs'd pursuant to the regulations Customs and Constitutions of the Division for taking up Lands in that Case made use of and provided and which sd two hundred Acres of Land is the same quantity for which he the sd Daniel Howell obtained a warrant from the Council of Proprietors for sd Western Division which sd Warrant bears date the 9th day of May Anno Domini in part of his Right of one eighth part of a propriety of Land in the sd Western Division which descended to the sd Daniel Howell as eldest son and Heir at Law of his father Thomas Howell late of the sd Western Division yeo : dec'd, who purchased the same of Benjamin Bartlett of Westminster in the County of Middlesex gent : by Indenture of Lease and release dated the last day of August & the first day of September Anno Dom : 1677 and is part of one full and whole propriety of Land by the sd Benjamin Bartlett in partnership with Samuel Coles of London Haberdasher purchased of Edward Billing by Ind'rs of Lease and Release dated the first and second days of March Anno Domini 1676

Children of Daniel<sup>2</sup> and Hannah (Lakin) Howell :

7. DANIEL HOWELL<sup>3</sup>, born circa 1688 ; died 1733 ; married Elsie Reading.
8. HANNAH HOWELL<sup>3</sup>, married Job Howell.
9. BENJAMIN HOWELL<sup>3</sup>, died 6 September, 1774 ; married Catharine Papen.
10. JOSEPH HOWELL<sup>3</sup>, died 1776 ; married Gertrude —.
11. CATHARINE HOWELL<sup>3</sup>, married William Rittenhouse.†

3. MORDECAI HOWELL<sup>2</sup>, ESQUIRE (Thomas<sup>1</sup>), was born in England circa 1662. He accompanied his father to America in the ship "Welcome" in 1682, and made his home with him on Cooper's creek until the decease of the latter in 1687, when the son became entitled to the home plantation of two hundred and fifty acres. Mordecai Howell was a large and successful land dealer. Shortly after the decease of his father he purchased of his brother Daniel the two hundred and fifty acres which the latter acquired under the will of his father. This estate was called "Livewell," but whether the name was given by Daniel Howell or by Mordecai Howell after the purchase is not known. He also acquired at the same time the estate at Tamworth, Warwickshire, England, which his brother Daniel had inherited as "eldest son and heir at law." Shortly afterwards he sailed for England to settle his father's estate there, and, presumably, to induce his mother to return with him to New Jersey. While in England he made his home at the ancestral estate in Tamworth, and here he remained until after 4 April, 1689, on which day he purchased of Henry Beal one-

† William Rittenhouse was born in 1695, at Germantown, Philadelphia, and died in 1767, at Amwell, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, where he possessed large landed interests. His will, dated 27 August, 1761, proved 19 October, 1767 (New Jersey Wills, xiii. 206) names wife Catharine, sons William, Isaac, Lott, Moses, and Peter, and daughters Priscilla, Susan, Hannah, and Anna. Catharine Howell is said to have been his second wife, but which of the above children were by her is uncertain. Mr. Rittenhouse was the son of Garrett Rittenhouse, of Germantown, and grandson of William Rittenhouse, who came to Philadelphia in 1688 and settled at Germantown, where he built the first paper-mill in America. The latter was the son of George Rittenhouse, born 1595, died 1661, the first advocate of the republic of Nuremberg, from 1624 to 1625, and afterwards the intimate counsellor of the Marquis of Brandenburg. Of this line was the eminent David Rittenhouse, of Philadelphia. (See Rittenhouse Family, Philadelphia.)

eighth of a propriety in West New Jersey. In the deed conveying this interest he is styled "of Tamworth, co. Warwick, Gent."* A little later he returned to this country, accompanied by his mother, and resumed his residence at "Livewell," where he continued until about 7 August, 1697, when he sold that plantation to Henry Franklin,† and settled on a plantation of three hundred acres, which he named "Christianity," the same being a portion of the propriety right purchased of Henry Beal. In 1686 he bought one hundred acres of John Reading, Esq, and in 1697 two hundred and fifty acres of Daniel Hall,‡ and in 1702 he acquired from Henry Tredway the Lovejoy survey. The latter included all that part of Haddonfield, New Jersey, lying east of Main street, as far south as Ellis street.§

As early as 1698, Mordecai Howell was commissioned one of the justices of the peace and of the court of common pleas for Gloucester county, and recommissioned 11 September, 1704,|| which position he retained until 1706, when he removed to Marcus Hook, Chester (now Delaware) county, Pennsylvania, where he settled on a plantation which he had purchased in 1704.¶ Some years later he took up his residence in Philadelphia, where he had acquired landed interests. His removal to Philadelphia was prior to 22 June, 1721, as is apparent from the following advertisement, which appeared in the Weekly Mercury of that date :

"To be sold in Chichester, alias Marcus-hook in Chester County, a large House at the corner of the chief Street in the Town fronting Delaware, Two large Stores, Two Stables, a Brew House and Copper, a good wharf where a sloop may load at, a large Garden and Orchard, Ten acres of Land most cleared. He that has a mind to buy, may go to William Hughes in Chichester and be further informed. There is also to lett for easy Ground Rents, several Lots in the Third Street, Philadelphia, over against the Starch Makers. If any have a mind to lett it, they may be further satisfied by Mordica Howell in Philadelphia."

In a deed** of mortgage dated 5 February, 1728, Mr. Howell is styled "Brewer," and the mention of a "brew house" among his possessions at Marcus Hook indicates that he conducted the brewing business at that place, but resided at Philadelphia. The Weekly Mercury of 1 to 7 April, 1726, contains this advertisement :

"There is a Plantation on Neshaminy Creek in the county of Bucks, in the Province of Pennsylvania, joining to the Ferry, within two miles of the River Delaware, it contains four hundred and Fifty-six acres of level land, near One hundred acres clear within Fence, an Orchard of above Three hundred bearing Trees, most Winter Fruit, a Log House with two Lower Rooms, two Chambers, four fire places, a Barn, an out house of Sixty foot long and Twenty Foot wide, not yet finished ; a stone quarry close to the water, a large swamp of Oak Timber, a large quantity of meadow Ground not Improved, and Navigable for a loaden Shallop to the Landing ; it is within three miles of the Town of Bristol, five Miles to Burlington, and seventeen Miles to Philadelphia, also 3 Negroes and Stocks, Household Goods, &c To be Sold the first Day of May by Mordecai Howell."

He was a witness in the noted boundary dispute between the Penns and Lord Baltimore. The summary of his testimony in the case is printed in the Pennsylvania Archives, second series, vol. xvi. p. 719, and is as follows :

"Mordecai Howell, aged 78, Says that, about 1682, he came up the Bay of Delaware, in company with the ship in which the plaintiffs father (William Penn) was, That he landed some time before Mr. Penn, at New Castle, Town, and was there when he landed at the said Town, but knows not how long he stayed there. That some time afterwards, Mr. Penn went to one Sanderlan's at a Place then called Upland, but now Chester, which is reputed to be about twenty miles above the Town of New Castle. That he can't tell how long he stayed there, nor knows for what end or purpose he went there, but has heard it talkt among the People that it was with the intent to have built a City there, but that he and Sanderlan could not agree."

Mordecai Howell married three times : (1) Elizabeth — ; (2) Frances Garret, widow of John Garret ;* (3) 9 October, 1731, Elizabeth Morgan. The date or place of his death, or that of his wives, is unknown. His only known child was by the first wife.

Child of Mordecai<sup>3</sup> and Elizabeth Howell :

12. THOMAS HOWELL<sup>3</sup>, born circa 1693, in New Jersey ; died 1753 ; married Rachel Clayton.

5. PRISCILLA HOWELL<sup>3</sup> (Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in England, and died probably in Gloucester county, New Jersey. She married Robert Stiles, of the same county, before 2 November, 1690, on which day they conveyed to her brother Mordecai Howell a portion of the land devised to her by her father. They resided on the north side of Pensaukin creek. Gabriel Thomas, the first historian of West New Jersey, thus speaks of Robert Stiles : "The trade of Gloucester county consists chiefly in pitch, tar & rosin, the latter of which is made by Robert Styles, an excellent artist in that sort of work, for he delivers it as clear as any Gum Arabick." † He died in 1728, leaving two sons, from whom sprung the family of that name in that locality.‡

Third Generation

7. CAPTAIN DANIEL HOWELL<sup>3</sup> (Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born at "Livewell," on Cooper's creek, Gloucester (now Camden) county, New Jersey, circa 1688, and died in Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, in 1733. He was among the early settlers of Amwell, and, while the date of his removal from Pennsylvania is uncertain, it is believed that it occurred about the time of his marriage, and that he settled on lands given him by his father-in-law, Colonel John Reading, the founder of Amwell. He was a farmer and miller, and at the time of his decease was engaged in the mining of copper, the earliest mining industry in Hunterdon county. His copper furnace he devised to his sons Joseph and Benjamin. Captain Howell in 1719 served on the first grand jury in the county; was commissioned, 4 May, 1721, coroner, and was the first to hold the office in that county; and in 1722 he became one of the first assessors, and the following year a commissioner of highways. On 20 September, 1725, he was commissioned one of his Majesty's justices of the peace and of the quorum for Hunterdon county, the following record of the appointment being in the office of the secretary of state at Trenton :

"Commission of ye peace for ye county of Hun- terdon                    1725.	}	A commission of the peace for the county of Hunterdon in the province of New Jersey in America To Lewis Morris, John Hamilton, Peter Bard, James Smith, and James Alexander, Esqui<sup>re</sup> all of his Majesty's Council for the province aforesaid and to Daniel Coxe, Thomas Leonard, James Trent, Joseph Stout, Jacob Doughty, Jasper Smith, Philip Ringo, John Budd, Isaac Herring, Nathaniel Moore, John Dagworthy, Joshua Anderson, Stephen Leonard, Daniel Howell of Amwell, Theophilus Phillips, Paul Vanderbeek, Abraham Rockhill, Adrian Lane, Edward Hart, Joshua Anderson, are Jointly &amp; Severally the Justices to keep the peace in the said County of Hunterdon. Whereof Daniel Coxe, Thomas Leonard, James Trent, Joseph Stout, Jacob Doughty, Theophilus Phillips, Jasper Smith, Philip Ringo, John Budd, Stephen Leonard and Daniel Howell of Amwell are always to be one, the Justices to enquire. He was commissioned an associate judge of the court of common pleas 10 February, 1727, and remained in judicial office until his decease. The latter appointment is evidenced by the following minute from the records † of the colony :

On the date of the last appointment he was also commissioned "Captain of the Regiment of militia for ye Township of Amwell in ye County of Hunterdon whereof John Reading Esq<sup>r</sup> is Colonel."* His advancement to prominence was no doubt assisted by the influence of his father-in-law, who was the foremost citizen of the county and one of the leading men of the colony.

Captain Howell married, about 1710, Elsie, daughter of Colonel John Reading. (See Reading Family, page 22.) He died between 9 September and 24 October, 1733. His wife had evidently deceased previously, as she is unnamed in his will, which follows :

" In the Name of God Amen I Daniel Howell of Amwell in the County of Hunterdon and Western Division of the Province of New Jersey Yeo : being weak of Body but of perfect mind and memory (thanks be to God) Do make and ordain this my last will and Testament in manner and form following ffirst I committ my Soul into the hands of Almighty God and my body to be buried at the discretion of my executors hereafter named And as touching the disposition of all such temporall Estate as it hath pleased Almighty, God far beyond my deserts to bestow upon me I give and dispose thereof as followeth that is to say ffirst I will that my funerall Charges and all my just Debts that I shall happen to owe at the time of my decease be honestly paid and justly discharged. Item I give unto my eldest Son Daniel Howell Jun'r a young brown horse with a straw and a feather bed in right and full satisfaction of his primogeniture or birthright. Item I give unto my son John Howell a Gray Mare formerly bought from Thomas Lambert. Item I give unto my Sons Joseph and Benjamin the Copper ffrnace. Item I give unto my two daughters namely Elizabeth and Mary each of them a feather bed with their furniture and Severall household goods & utensils of housewifery which was their mothers together with her wearing apparel. Item I will that all the rest and residue of my personal estate not heretofore disposed of be with all convenient speed sold and the reparations of the mill now in hand to be defrayed out of the same and when So don the remainder of the value thereof together with the Income of the mill & Plantation to be put out & expended for the maintenance and bringing up of my Children in their minority and when so don the remaining part thereof after Charges deducted shall be equally divided amongst my surviving Children share and share alike Item I give and bequeath unto my said Sons Daniel and John the Cornor Grist Mill and the Land thereunto belonging with the Geers & Utensols thereunto belonging Together also with Sixty Acres of Land to be taken from the upper Side of the ffarm or Plantacon whereon I now dwell fronting upon ye river so far down the same till a line from thence will include half of ye young orchard by the Barn and to run the sd Course to the next Hollow from thence (if it can be in a straight line) to the rear of the Tract saving always the Improvements to the old ffarm And also the liberty to lead the water in a Dich or otherwise from the present water course to suit their own conveniency To hold to them and their Heirs & assigns for ever in severalty as Tenants in Common and not as Joynt Tennants but in case either of my said sons should dye before the age of One & twenty years then the share of him so dying shall descend to and become the right of the Survivor his Heirs and assigns forever Item I give and bequeath unto my said sons Joseph and Benjamin the remaining part of the Plantacon whereon I now dwell with the Buildings Improvements and advantages thereunto belonging to be divided between them share and share alike according to the Quality thereof To hold to them in severalty and their Severall heirs & assigns for ever as Tenants in common and not as Joynt Tennants but in case either of my said Sons should dye before

Catharine, daughter of Heivert Papan, of Germantown, Pennsylvania, by his wife Elizabeth Rittenhouse. They probably had no issue, at least none are mentioned in his will. It is dated 18 July, 1774,* and names wife Catharine, John Howell "son of my cousin John Howell," "cousin" Daniel Howell, "cousin" John Howell's two daughters Hannah and Elizabeth, "neighbor" Barbara Edwards, "cousin" Susanna Quick, "old servant" William Brown. He gave a plantation of fifty-five acres to George Klinge, and charged him with the payment of a legacy of one hundred pounds to "cousin" Isaac Rittenhouse, but directed that should the said George Klinge die in the lifetime of the testator, his "cousin" John Howell should have the plantation. He also gave to said John Howell a tract of land, and appointed him residuary legatee and executor of the will. The word "cousin" doubtless meant nephew or niece, as that was then the usual way of designating a nephew or niece, and was so used in this will. John Howell was a son of Daniel, brother of the testator, and Isaac Rittenhouse was a son of William Rittenhouse, who married Catharine, sister of the testator. The exact relationship of Susanna Quick is not known, although it is probable that she was Susanna, daughter of William Rittenhouse, and had married a Quick.

10. JOSEPH HOWELL<sup>3</sup> (Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in Pennsylvania, and removed to Kingwood, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, where he died in September, 1776. His will, dated 29 December, 1773, proved 5 February, 1776,† names wife Gertrude, son Daniel, daughters Anna Smalley, Sydney Pettit, Rachel Everett, Jemima Reeder, and Phœbe Garner. His personal estate was appraised at four hundred and fifty-two pounds fourteen shillings and sixpence.

15. ELIZABETH HOWELL<sup>4</sup> (Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in Amwell, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, about 1714, and died about 1745. She is thought to have been the eldest child of Captain Howell, and had doubtless attained at least the eighteenth year of her age, as early as June, 1734, on which day her grandfather conveyed to her "in consideration of natural love and affection" two hundred acres of land. The date of the conveyance must have been about the time of her marriage, and it is presumed that this generous settlement by her grandfather was prompted by the favor with which he received her choice of a husband. She also obtained a landed estate under the will of her father. She married Lucas Ryerson, born in New York, where he was baptized, 9 April, 1704; died in Morris county, New Jersey, 1764. He was a son of George (Joris) Ryerson, Esq,* by his wife Anna Schout, and a brother of Judge Martin Ryerson, of Hunterdon county. He married (2) Hannah King, from whom he is said to have been divorced, when he married (3) Joanna Vanderhoof.

Children of Lucas and Elizabeth<sup>4</sup> (Howell) Ryerson :

40. MARY RYERSON<sup>6</sup>, baptized 12 November, 1737; married David Brown.
41. LUCAS RYERSON<sup>6</sup>, born 9 January, 1739; died 8 August, 1808; removed to and settled at New Gloucester, Maine; married (1) 1768, Abigail Ellery, who died 1792; married (2) Sarah Coombs; is said to have had thirteen children by the first wife and eleven by the second.
42. GEORGE RYERSON<sup>6</sup>, born 22 December, 1742; died 22 September, 1842.

16. DANIEL HOWELL<sup>4</sup> (Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, and died there, 1790. Letters of adminis-

* GEORGE RYERSON (or Joris, as in the Dutch), a native of Brooklyn, New York, was baptized there, 19 September, 1666; died 1749; married, 11 August, 1691, Anne Schout, widow of Teunis Derrick Day. She was born 17 March, 1666; died 17 March, 1743. He resided several years in New York city. On 11 November, 1695, Major Anthony Brockholst and Captain Arent Schuyler, in behalf of themselves and their associates, Samuel Bayard, George Ryerson, John Mead, Samuel Berry, and David and Hendrick Mandeville, received a patent for five thousand five hundred acres of land from the proprietors of East Jersey, at Pasquacnac, now known as Pompton Plains, Bergen (now Morris) county, New Jersey. At a later date, presumably about 1710, George Ryerson settled on his portion of the tract. He subsequently acquired further landed rights. He was for many years one of the justices of the peace and of the courts for Bergen county, a deacon of the Acquackanock Dutch church, and died possessed of a large estate. His will, dated 21 July, 1744, proved 29 March, 1749 (New Jersey Wills, E, 283), names sons John, George, and Luke, daughters Mary Reading, Blandina Hall, Anna Wessels, and Elizabeth Ryerson, and grandchildren Wessel, George, Evert, Luke, Jannete, Helena, Antie, and Mary, the children of his said daughter Anna Wessels, deceased. He gave his plantation called "Waggrow" to his son John, and the estate whereon he lived unto his sons George and Luke (Lucas).

His father, Martin Ryerson, emigrated from Amsterdam about 1648 and settled at Brooklyn. He was a member of the Dutch church there, 1677, magistrate in 1679, and constable in 1682. He married, 16 May, 1663, Annetje, daughter of Joris Jansen Rappalje by his wife Catharine.

tration on his estate were granted to his son Reading Howell, 25 May, 1790. Mr. Howell owned a tract of land in that county, containing two hundred and six acres, which was divided by his sons, 28 May, 1791.* He married Julianna, daughter of John Holcombe † by his wife Elizabeth Woolrich.

17. JOHN HOWELL<sup>4</sup>, ESQUIRE (Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>), was born in Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, 8 August, 1721; died at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 27 July, 1808. He received, under the will of his father, one-half interest in a grist-mill, and in a plantation of sixty acres, located in Hunterdon county, on the banks of the Delaware. How long he resided at Amwell is not known. His uncle, Benjamin Howell, resided in Philadelphia, at what is now Chestnut Hill. He was childless, and it is conjectured that upon the decease of his brother Daniel he became interested in the latter's son John, and induced him to settle at Chestnut Hill. The uncle died in 1774, and evidenced his esteem for his nephew by naming him executor of his will and residuary legatee and devisee thereunder.‡ John Howell engaged in the business of a saddler and harness-maker. He came to be highly regarded by his fellow-citizens, as is abundantly shown in his election as justice of the peace, to which he was duly commissioned, 7 June, 1780, by the supreme executive council of Pennsylvania. The minutes of the council contain this entry :§

"A return of an election for Justices for Germantown Township, by which it appears that John Howell and Joseph Ferree were elected; Whereupon,

"Resolved, That John Howell, Esquire, be appointed a Justice of the peace for the County of Philadelphia, and that he be commissioned accordingly."

He maintained the dignities and performed the duties of "the country squire" until 11 January, 1785, when he tendered his resignation to the council, as shown by this note in the records of that body :||

† JOHN HOLCOMBE was a freeholder in Amwell as early as 1707; collector, 1725; surveyor of highways, 1734. His will, dated 11 sixth month, 1743, proved 31 August, 1743 (New Jersey Wills, iv. 371), names wife Elizabeth, daughters Mary and Julianna, son Richard, grandsons John and Jacob (sons of son Samuel), granddaughter Elizabeth Colvin, and brother Jacob Holcombe. John Holcombe married at Abington Meeting, Philadelphia, 28 second month, 1707, Elizabeth Woolrich.

"A letter of John Howell, Esquire, of Germantown township, declining to serve longer as a Justice of the Peace, was read, and his resignation accepted."

He married Elizabeth Yerkes,* daughter of Herman Yerkes by his wife Elizabeth Watts daughter of Rev. John Watts. She was born in Moreland township, Philadelphia county, Pennsylvania, 29 January, 1725; died 11 March, 1793. Both Mr. and Mrs. Howell were members of the First Baptist church, Philadelphia, and later of the Ridge avenue Baptist church at Roxborough, Philadelphia, in the burying-ground of which they were doubtless buried. The following is his last will and testament :

"Be it remembered that I John Howell of Germantown Township in the County of Philadelphia and state of Pennsylvania, late saddler, being aged and infirm in Body but through the Blessing of God of sound disposing mind and memory Do therefore think fit to dispose of all my Outward effects which it hath pleased God to bestow upon me in the following manner.

Children of John<sup>4</sup> and Elizabeth (Yerkes) Howell, all born probably at or near Chestnut Hill :

46. MARY HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married Thomas Norton.
47. DANIEL HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married Elizabeth Yerkes.
48. HANNAH HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, born 30 December, 1752 ; died 28 October, 1820 ; married Major John Levering.
49. SARAH HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married Anthony Levering.
50. ELIZABETH HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married — Shuler.
51. READING HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married, 3 June, 1792, Mary Busby.

19. BENJAMIN HOWELL<sup>4</sup> (Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, circa 1724. The time of his decease has not been ascertained, nor can it be approximated, as the records furnish no settlement of his estate. He resided on the estate received under his father's will, located on the Delaware river at what is now Stockton, Hunterdon county. On 25 October, 1746, Governor John Hamilton granted him a patent for a ferry “over Delaware river from a certain public Highway & landing in the township of Amwell at the mouth of a Spring of water about a quarter of a mile a little more or less below a grist mill on a stream of water commonly called in the Indian language Wickhecheoke & also three miles above and three miles below the said place on the said river from New Jersey to Pennsylvania.” † Ferry rights were among the earliest public franchises, and were usually of considerable monetary value to the owner, as was the one in question, giving, as it did, the exclusive privilege of ferrying between the colonies here named for the distance of six miles up and down the river. Benjamin Howell retained the franchise during his life, and at his decease it became the property of his son Joseph, who held it until 16 January, 1813, when he sold the same to the Centre bridge company, a corporation chartered by the legislature of New Jersey to build a bridge over the river at the point of the ferry. It was over this ferry that a portion of Washington's army crossed on its memorable passage of the Delaware in 1776.

He married Agnes, daughter of Jacob Wooliver, of Amwell, in whose will, dated 22 February, 1774, Benjamin Howell is called “son-in-law,” and named as executor. ‡ Wooliver also mentions therein his daughter Agnes, then living. Benjamin Howell was living 1 May, 1779, when he witnessed the will of George Wilson, of Amwell. The sons below named are the only children Benjamin Howell is known to have had. It is possible that there were others.

Children of Benjamin<sup>4</sup> and Agnes (Wooliver) Howell :

52. JACOB HOWELL<sup>5</sup>.

53. JOSEPH HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, died 1821 ; married Sarah —.

30. WILLIAM HOWELL<sup>4</sup> (Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Mordecai<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>), was born at Marcus Hook, Chichester township, Chester (now Delaware) county, Pennsylvania, 24 May, 1721 ; died there in 1757. His will, dated 15 October, 1757, and proved 15 December, of the same year,* names wife Hannah, eldest son Thomas, daughters Mary, Martha, and Sarah (all under age), and states that his wife was "with child." The latter was a son,—William,—as Jacob Howell, brother of the testator, in his will,† dated 6 August, 1774, names "my nephew William Howell son of my brother William Howell deceased." William Howell and Hannah his wife, by deed of 18 May, 1751,‡ conveyed a tract of land to Richard Clark, which deed recites that Mordecai Howell, "late of Philadelphia Gent.," by deed of 8 January, 1724, conveyed one hundred and forty acres of land unto his son Thomas Howell, and that the latter, by deed of 6 April, 1751, granted a portion of the same unto his son William Howell. He married, about 1744, Hannah, daughter of John Reynolds,§ of said township, and was received into the Society of Friends, a few months before his decease, upon "making acknowledgment for marrying out of meeting."

to a trade. Samuel Howell was instructed in that of hatter, but early in life abandoned this calling to engage in mercantile pursuits. He removed to Philadelphia, where he established himself as an importer and merchant, and rose to prominence, becoming one of the leading and wealthiest merchants of his time. Some idea of the varieties of merchandise imported and sold by him as early as 1753 is gathered from an advertisement in the Pennsylvania Gazette of 18 October of that year, which reads :

“Just imported in the London, Capt. Shirley, from London, and to be sold by SAMUEL HOWELL, at the Sign of the Beaver in Chestnut Street.

“Ozenbrigs, cotton and linen checks, rod and zod nails, powder and shot, Irish linen, a good assortment of silk handkerchiefs, Cumberland and Scots linen ditto, black ell wide and half yd persian, black velvet, a good assortment of cambricks and lawns in pieces and patches, long lawns, 7/8 garlix, dark and light ground colise, two colors and blue ditto stampt cottons, writing paper, French verdigrease, shallons, Brussels, Camblits, Cloth color, blue green and black calicansoes, worsted damask black China and English toffeties, an assortment of black, flower'd and colour'd ribbons, light and cloth colour'd sewing silk, men's and women's hose, bobbin, Capes, quality binding, best hand metal buttons, an assortment of Scots thread, a good assortment of small books, Dilworth's spelling books, young man's companion, ivory combs, men's and women's gloves, best hyson, souchong tea, in qr canisters, silver watches, stone set in silver, sleeve buttons, best brass sleeve buttons, brown buckram, women's thimbles, pocket compasses with dials, best French gun flints, pepper, nutmegs, cinnamon, cotton, and silk laces, saxon green muffatees, silk cotton and worsted caps, an assortment of women's scarlet and cloth coloured cloaks, mohair twist, ferrets, fine and coarse 6 qr muslin, blue cloth colour, and green broad cloths, nonso-pretty, hat linings, buttons, and loopings, frog loops, coarse and fine bow-strings, pumice stone, seal skin razors, scissors, pistol, cap and cuttoe-knives, gingham holland, kerseys, German serges, red and embossed flannel, shoe and knee buckles &c.”

Mr. Howell early manifested his sympathy for the colonies in their opposition to the exactions and oppressions of the mother government, and when the attempt was made to enforce the Stamp Act in Pennsylvania he lined himself with those who determined to resist its demands. He was a party to the historic “Non-Importation Agreement,” which he signed, and was one of the prominent merchants selected to solicit other signers and to see that the agreement was put into effect. This line of resistance exhausted the patriotism of many merchants, particularly those of Quaker proclivities, but not that of Samuel Howell, who, when more heroic measures became necessary, was found among the foremost of those who planned to oppose and defeat the will of the Crown.

On 19 May, 1774, the famous Paul Revere rode into Philadelphia, sent here as a messenger from Boston to announce the passage by parliament of the bill closing the port of Boston and removing the custom-house to Salem, and to solicit support for the people of Boston in their troubles. News of his coming was spread throughout the city, and a call was issued for a public meeting on the following evening, when a large company of patriotic citizens met at the City Tavern. John Dickinson, author of the "Farmer's Letters," was made chairman, and a committee of correspondence, of which Samuel Howell was a member, was appointed to write to the people of Boston, assuring them of sympathy, commending their firmness, declaring their cause that of the colonies, and promising to stand fast for the right. The committee immediately organized, with John Dickinson at its head, and forwarded the letter of sympathy to Boston, and took such other measures as the crisis in their judgment demanded.

Early in June news arrived of the passage by parliament of two additional acts intended to still further harass the people of Boston. This increased the public indignation and led the committee of correspondence to arrange for a mass-meeting at the State-House yard (Independence Square) on 18 June, 1774. On the day named some eight thousand citizens assembled at the appointed place, and Thomas Willing and John Dickinson presided. "The meeting," writes Dr. Stillé, "took some bold steps, which became very important in the progress of the controversy. It not only declared the Boston Port Bill unconstitutional, but created a committee of correspondence with practical functions of great importance. This committee was to correspond and consult not merely with like committees in the other colonies, but also with similar committees to be appointed in each county of this province."* Samuel Howell was chosen a member of the new committee, composed of forty-three of the leading citizens. Steps were immediately taken by this body for a convention (or conference, as it was called), to be composed of delegates elected in the several counties of the province. Mr. Howell was elected from Philadelphia, and participated in the convention which met at Carpenters' Hall, 15 July, 1774, with Thomas Willing as chairman. "The actual weight and influence of the province was here gathered, and the convention acted as if conscious of its power, asserting colonial rights, condemning parliament, favoring united action and a colonial congress, pledging Pennsylvania to co-operate with the other colonies, and requesting the provincial assembly (which was already called) to appoint deputies to the congress."† By the vote of the convention, the delegates from Philadelphia were constituted a committee of correspondence for the province, and Mr. Howell remained a member of this important body until 3 July, 1775, when it was succeeded by a council of safety, of which Benjamin Franklin was the head. The council was, in fact, a board of war, and had the direction of military affairs in the province. Mr. Howell was not made a member at its creation, but in the following October the assembly reappointed the old members of the council and added several others, Mr. Howell being one of the latter. He entered actively on the business of the council, which was that of raising, arming, and equipping troops, creating a navy, building fortifications, procuring the munitions of war, etc.; and not only did he vote for such measures, but he served on special committees in furtherance of these ends, some of which services are outlined in the following extracts from the proceedings of the council :

“ Resolved, That Samuel Howell and Col. Cadwalader be appointed to purchase some powder.” *

“ Resolved, That Mr. Howell & Mr. Clymer be a committee to enquire into the quantity of sulphur that is now in this city.” †

“ Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Board that Mr. Wharton, Mr. Whyte, Mr. Nixon, Mr. Howell, Mr. Rob't Morris & Mr. Clymer, be a committee to contract with such persons as they may think most capable, for the immediate building and equipping a ship of war for the river service, to mount twenty eighteen pounders, and to provide the guns, necessary ammunition, provisions, and other articles fitting for such ship.” ‡

“ Resolved, That as it appears to this Board that the providing a number of Fire Rafts will contribute greatly to defend this city against hostile attacks from Men-of-War ; Mr. Howell, Capt. Whyte, Mr. James Biddle, & Mr. Owen Biddle, be a Committee to inquire into the construction of such Fire Rafts, and to give immediate directions for building so many of them as may be necessary, and Report thereon to this Committee.” §

“ Resolved, That Messrs. George Clymer, James Mease, Samuel Howell, Owen Biddle, Anthony Wayne, & John Cadwalader, be a Committee, with full powers, to complete an agreement with Mr. Samuel Potts and Mr. Bustead, for casting a number of heavy canon, and that these Gentlemen be requested to take Mr. Rittenhouse with them to Mr. Pott's works, or to take any other measures for effecting this purpose which they may think proper.” ||

“ Resolved, That for the further defence of this Province, a Floating Battery be built ; That Samuel Howell, Robert Whyte and George Clymer, be a Committee to have the said Battery completed as soon as possible, and that they purchase the Guns and other necessaries for her.” ¶

Mr. Howell continued a member of the council until 22 July, 1776. He was then re-elected, but declined the honor. During the same year he was elected to the assembly, receiving the highest vote in the poll. He became a contributor to the Pennsylvania hospital in 1754, and was one of its managers, 1784-9, and the president of the board 1786-9; was chosen one of the signers of the provincial currency in 1772, and in 1774 he was elected a member of common councils, serving in this capacity until its sessions were interrupted by the Revolution. He was a member of the “State in Schuylkill” (now known as the “Schuylkill Fishing Company”), the oldest social organization in the world. In 1788 he was chosen one of the port wardens of Philadelphia, and 19 March, 1791, was appointed by President Washington a commissioner of the United States bank.

His decease is thus noted in the Aurora of 14 December, 1807 :

“ DIED—at his seat, (Tacony near Frankford) on the ninth instant, in the 85th year of his age, SAMUEL HOWELL, Esq', for many years a Merchant of great respectability in this city.”

To all who shall see these Presents, GREETING.

Know Ye, that upon special Trust and Confidence in the Integrity and Ability of James M. Smith, of Pennsylvania, and do hereby and empower him to execute and fulfill the Duties of that Office according to Law, and to him and to his Successors, with all the Powers, Privileges and Authorities to the same in Right appertaining, as fully as he or they may lawfully do in and to the Office of the President of the United States for the Term being.

In Testimony whereof, I have caused these Letters to be made Patent, and this Seal of the United States to be hereunto affixed. Given under my Hand at the City of Philadelphia the Nineteenth day of March in the Year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety one, of the Independence of the United States of America the fifteenth.

By the President

Fourth Generation

He possessed a large landed and personal estate, the latter alone, as shown by the account of his executors, amounting to over two hundred and eighty-four thousand dollars. He married (1) at Friends' Meeting, Philadelphia, 12 December, 1745, Sarah, daughter of Daniel Stretch,* of that city. She died 28 March, 1770, aged forty-three years. He married (2) Jane G. — (maiden name not ascertained). She joined her husband in conveying land, 10 November, 1789,† and died at Philadelphia, 28 March, 1806, aged sixty-four years.

Children of Samuel<sup>4</sup> and Sarah (Stretch) Howell :

59. SARAH HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, born circa 1746-7; died in April, 1825; married Peter Stretch.
60. SAMUEL HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, born circa 1748; died 1802; married Margaret Emlen.
61. ELIZABETH HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married at Philadelphia, 8 December, 1767, George Douglass. They were doubtless both dead 15 February, 1808, when their daughter Elizabeth Douglass, probably an only child, in her will, dated in the city of New York, and proved at Philadelphia (Will Book, ii. 292), names "my late venerable grandfather" Samuel Howell, "cousin" Elizabeth Howell, "cousin" Elizabeth Stretch, of New Jersey, and gives legacies to John Barbarie, Otto Van Tuyl Barbarie, Mary Elizabeth Barbarie, of the city of New York, Mrs. Anne Simms, John Douglass Simms, Esq<sup>r</sup>, Nancy Douglass Simms, and Jane Amelia Watson Simms, of Virginia, Abraham Varick, of New York, and his wife Phoebe, "daughters" of Robert Pierson, of New Jersey, and to her "particular friend" Joshua I. R. Birch, physician of New York.
62. JOSEPH HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married Catharine Reynolds.
63. MARY HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married Mr. Pascoe, of Bermudas.
64. RACHEL HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, married Benjamin Thompson.

35. ISAAC HOWELL<sup>4</sup> (Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Mordecai<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born at Marcus Hook, Chichester township, Chester (now Delaware) county, Pennsylvania, 24 May, 1729, and died there in 1759. His will, dated 9 April, 1758, proved 10 March, 1759,‡ names "wife" who was "with child," and son Mordecai. The name of his wife § is not known. Thomas Howell, nephew of Isaac, in a deed dated 6 June, 1776,|| recites that his uncle Isaac Howell died seized of certain lands, "leaving issue one son namely Mordecai Howell, who also died intestate in his minority unmarried and without issue, whereby the premises descended unto and vested in the said Thomas Howell, he being the eldest son of William Howell deceased who was the elder brother of the said Isaac Howell."

Child of Isaac Howell :

65. MORDECAI HOWELL<sup>5</sup>.

* DANIEL STRETCH was a son of Peter Stretch, Esq<sup>r</sup>, the noted watch and clockmaker, who was a member of the common councils of Philadelphia from 6 October, 1708, until his decease, September, 1746. The son, Daniel, died before 23 January, 1742-3, the date of his father's will.

36. JACOB HOWELL<sup>4</sup> (Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Mordecai<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born at Marcus Hook, Chichester township, Chester (now Delaware) county, Pennsylvania, 24 March, 1730-1, and died there in May, 1779. He was a farmer. He married, 24 January, 1765, Ann Martin, who survived him. They apparently had no issue. By his will, dated 6 August, 1774, proved 27 May, 1779,* he devised his estate to his wife Ann for life, directing her to maintain his brother Daniel (who was blind) six months in the year, with remainder to said brother for life, and, upon his decease, remainder to his "nephew William Howell son of my brother William deceased, and should he happen to die without issue, then to his sisters, the daughters of my said brother William." His widow and her brother Abraham Martin were granted letters testamentary.

38. SUSANNA HOWELL<sup>4</sup> (Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Mordecai<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born at Marcus Hook, Chichester township, Chester (now Delaware) county, Pennsylvania, 21 February, 1737; died there in 1768; married, 21 May, 1759, Andrew Tybout, Esq<sup>r</sup>, son of Lieutenant James Tybout, of Kent county, Delaware; born 1734; died at his residence in Philadelphia (No. 55 Chestnut Street, old number), 29 September, 1815, in the eighty-first year of his age, and was buried 1 October, same year, in the burying-ground of the First Presbyterian church. Letters of administration on his estate were granted, 13 November, 1816, unto Klincken Johnson. The bond filed by the administrator is in the sum of one hundred and eighty-four thousand dollars, which amount indicates that Mr. Tybout was possessed of large wealth. In 1782 he was chosen by congress to sign continental bills of credit, and in 1790 was elected to the common councils of Philadelphia, and from 1786 until 1792 was one of the directors of the United States bank. He became a member of the "State in Schuylkill" in 1781, of which he was a councillor in 1782, and treasurer in 1789. He married as second wife Rachel Raymond, of Delaware.

66. REBECCA TYBOUT<sup>5</sup>, born 1760; died 1761.

67. SAMUEL TYBOUT<sup>5</sup>, born 1761; died young.

68. MARY TYBOUT<sup>5</sup>, born 1762; died 12 September, 1849; married, 18 September, 1783, John Perot, who died 8 January, 1841, in the ninety-second year of his age. Both are buried at Philadelphia, in Christ church burying-ground. His tombstone states that he was a native of the island of Bermudas. He was a wealthy merchant of Philadelphia. They had issue, but it is believed that none survive.

45. READING HOWELL<sup>5</sup> (Daniel<sup>4</sup>, Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey, in 1743, and died in Warminster, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, 26 November, 1827. He was an eminent civil engineer, and was led to enter such profession by the example of his distinguished grand-uncle Governor John Reading. In the early part of the Revolution he served as quartermaster of the second regiment, Hunterdon county militia.* During the war he removed to Pennsylvania, and, 5 April, 1780, was commissioned deputy-quartermaster-general of the Continental army, and stationed for duty in Chester county, Pennsylvania.† In 1789 the assembly of that State adopted measures for improving the navigation of rivers and for the construction and improvement of public roads, and the supreme executive council appointed commissioners to carry out these objects. On 2 October, 1789, Reading Howell was appointed a commissioner to explore, survey, and make necessary drafts of the rivers Delaware and Lehigh, his co-commissioners being Colonel Timothy Matlack and Colonel William Dean.‡ The work was immediately begun and promptly executed, as shown by a message sent by Governor Mifflin to the assembly, 9 February, 1790, reporting that "the commissioners to view the river Delaware, have completed the task assigned to them."§ The brief time in which the work was accomplished was no doubt largely due to the knowledge Reading Howell possessed of the subject-matter of the investigation from having been engaged in making extensive surveys in the State and in preparing a map of the same. In the following year Mr. Howell received a similar appointment, when, under a resolution of the assembly of 31 March, 1790, he, with Colonel Frederick Antes and Colonel William Dean, were named by the council as commissioners to explore the country near the head-waters of the Delaware river and east branch of the Susquehanna, and of the Lehigh and Schuylkill rivers.|| This was begun 23 May, and finished 31 August, same year.

Mr. Howell's most important achievement, and that for which he is best known, is his map of Pennsylvania. The earliest knowledge of the preparation of this map is gained from the message of the President and supreme executive council to the general assembly, under date of 9 February, 1790, which, on this point, states :

"We transmit herewith a memorial from Reading Howell, who is preparing a map of Pennsylvania, and applies for permission to delineate the North boundary line under the authority of the State. As we believe the engraving this line in Mr. Howell's map will completely answer the design of the act entitled an Act to establish and confirm the boundary line between this State and the State of New York, passed the twenty-ninth of September, 1789, without occasioning any expense to the public, we are of the opinion it will be proper to comply with his request." ¶

The assembly received the project with favor, and subsequently appropriated three hundred pounds to Mr. Howell to enable him to proceed with his undertaking. The map was completed and published in 1792, and bears this certificate of Samuel Caldwell, clerk of the United States court of the District of Pennsylvania":

"District of Pennsylvania to wit: Be it remembered that on the eleventh day of January in the fifteenth year of the Independence of the United States of America came Reading Howell of the said District, hath deposited in this Office the Title of a Map, the right whereof he claims as Author in the words following to wit 'A Map of the State of Pennsylvania (One of the United States of America) including the Triangle lately purchased of Congress and containing the Boundary Lines of the State as run by the respective Commissioners, with part of Lake Erie and Presqu' Isle. Also by actual survey the River Susquehanna its Northeast and West Branches, Tyoga, Sinnemahoning, Juniatta, Lehigh, Lexawacsein, Schuylkill, and the Western Rivers—Ohio, Allegeny, Conewango, part of the Chautaughque Lake, and French Creek: agreeably to the late Discoveries, Monaungehela, Yoxhiogeni, and Kiskemanetas and the larger Creeks and most of the lesser Streams, Mountains, the old principal Roads, with the many new ones in the Northern and Western parts of the State and the Portages and communications from the late Surveys by order of Government. The Divisions, Lines of the respective Counties, and Townships. Delineation of the Districts of Depreciation and Donation Lands, with all the other Districts in the new Purchase. The Seats of Justice in the respective Counties, Iron Works, Manufactories, Minerals, and other noted places by Reading Howell.' In conformity to the Act of the Congress of the United States, intituled 'An Act for the encouragement of Learning by securing the copies of Maps, Charts, and Books to the Authors and Proprietors of such Copies during the times therein mentioned.'"

He presented a copy of the map to the American Philosophical Society, in the proceedings of which, under date of 1 February, 1793, is this minute:

"The Map of Pennsylvania by Reading Howell of Pittsburg, with a letter of presentation. The map is large & beautifully executed Altho' the author was obliged, he says, to bring it to its present Form, from detached surveys, there is reason to believe, his Abilities and Diligence enabled him to avail himself, to good purpose, of those Documents. From such actual Surveys may be expected, in a work of this kind, the greater accuracy. Thanks ordered."*

Mr. Howell was appointed surveyor of Philadelphia in 1804, and held the office until his decease, when he was succeeded by Enoch Lewis, Esq<sup>r</sup>. He was the engineer of Thomas Leiper in the construction of a railway in Delaware county to connect Leiper's quarries with the waters of Ridley creek. The railway was built in 1809, the second, if not the first, in the United States.†

He married, 28 March, 1782, Catharine, daughter of Herman Yerkes ‡ by his wife Mary Stroud. She died before 30 June, 1821, on which day her heirs conveyed land of which she died seized.§

continued in this service until the close of the war, and on 30 April, 1787, was chosen major of the second battalion of the militia of the same county. Major Levering was highly esteemed as a citizen, and was frequently elected to positions of trust in his native town. He was of those who organized the Roxborough Baptist church in 1789, and was one of its first trustees, and in 1792 became a deacon. He had previously been a member of the First Baptist church of Philadelphia.

Children of Major John and Hannah<sup>8</sup> (Howell) Levering :

88. JONATHAN HAGER LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 7 November, 1778 ; died 25 January, 1834 ; married, 2 September, 1802, Elizabeth, daughter of Mark Rhoads, of Philadelphia, born 15 September, 1784 ; died 5 February, 1850.
89. DAVID LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 8 December, 1780 ; died in infancy.
90. ANN LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 23 September, 1783 ; died 7 February, 1871 ; married, 24 December, 1807, Samuel Stearne, of Chester county, who died 18 December, 1847, aged sixty-nine years.
91. JOHN HOWELL LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 12 December, 1785 ; died 16 May, 1825 ; married, 3 March, 1814, Margaret, daughter of Daniel and Mary Magdalen Hagy, born 9 August, 1792 ; died 12 April, 1869.
92. ABRAHAM LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 19 November, 1787 ; died 7 October, 1863 ; married, 2 April, 1814, Catharine, daughter of William and Catharine Hagy, born 26 May, 1792 ; died 21 November, 1883. He removed with his family to Indiana in 1854.*
93. HANNAH LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 26 September, 1789 ; died 20 January, 1876 ; married, 4 March, 1810, John Hagy, who died 26 March, 1864.
94. ELIZABETH LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 6 September, 1791 ; died in infancy.
95. SARAH LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 10 April, 1793 ; died 30 November, 1873 ; married, 18 October 1817, Samuel H. Slingsluff, Esq<sup>r</sup>, who was for many years a justice of the peace in Roxborough. He died 12 April, 1858, aged sixty-seven years.
96. ENOCH LEVERING<sup>8</sup>, born 7 December, 1795 ; died 24 June, 1875 ; married, 6 April, 1823, Sophia Trullinger, died 28 October, 1896, aged eighty-nine years and eight months.

49. SARAH HOWELL<sup>8</sup> (John<sup>4</sup>, Captain Daniel<sup>5</sup>, Daniel<sup>6</sup>, Thomas<sup>7</sup>) was born at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, circa 1761 ; married, about 1784, Anthony Levering, son of Jacob and Elizabeth Levering, of Roxborough, Philadelphia. Anthony Levering was born at Lower Merion, Delaware county, Pennsylvania, 11 January, 1759 ; died there, 24 March, 1826, and both he and his wife are buried in the graveyard of the Roxborough Baptist church. He was a miller, and owned a large tract of land and several mills in Lower Merion, on the Schuylkill, opposite Manayunk. In 1789 he was appointed one of the commissioners for making the Schuylkill navigable and for the preservation of fish.

* Abraham Levering was the father of Colonel John Levering, of Lafayette, Indiana, the author of "The Genealogy of the Levering Family," published in 1897. Colonel Levering was born in Philadelphia, 19 April, 1806. Early in the civil war he was commissioned by President Lincoln captain and quartermaster of volunteers, and served with distinction throughout the conflict. On 2 March, 1865, he was brevetted colonel.

Fifth Generation

Children of Anthony and Sarah<sup>5</sup> (Howell) Levering, all born in Lower Merion :

- 97. HANNAH LEVERING<sup>6</sup>, born 6 October, 1786 ; died 22 October, 1858 ; married, 4 April, 1802, Andrew Anderson, born 15 November, 1777 ; died 30 October, 1845.
- 98. HESTER LEVERING<sup>6</sup>, born 22 January, 1787 ; died young.
- 99. MARY LEVERING<sup>6</sup>, born 10 December, 1787 ; died 14 January, 1858 ; married Silas Jones, of Lower Merion, who died 6 May, 1850, aged fifty-eight years.
- 100. JOHN LEVERING<sup>6</sup>, born 18 October, 1789 ; died 13 November, 1878 ; was a surveyor ; married Martha Trasel.
- 101. ELIZABETH LEVERING<sup>6</sup>, born 27 August, 1791 ; died 23 October, 1873 ; married Nathan Lewis.
- 101½. ANTHONY LEVERING<sup>6</sup>, born 29 July, 1793 ; died young.
- 102. ABRAHAM LEVERING<sup>6</sup>, born 14 September, 1795 ; died young.

53. JOSEPH HOWELL<sup>5</sup> (Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, Captain Daniel<sup>3</sup>, Daniel<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in Amwell township, Hunterdon county, New Jersey ; died (probably) in Pickaway county, Ohio, in 1821. On the decease of his father he succeeded to the "Ferry" rights of the latter, and conducted the ferry until 1813, when he sold it to the Centre bridge company,* which had been chartered to build a bridge across the Delaware at the point previously covered by "Howell's Ferry." By deed dated 20 May, 1799,† Joseph Howell bought of John Wolverton and Rachel his wife eight acres of land near Prall's mills, and is described in the deed as "Ferryman." On 1 July, 1815, he, with wife Sarah, conveyed land in Amwell unto his son-in-law, Samuel Hunt, all the parties being described as "of Amwell,"‡ so that it must have been later that he removed to Ohio. Letters of administration on his estate were granted in Hunterdon county, 18 September, 1821, unto Benjamin Howell, both parties being styled in the record as "of Pickaway county, Ohio."§ He had wife Sarah, but whether she was the only wife, or the mother of his children, has not been established. Letters of administration on her estate were granted in Hunterdon county to Isaac Scarborough, and the record thereof styles her as of that county, while in a letter of attorney which she executed, 21 October, 1828, she is called "of Pickaway county, Ohio."||

- 103. BENJAMIN HOWELL<sup>6</sup>, married Elizabeth —.
- 104. MARY HOWELL<sup>6</sup>, married, 5 February, 1806, Matthias, son of Peter Case, of Hunterdon county.

¶ It has been difficult to obtain accurate information as to the family of Joseph Howell. On 4 July, 1827, Benjamin Howell, "of Solebury, Bucks Co., Pa.," and Elizabeth his wife, Samuel Hunt and Agnes his wife, and Mary Case conveyed the interest of the estate of Joseph Bake in a tavern at Centre Bridge, "long known as Howell's Tavern" (Hunterdon County Deeds, xliii. 21), and on 22 September, same year, the same parties quitclaimed for themselves and as "heirs executors and administrators of Delilah and Clarissa Howell deceased," certain lands in Hunterdon. (Hunterdon County Special Deeds, i. 482.) From these it is inferred that Matthias Case, husband of Mary Howell, had deceased, and it is evident that the daughters, Delilah and Clarissa Howell, had also deceased, unmarried. In deed dated 21 October, 1828, Mary Case is described as "of Franklin county, Ohio." (Hunterdon County Special Deeds, ii. 22.)

55. THOMAS HOWELL<sup>5</sup> (William<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Mordecai<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born in Chichester township, Chester (now Delaware) county, Pennsylvania. He was probably the Thomas Howell who died at Philadelphia, 22 August, 1813, aged seventy years, and was buried in Friends' burying-ground, the Friends' burial records noting that "he was not a Friend." He married, 8 April, 1777, Ann Barker, who was buried at Philadelphia, 23 December, 1780.* In deed dated 6 June, 1776, he is styled "of Philadelphia, tailor," and by the same he conveyed land in Chester county to Archibald Dick. The deed recites that the land in question was granted by Samuel Howell, of Philadelphia, 7 June, 1758, unto Isaac Howell. Of Thomas Howell's family but little is known. There may have been children other than those here named.

59. SARAH HOWELL<sup>5</sup> (Samuel<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Mordecai<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>) was born at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, circa 1746-7; died in Burlington county, New Jersey, in April, 1825. In her will, dated 18 February, 1811, proved 27 April, 1825, she describes herself as of "New Hanover, Burlington county, New Jersey, widow of Peter Stretch, Esq<sup>r</sup>," and names daughter Elizabeth, son Joseph H., daughter Mary (wife of Theodorus Van Wyck), and son Samuel. In a codicil dated at New Mills, Burlington county, 19 October, 1818, she recites that her son Joseph is deceased, and names granddaughter Sarah Van Wyck, granddaughter Sarah Stretch, and grandson Peter Stretch (children of her son Joseph, deceased), and Mary, "widow of my son Joseph H. Stretch;" and in a second codicil, dated 8 January, 1820, she names granddaughter Sarah Stretch, grandchildren Abraham, Philip, and Sarah Van Wyck, and appoints as executors Thomas R. Howell and daughter Elizabeth Stretch. She married at Philadelphia, 8 March, 1770, Peter Stretch, Esq<sup>r</sup>, son of Thomas Stretch, Esq<sup>r</sup>, † by his wife Mary Ann Robbins. On 9 March, 1776, and again, 8 August, 1778, Peter Stretch was chosen by congress a signer of the continental bills of credit; in 1778 he served as private in one of the light infantry companies of Philadelphia; and after the British evacuated the city he was one of those who associated "to bring to justice all tories within their knowledge." He later settled in Burlington county, New Jersey.

† THOMAS STRETCH, son of Peter Stretch, Esquire, was born in England, and came to Philadelphia with his parents in 1702. He was one of the founders of the "Colony in Schuylkill," and its first governor, which position he held from 1732 until his decease in 1765. He was buried in Friends' burial-ground at Philadelphia, 19 October, 1765, being at his decease in his seventieth year. He married, 29 July, 1743, Mary Ann, daughter of Samuel and Ann Robbins.

- 111. ELIZABETH STRETCH<sup>6</sup>, died unmarried.
- 112. MARY HOWELL STRETCH<sup>6</sup>, died 4 April, 1843; married, 14 April, 1800, Theodorus Van Wyck.
- 113. JOSEPH HOWELL STRETCH<sup>6</sup>, married, 2 May, 1811, Mary Jones.*
- 114. SAMUEL STRETCH<sup>6</sup>.

60. SAMUEL HOWELL<sup>5</sup>, JUNIOR (Samuel<sup>4</sup>, Thomas<sup>3</sup>, Mordecai<sup>2</sup>, Thomas<sup>1</sup>), was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, circa 1748; died there, 31 October, 1802. He was an iron merchant at the time of his decease, but had some time previously "followed the sea." In a deed of 6 July, 1791, he is styled "mariner." In the newspaper mention of the marriage of his daughter Sarah, she is called "Sarah Howell, daughter of Captain Samuel Howell,"† and Samuel Howell, the elder, referring in his will to his son Samuel (then deceased), speaks of him as "Captain Howell." It is not, however, definitely known whether the title "Captain" was derived from service in the merchant marine or in the militia, though it is believed that it was from service in the latter, and that he is the Captain Howell mentioned in the newspapers of 1799 as the commander of a company in the "McPherson Blues." He was in 1774 one of the founders of the first troop Philadelphia city cavalry (now popularly known as "The City Troop"), and served with this organization as first corporal in the battles of Trenton, Princeton,‡ Brandywine, and Germantown; also in the "Whiskey Insurrection," in 1794, at which time he was orderly sergeant. He continued an active member of the "Troop" until 19 June, 1798, when he was placed on the honorary roll.§ He became a contributor to the Pennsylvania hospital in 1772; member of the Gloucester fox-hunting club in 1773, and of the "State in Schuylkill"

* From the will of the mother of Joseph Howell Stretch it appears that the latter had at least a daughter, Sarah, and a son, Peter.

† Pennsylvania Gazette of 15 April, 1797.

‡ At the close of the New Jersey campaign, George Washington gave the following testimonial to the service of the "troop":

Discharge of General Washington.

"The Philadelphia troop of light horse, under Captain Morris, having performed their tour of duty, are discharged for the present. I take this opportunity of returning my most sincere thanks to the captain, and to the gentlemen who compose the troop, for the many essential services which they have rendered their country and to me personally, during the course of this campaign. Though composed of gentlemen of fortune, they have shown a noble example of discipline and subordination, and in several actions have shown a spirit of bravery which will ever do honor to them, and will ever be gratefully remembered by me.

"GEORGE WASHINGTON.

in 1784. His death is thus chronicled in the Pennsylvania Gazette of 3 November, 1802 :*

"DIED at his seat in the county of Philadelphia, on Friday morning last, Samuel Howell, Jun<sup>r</sup> Esquire. This Gentleman participated early in the dangers and fatigues of the American Revolution, and on a variety of occasions, showed himself ready and willing to render service to his country. The integrity of his heart and benevolence of his disposition, endeared him to a large circle of acquaintances. His remains were on Sunday morning deposited in the Friends' burying ground at Frankford."

He married at Philadelphia,† 23 May, 1771, Margaret, daughter of George Emlen,‡ an eminent merchant of Philadelphia, by his wife Anne Reckless. Mrs. Howell was born at Philadelphia in 1750; died there, 4 May, 1822.

Children of Samuel<sup>s</sup> and Margaret (Emlen) Howell, born at Philadelphia :

115. SAMUEL EMLEN HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 25 June, 1772; died 27 March, 1839; married Mary Whitlock Dawes.
116. ANNE EMLEN HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 1773; married, 4 February, 1796, Richard Rodman Smith.
117. SARAH HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 1775; died in 1798; married, 13 April, 1797, Honorable Walter Franklin, who became attorney-general of Pennsylvania in 1809.
118. GEORGE HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 1 January, 1777; died August, 1852; married Harriet Olmstead.
119. MARY HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 18 November, 1778; died 3 March, 1836; married Benjamin Jones.
120. ELIZABETH HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 1 November, 1779; died 14 August, 1867; married Dr. John C. Warner.
121. JOSEPH EMLEN HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 1781; died in 1827; married Sarah Powel Montgomery.

126. HANNAH LOGAN HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 27 April, 1789; died 27 July, 1872; married Dr. John Burton.
127. ALETTA HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, born 1790; died 1795.
128. JANE A. HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, died in 1852; married her cousin, Thomas Reynolds Howell (No. 130).
129. EMELINE HOWELL<sup>s</sup>, married Benjamin Blythe.

* The Histories of the First Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry, and the "State in Schuylkill," have confused the Samuels Howell. It is the father who joined the latter organization in 1769, and was one of the United States bank commissioners. The son became a member of the "State in Schuylkill" in 1784. The history of the club gives dates of birth and death to the son that belong to Samuel Howell, a son of Joseph and Hannah (Hudson) Howell, not of the above family.

† Friends' Records.

‡ He was a grandson of George Emlen, an early Quaker colonist and the founder of the well-known Philadelphia family of that name. He married at Philadelphia (1) 12 November, 1685, Eleanor, daughter of Nathaniel Allen; (2) 25 May, 1694, Hannah Garrett, and died at Philadelphia in 1710. He had by the latter a son, George Emlen, born at Philadelphia, 7 July, 1695; died there in 1759; was elected a member of the common councils in 1730, in which he served many years; married, in 1716, Mary Heath, daughter of Robert and Susanna Heath, born in England, and died at Philadelphia, 1 August, 1771, aged eighty-four years. She was a Quaker preacher. Their son, George Emlen (named in the text), married, 5 December, 1740, Anne Reckless, daughter of Joseph Reckless, of Burlington county, New Jersey, by his wife Margaret Satterthwait. Mr. Emlen died in 1776.

* By deed dated 22 March, 1811, Thomas R. Howell, "of New Hanover, Burlington county," conveyed unto Benjamin Jones, of Philadelphia, sundry estates in Burlington county. The deed recites that his "maternal grandfather Thomas Reynolds, Esq<sup>r</sup>," became entitled to one-fourth part of "Mt. Misery Mill" and land in Burlington and Monmouth counties, and by deed of 30 May, 1797, conveyed the same to said Thomas R. Howell ; that Joseph Howell, the father of said Thomas R. Howell, became entitled to one-fourth part of divers tracts of land situate in the counties of Burlington and Monmouth, in conjunction with John Lacy, Clayton Earl, and Joseph Ridgway, "a company to make and manufacture iron, called the Hanover Company," and that said Joseph Howell died intestate, and that the said one-fourth interest became the property of his "only son and heir, the said Thomas R. Howell." (Burlington County Deeds, x. 590.)

Anthony Yerkes and some of his Descendants

ANTHONY YERKES,* the founder of the Yerkes family in the United States, emigrated from Germany and settled in Germantown, Pennsylvania, about 1700, possibly a few years prior to that date. He was accompanied by his wife Margaret, son Herman, and probably other children. He served on a jury at a court held in Germantown, 11 September, 1702, and in the following year he was elected one of the burgesses of Germantown. The records of the borough, under date of 28 December, 1703, contain the following entry :

“Arents Klinker, Bailiff, Hans Henrich Meels, Peter Schumaker Jr and Anthony Gerkes three eldest burgesses, Simon Andrews Recorder and William Le Weis constable, were all attested to serve in their respective places.”

The bailiff and burgesses were the chief public functionaries of the borough, and the selections for these offices were from among the men of importance in the settlement. Klinker, the bailiff, is said to have come to Philadelphia with William Penn, and to have built the first two-story house in Germantown, Penn attending the “raising dinner.” † Schumaker and Meels, the associates of Yerkes in the burgess-ship, figured prominently in the early history of Germantown. The former, with Klinker, was appointed in 1701 on a committee to collect subscriptions for a school and arrange with a teacher.

Anthony Yerkes removed from Germantown to the manor of Moreland, Philadelphia (now Montgomery) county, about 1709, in which year he purchased ‡ from John Holme three hundred acres, a part of said manor, for which he paid seventy-five pounds. His son John was a student in the school of the noted Francis Daniel Pastorius. His wife Margaret died before 17 November, 1705, on which day he married,§ as second wife, Sarah Eaton,|| widow of Reverend John Watts, the eminent pastor of the Pennepek Baptist church. She died 27 June, 1723. The date of the death of Mr. Yerkes is unknown. He was living 20 August, 1723, when he conveyed* to his son Herman two hundred acres of the land which he acquired in 1709; but he was dead before 1 March, 1744, when the son sold a portion of the land, the deed for the same reciting the death of the father.

2. HERMAN YERKES<sup>2</sup>, born circa 1689, in Germany; died 1750-1; married Elizabeth Watts.
3. ADOLPHUS YERKES<sup>2</sup>, † was living 5 October, 1744; married Ann —.
4. JOHN YERKES<sup>2</sup>, probably died unmarried.

2. HERMAN YERKES<sup>2</sup> (Anthony<sup>1</sup>) was born in Germany circa 1689, and emigrated to Germantown, Pennsylvania, with his parents, and removed with them, about 1709, to the manor of Moreland. In 1723 his father conveyed unto him, as before mentioned, two hundred acres of land in said manor, also a part interest in a grist-mill. The remaining interest doubtless belonged at that time to the son, who was engaged with his father in the milling business. The home of the family was the farm now or lately owned and occupied by Joseph Evans, north of the site of the burned paper-mill, Moreland township, Montgomery county. Herman Yerkes accumulated wealth rapidly, due in part, no doubt, to the assistance of his eight sturdy sons. At the time of his death he had acquired and distributed to his sons about eight hundred acres of the best farm land along the Pennypack creek, lying in the neighborhood of Shelmire's mill, Huntingdon valley, and the present village of Yerkesville. He died between 2 May, 1750, and 4 March, 1750-1. His will bears the former, and was probated at Philadelphia on the latter date. He married, † 8 February, 1711, Elizabeth, daughter of Reverend John Watts by his wife Sarah Eaton, born in Philadelphia county, 15 April, 1689; died there, 11 October, 1756.

Children of Herman<sup>2</sup> and Elizabeth (Watts) Yerkes, born in Moreland township, Philadelphia (now Montgomery) county, Pennsylvania.

5. ANTHONY YERKES<sup>3</sup>, § born 28 November, 1712; died 9 March, 1791.
6. JOHN YERKES<sup>3</sup>, born 21 February, 1714; died in 1790; married Alice, daughter of John McVaugh, and had issue.
7. SARAH YERKES<sup>3</sup>, born 15 July, 1716; married, 6 March, 1747, Daniel Evans.

* Philadelphia Deeds, H, viii. 414.

† He had son Anthony, who died in 1744, and son Samuel and daughter Hannah. Letters of administration on Anthony's estate were granted at Philadelphia, 5 October, 1744, unto two of his creditors, John Harrison and James Eaton, his father and mother, Adolphus and Ann Yerkes, declining to administer.

‡ Register of Christ Church, Philadelphia.

§ In his will, dated 22 February, 1790, proved 26 April, 1791, he is styled "Anthony Yerkes, Sr. of the Manor of Moreland, county of Montgomery, late Philadelphia." The will names eldest son Obadiah, daughter Elizabeth Fulton, of Virginia, sons Anthony and David, son Joseph, of Philadelphia, daughter Sarah Grant, son Jacob, father Herman Yerkes, and brother Elias Yerkes. 1795, and was buried in the graveyard of the Southampton (Bucks county) Baptist church. He was a large land-owner and a prosperous miller and farmer, and is believed to be the Silas Yerkes who served in the Revolution.* On the decease of his father, partly through inheritance and partly by purchase from his mother and brothers, he became possessed of the homestead of his father and grandfather, which included what is now known as Shelmire's Mills. It is one of the most picturesque places in Montgomery county. Mr. Yerkes was a prominent member of the Southampton Baptist church. His will,† dated 21 March, 1795, was proved 22 October, 1795, and names the children below given, with the exception of Thomas and John, both of whom are supposed to have died before the will was made. He was married by the Reverend Joshua Potts, 14 June, 1750, to Hannah, eldest child of Thomas ‡ and Esther Dungan, of Warminster township, Bucks county, Pennsylvania. She was born in the latter county, 24 September, 1725, and died at the seat of her husband, 22 August, 1792.

37. REVEREND STEPHEN YERKES, D.D.<sup>a</sup> (Stephen<sup>4</sup>, Herman<sup>3</sup>, Herman<sup>2</sup>, Anthony<sup>1</sup>), was born in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, 27 June, 1817 ; died at Danville, Kentucky, 28 March, 1896. His father dying during his childhood, he was placed under the guardianship of his uncle, Harman Yerkes, by whom he was carefully educated. Having received all that could be obtained in the way of education at home and at the country schools, he was sent to a classical academy near Philadelphia. There he remained for three years ; and in 1833, at the age of sixteen, entered the freshman class at Yale college, from which he was graduated in 1837. Among his classmates were Chief-Justice Waite, Honorable William M. Evarts, Professor Edward Silliman, and Honorable Edwards Pierpont. A few months after graduation Mr. Yerkes went to Baltimore, Maryland, where he engaged in teaching, a work which, along varied lines and upon steadily ascending planes, he was so faithfully to prosecute for nearly sixty years. He connected himself with the church of which Reverend Robert J. Breckenridge, D.D., was pastor, under whose direction he studied theology. In 1840 he was licensed to preach, and was ordained to the ministry in 1843. He became pastor of the Chestnut Grove church, and afterwards of the Bethel church, in the presbytery of Baltimore, and was for some years at the head of a classical academy which he established in Baltimore county. In 1851, in response to an urgent call from the Transylvania university, in Lexington, Kentucky, he became professor of Greek in that institution, which position he retained until 1857, when by a unanimous vote of the Presbyterian general assembly, which met that year in Lexington, he was elected to the chair of Hebrew and Oriental Languages in the new theological seminary located at Danville in that state, which position he filled with distinction for nearly forty years. W. C. Young, of Danville, Kentucky, thus writes of Mr. Yerkes in The Presbyterian of 15 April, 1896 :

“The Professor's chair was Dr. Yerkes' throne. He loved to teach. The subject-matter of the department over which he was placed, Hebrew, is, as is well known to the average theological student, difficult and dry, but everything which an accomplished and gifted instructor could do to render its study profitable and interesting was done by Dr. Yerkes. An accurate and detailed knowledge of the subject brought a comprehensive and intelligent view of its relation and surroundings. Great patience, never-failing courtesy and kindness,—a real, deep, personal interest in each one of his students,—these qualities were possessed by him in an eminent degree. They made him a model Professor, and secured for him the respect, attention, and affection of all of his students. Nothing could be more beautiful, nor more characteristic of the man, than the relations he sustained with his old pupils,—with many of them, as an adviser and friend, he maintained a constant correspondence. And none ever returned to Danville without calling at his hospitable home, and receiving from him a warm and affectionate welcome.

“While the Seminary was Dr. Yerkes’ chief field of labor, yet he was deeply interested in, and rendered invaluable service to, the literary Institution so closely connected with it, Centre College. Long before, and during the whole of, my official relations with the College, Dr. Yerkes belonged to its governing Board; for at least one year he taught a number of its classes, and in numberless ways showed that its interests came next in his heart to those of his own special Institution, regarding the College as the natural feeder for the Seminary, as indeed it has always been.

“The intercourse of Dr. Yerkes, with the place he occupies in the hearts of the Faculty and students of the Seminary, his friends and the citizens of the town during these latter years, no words of mine can adequately express. How gentle and considerate of others, how wise in counsel, how affable and courteous in manner, how tender and sympathetic, how liberal and open-handed in beneficence! How we loved and revered him! He was our representative Christian gentleman. When he was taken from us, all felt that Danville had lost one of her best possessions, and each one of us had lost a friend.

“During the funeral services, conducted by his colleagues, all the business houses and banks of the town were closed, and the solemnity of every countenance evidenced the sorrow that was in every heart.”

Mr. Yerkes married (1) 22 December, 1840, Mrs. Amanda (Lovell) Tyson, daughter of William and Henrietta Lovell, of Baltimore, Maryland. She was born 6 May, 1816; died 22 May, 1872. He married (2) 13 May, 1875, Mrs. Amelia Owsley (Rodes) Anderson, widow of Honorable William C. Anderson.

82. HONORABLE HARMAN YERKES<sup>8</sup> (Stephen<sup>5</sup>, Harman<sup>4</sup>, Herman<sup>3</sup>, Herman<sup>2</sup>, Anthony<sup>1</sup>) was born in Warminster township, Bucks county, 8 October, 1843. He studied law, and was admitted to the bar at Doylestown, Bucks county, 3 November, 1865. In 1868 he was unanimously nominated for district attorney, and elected by the highest vote ever polled in Bucks county for any previous candidate. In 1873 he was elected to represent the counties of Bucks and Northampton in the senate of Pennsylvania, and in 1876 was renominated by acclamation as the Democratic candidate for the separate senatorial district of Bucks county, and was again elected, receiving two hundred votes more than did the Presidential ticket of his party. At the close of his second term he declined to be returned. Mr. Yerkes was from the commencement of his career active in the councils of the Democratic party, was frequently a delegate to its State conventions, and in 1872 and 1880 to its national conventions. In 1882, when a delegate to the state convention, he was urged to allow his name to be presented for governor, but declined.

While serving in the state senate, though in the minority, he had the confidence of the majority, and by his fearless, active course, almost immediately became a recognized and trusted leader in the senate. At the time he took his seat in that body the new constitution went into effect, and his name is associated with many of the most important laws necessary to carry out its provisions. He was on the committee of constitutional reform, and as a member of it introduced and had enacted several important laws of a general character, particularly a number of acts relating to the courts of the commonwealth.

After his retirement from the senate he received the unanimous nomination for the office of president-judge of the seventh judicial district (Bucks county), to which he was elected in 1883 by a majority greater than in any of his previous contests. He was re-elected to this position in 1893 for a term of ten years. He is recognized as a jurist of large capacity, and has frequently been called upon to sit as a judge in the court of common pleas of Philadelphia. Judge Yerkes has long been interested in the history of his family in this country, and has furnished the author of these memorials with much of the valuable information relating thereunto. He married, 24 June, 1869, Emma, daughter of Monroe Buckman, of Bucks county.

88. REVEREND DAVID JOHNS YERKES<sup>6</sup> (Joseph Ball<sup>5</sup>, William<sup>4</sup>, Herman<sup>3</sup>, Herman<sup>2</sup>, Anthony<sup>1</sup>) was born at Hatboro', Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, 27 January, 1825. He was prepared for college, and entered Columbian university, Washington, D. C., from which he was graduated in 1848, and from which he received the degree of D. D. After graduating he studied theology in Philadelphia, and entered the ministry of the Baptist church. He has served as pastor of the Baptist church of Holidaysburg, Pennsylvania, the First Baptist church of Pittsburg, the First Baptist church of Brooklyn, New York, and the First Baptist church of Plainfield, New Jersey, of which church he has been the pastor since 1863. During his pastorate of the latter church its membership has grown from two hundred and fifty to eight hundred and fifty members, and the church is now recognized as one of the strongest in the denomination. Dr. Yerkes exerts a wide influence for good, and is still in vigorous and mental activity. He is the oldest pastor in Plainfield, and is known throughout the country as an able theologian. He married, 14 March, 1850, Sarah E., daughter of Edward Taylor, of Saratoga county, New York, by his wife Eunice Curtis. They have six children.

Watts Descent of William L. Elkins

John Watts and some of his Descendants

THE REVEREND JOHN WATTS<sup>2</sup>, second pastor of the Pennepek* or Lower Dublin Baptist church, Philadelphia county, Pennsylvania, was born at Leeds, county Kent, England, 3 November, 1661. He was the son of Henry Watts<sup>2</sup> by his wife Elizabeth Duck, the only daughter of John and Ellinor Duck, and grandson of Gregory<sup>1</sup> Watts by his wife Margaret. So much of Mr. Watts' family history is furnished by his Bible, from which the subjoined record is taken :

"Gregory Watts departed June, 1654, and was buried at Leeds. Had 3 sons and 3 daughters.

"Henry Watts, son of Gregory and Margaret his wife, was born 1616 or 1617; died May 14, 1679; was buried at Leeds near Mardstone,† in Kent. He left only one son.

"Elizabeth, only daughter of John Duck and Ellinor his wife, wife of Henry Watts, died about the beginning of February A.D. 1663-4, and was buried at Leeds in Kent, aged about 26 or 27, and left one daughter and one son.

"Mary Watts, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth his wife, was born A.D. 1659, and died July, 1666.

"John Watts, son of Henry and Elizabeth his wife, was born 3 November, 1661, and was married to Sarah his wife, February 23, 1687-8.

"Sarah Watts, wife of John Watts and daughter of John Eaton and his wife, was born the first day of April, 1655."

This record would seem to disprove the statement frequently met with, that the Reverend John Watts was descended from Sir John Watts, lord mayor of London, in 1606. The latter had no son Gregory, and was too young to have been his grandfather.‡

Mr. Watts emigrated to Pennsylvania about the year 1686, and on 21 November of the following year he was baptized in the Baptist faith, and connected himself with the Pennepek church, the second congregation of this denomination organized in Pennsylvania and the first in Philadelphia county.* He entered the ministry in 1688, and in 1690 became the pastor of this church, in which charge he continued until his death, 27 August, 1702.

The church of this faith previously formed by the Reverend Thomas Dungan, at Cold Spring, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, was substantially disbanded upon the death of its founder in 1688, and at the time Mr. Watts' ministry began the Pennepek church was the only one in the province, and long remained the centre of Baptist influence in the middle colonies, and to-day occupies an historic position as the first organization in Pennsylvania of what is now the second largest Protestant denomination in America.

Mr. Watts' labors, however, were not confined to this church. He visited the scattered companies of Baptists in New Jersey to preach and baptize, and was for some years virtually the minister of the small congregation at Philadelphia, which later became the First Baptist church of that city, and of which he is to be regarded as the first pastor.

From 1695 until 1698 the Philadelphia Baptists amicably occupied a common place of worship with the Presbyterians in the storehouse on the lot of the Barbadoes Company at Chestnut and Second streets, Mr. Watts preaching on alternate Sundays. In the latter year the Presbyterians secured the Reverend Jedediah Andrews as their pastor, when trouble arose as to the joint occupancy of the building. No doubt the Presbyterians, under Mr. Andrews' influence, were unwilling to listen so frequently to an exposition of Baptist principles by Mr. Watts. Several letters, still extant, passed between the two societies. One of those from the Baptists, of which Mr. Watts was doubtless the author, is here given :

"To our dear and well-beloved friends and brethren, Mr. Jedediah Andrews, John Green, Joshua Story, and Samuel Richardson, and the rest of the Presbyterian judgment belonging to the

* "The history of this church will lead us back to the year 1686, when one John Eaton, George Eaton and Jane his wife, Sarah Eaton and Samuel Jones, members of a Baptist church residing in Llanddewi and Nantmel, in Radnorshire, whereof Rev. Henry Gregory was pastor; also John Baker, member of a church in Kilkenny, in Ireland, under the pastoral care of Rev. Christopher Blackwell, and one Samuel Vaus, from England, arrived and settled on the banks of Pennepek, formerly written Pennapeka. In the year 1687, Rev. Elias Keach, of London, came among them and baptized one Joseph Ashton and Jane his wife, William Fisher and John Watts, which increased their number to twelve souls, including the minister. These twelve did, by mutual consent, form themselves into a church in the month of January, 1688, choosing Mr. Keach to be their minister, and Samuel Vaus to be deacon. Soon after, the few emigrated Baptists in this province and West Jersey joined them; also those whom Mr. Keach baptized at the Falls, Coldspring, Burlington, Cohansey, Salem, Penn's-Neck, Chester, Philadelphia, &c. They were all one church, and Pennepek the centre of union, where, as many as could, met to celebrate the Lord's Supper; and for the sake of distant members they administered the ordinance quarterly at Burlington, Cohansey, Chester, and Philadelphia; which quarterly meetings have since been transformed into three yearly meetings and an Association. Thus, for some time, continued their Zion with lengthened cords, till the brethren in remote parts set about forming themselves into distinct churches, which began in 1699. By these detachments it was reduced to narrow bounds, but continued among the churches, as a mother in the midst of many daughters." (Benedict's History of the Baptists, vol. i. p. 580.)

meeting in Philadelphia : The church of Christ, baptized on confession of faith, over which Rev. John Watts is pastor, send salutation of grace, mercy, and peace, from God our Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ. Dearly Beloved : Having, seriously and in fear of God, considered our duties of love to and bearing with one another, and receiving the weak in faith, and knowing that love, peace, and unity tend much to the honor of Christ and Christianity, and to the conviction and conversion of sinners, and the comfort and establishment of believers, and being desirous of your company heavenward as far as may be, and as much as we can to heal the breach betwixt us, occasioned by our difference in judgment (none yet being perfect in knowledge), we have thought it necessary to make you this proposition following for peace (as being the necessary term upon which we may safely, comfortably, and peaceably hold Christian communion together in the things wherein we agree in the public worship of God and common duties of religion, as in prayer, preaching, praising God, reading and hearing the Word), viz. : we do freely confess and promise for ourselves that we can and do own and allow of your approved ministers, who are fitly qualified and sound in faith, and of holy lives, to pray and preach in our assemblies. If you can also freely confess and promise for yourselves that you can and will own and allow of our approved ministers, who are fitly qualified and sound in the faith, and of holy lives, to preach in your assemblies ; that so each side may own, embrace, and accept of each other as fellow-brethren and ministers of Christ, and hold and maintain Christian communion and fellowship. Unto which proposition for peace (that further disputes and vain janglings may be prevented) we shall desire, if you please, your plain and direct answer, that it may be left for us at Widow Elton's house, in Philadelphia. Subscribed in behalf of the rest of the congregation the 30th of 8th month (October), 1698.

The Presbyterians sent, on November 3, a reply signed by Mr. Andrews, John Green, Samuel Richarson, David Giffing, Herbert Corry, John Vanlear, and Daniel Green, requesting a conference, which was afterwards appointed for Saturday, November 19, at the common meeting-house. Messrs. Watts, Jones, and Morgan were there at the proper time, but found none of the Presbyterians, and none came, though sent for. Late in the afternoon, before leaving the house, the three Baptists wrote a letter, saying that they were disappointed, and added, “Considering what the desires of divers people are, and how they stand affected, and that we are not likely to receive answer to our reasonable proposition, necessity constrains us to meet apart from you until such time as we receive an answer, and we are assured that you can own us so as we can you, though we still remain the same as before, and stand by what we have written.” *

In this connection the eminent Morgan Edwards writes,—

“This was what the Presbyterians wanted in reality, as more plainly appeared soon after, particularly in a letter directed to one Thomas Revell, of Burlington, and signed ‘Jedediah An-draws,' wherein are these words: 'Though we have got the Anabaptists out of the house, yet our continuance there is uncertain, and therefore must think of building, notwithstanding our poverty.'

The next day the Baptists met at Anthony Morris' brew-house, under the bank and near the dock, and here continued until 1707, when by invitation of the Keithian Baptists they removed to Second street below Mulberry, where they remained until the erection of their edifice at Broad and Arch streets.

During the year 1698 they were invited by the Reverend Thomas Clayton, rector of Christ church, Philadelphia, to return to the Church of England. The lengthy reply* to this invitation is an interesting and ably written paper. Mr. Watts is the first of the signers thereto, and doubtless its author.

Morgan Edwards, in his noted "History of the Baptists," pronounced Mr. Watts a "sound divine." That he was a man of scholarly attainment is abundantly evidenced in his writings. He was the author of the Baptist Catechism printed in 1700, one of the earliest publications in the province. He also wrote a work entitled "Davis Disabled," a reply to "Jesus the Crucified Man, the Eternal Son of God," written by William Davis. The main doctrine set forth in Davis' book was "that the divine nature and human were so blended in the person of Christ, that he was not properly God, nor properly man, but a compound of both." Davis had been a preacher among the Friends, but left this society in the separation of 1690, with George Keith, and was one of the forty-eight who signed the reasons and causes of such separation. In 1697 he embraced the principles of the Baptists and joined the Pennepek church, where he began to inculcate the above-named doctrine with great assiduity. Mr. Watts and his congregation deemed such teaching heresy, and on 17 February, 1698, expelled Mr. Davis from their church.

Mr. Watts was buried in the graveyard of his church at Pennepek. A picture of his tombstone is herewith interleaved. The acrostical inscription thereon, now almost undecipherable, reads :

Mr. Watts is thus mentioned in Dr. Martindale's "History of the Townships of Byberry and Moreland" : †

"John Watts was a celebrated surveyor, who resided during the greater part of his life in Lower Dublin. He and his brother Silas were both practically acquainted with surveying in all its bearings, and did most if not all of that business in the townships for many years, and were of great use in settling disputed lines. John was a teacher of considerable reputation, and, for some years previous to 1790, taught in Tillyer's school, Moreland. He was very fond of mathematics, and is said to have been among the best mathematicians in the country."

As early as 1765 Mr. Watts wrote a work on surveying, which was never published, but the book in manuscript was preserved, and is now possessed by his descendant, Phineas Roberts Barnes, of Holmesburg, Philadelphia. A reproduction of the title-page of this work is herewith inserted. Mr. Watts was also a noted conveyancer, and was more frequently consulted in the execution of wills than any other man in his locality. 13. ARTHUR WATTS<sup>a</sup> (Stephen<sup>b</sup>, Reverend John<sup>a</sup>, Henry<sup>a</sup>, Gregory<sup>b</sup>) was born 29 October, 1733 ; died 9 October, 1809. He served as a private in Captain John Folwell's company of associators in 1775-6, and was one of the delegates to the convention which met at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, 4 July, 1776, to choose two brigadier-generals to command the Pennsylvania militia in the Revolution. He was also a member of the Bucks county committee of safety and of the committee of correspondence.

He married, 24 December, 1758, Sarah, daughter of William Folwell by his wife Anne Potts, born 14 January, 1741 ; died 3 February, 1798. William Watts<sup>a</sup>, their son, was for many years one of the associate judges of Bucks county and clerk of the courts. He died in that county 3 May, 1838. Anne Watts<sup>a</sup>, their eldest child, was born 5 October, 1759 ; died 2 March, 1815 ; married, 11 January, 1776, Colonel Josiah Hart, born 17 July, 1749 ; died 25 October, 1800. Colonel Hart was an officer in the Revolution, as was also his father, Colonel Joseph Hart.

Among the children of Colonel Josiah Hart by his wife Anne Watts<sup>a</sup> was Amy Hart<sup>f</sup>, who was born 20 June, 1784, and married, 23 March, 1813, General John Davis, of Bucks county. General Davis was born 7 August, 1788, and served in the war of 1812 as ensign in Colonel Humphrey's regiment of riflemen. He later became colonel in the Bucks county militia, and was twice elected major-general in the militia of Pennsylvania. In 1839 he was elected to congress, where he served one term, and in 1845 was appointed by President Polk surveyor of the port of Philadelphia, which office he held four years. General Davis, by his wife Amy Hart<sup>f</sup>, had several children, one of which is General William Watts Hart Davis<sup>g</sup>, who was born 27 July, 1820. He was educated at the military university at Norwich, Vermont, and on graduating from that institution was appointed a professor in the military academy at Portsmouth, Virginia, where he remained two years. He then returned to Bucks county, studied law, and was admitted to the bar. He completed his law studies at the Harvard university law school. While there he enlisted in Colonel Cushing's regiment, then recruiting in Boston for service in the Mexican war ; was commissioned first lieutenant, then made adjutant. He filled several appointments on the staff of General Cushing, and was promoted to a captaincy, in which position he served until the close of the war. On his return home he commenced the practice of the law at Doylestown, Bucks county. In September, 1853, he was appointed by President Pierce district attorney of the United States for New Mexico, whither he removed, remaining there four years. In the summer of 1854 he was appointed secretary of the territory, and for more than a year was governor and superintendent of Indian affairs. During two years of his residence in New Mexico he edited and published the Santa Fé Gazette in English and Spanish. He resigned his commission and returned to his native county in 1857. In 1858 he purchased the Doylestown Democrat, of which he is still editor. When the civil war broke out he recruited a company of three months' men, and when their term expired raised a regiment of infantry and a six-gun battery for the three years' service. He served the full term, commanding a brigade or a division the greater portion of the time. He was twice wounded. On leaving the service the president conferred on him the brevet of brigadier-general for "meritorious conduct" at the siege of Charleston. In June, 1885, he was appointed by President Cleveland United States pension agent at Philadelphia, and held the office over four years. General Davis is the author of the "History of the One Hundred and Fourth Pennsylvania Volunteers," and of a history of Bucks county, Pennsylvania, a new history of which he is now writing. He was the founder of the Bucks county historical society, and has been its president since its organization in 1880, and is a member of the Aztec club, organized in the city of Mexico in 1847, the Pennsylvania historical society, the historical society of New Mexico, Pennsylvania society of sons of the Revolution, society of the army of the Potomac, military order of foreign wars, military order of the loyal legion of the United States, and grand army of the republic. He married, 24 June, 1856, Anne, daughter of Jacob and Mary Carpenter, of Brooklyn, New York.

Lewis Latham, Sergeant-Falconer to Charles I

LEWIS LATHAM, of Elstow, county Bedford, England, gent., the ancestor of many American families, was of a cadet branch of the Lathams of county Lancaster, England, and bore the arms of that family. The senior branch ended with Isabella, daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Lathom, of Lathom. The latter died in 1385, and his daughter Isabella married Sir John Stanley, knight, from whom were the Stanleys, earls of Derby. The estate, Lathom House, remained in the Stanley family nearly four centuries, when Henrietta, Lady Ashburnham, daughter and co-heiress of the ninth earl of Derby, sold it to Henry Furness, Esq<sup>r</sup>, from whom it was purchased in 1724 by Sir Thomas Bootle, of Melling, chancellor to the Prince of Wales. In 1750, Sir Thomas Bootle rebuilt the manor-house, which magnificent structure is shown in the view herewith interleaved. The Lathams exerted a powerful influence in the county of Lancaster, and the manor, which bears the family name, and in which the ancestors of Lewis Latham lived, must ever be cherished with interest by his descendants.

Of the early life of Lewis Latham nothing is known ; but from that which is recorded of him it is evident that he was bred a gentleman and trained in the art of falconry. He was falconer to Richard Berrick, and under-falconer to Charles, Prince of Wales, who, on ascending the throne as Charles I., retained his falconers, and in 1627 promoted Latham to sergeant-falconer. Latham doubtless remained in office until his decease, in 1655. Evidence of his service in such capacity is furnished in the following extracts from the Calendars of State Papers (British) :

" 1625, Jul. 15. Warrant to pay to Andrew Pitcairn, Master of the Hawks, to the use of Lewis Latham, Eustace Norton, and the rest of the under falconers, the stipend formerly allowed them when the King was Prince of Wales." *

" 1627, August 18. Warrant from Secretary Conway to Attorney General Heath to prepare grants of the sergeant of the hawks, to Lewis Latham, with £65 per annum and the place he had of Falconer to Richard Berrick." †

From the same source it is ascertained that his widow, called "wife of Latham, the King's Sergeant Falconer," presented a petition to the King for arrears of salary due her husband.* Her patron on this occasion was Sir Lewis Dyve,† the royalist and defender of Sherborne Castle.

The art of falconry required careful and patient study, and the office of falconer was one of importance and distinction. The master-falconer to Charles I. was Sir Patrick Hume, who had thirty-three other gentlemen associated with him as falconers. Symon Latham, a brother of Lewis,‡ was a falconer, and his work on falconry is the only authority cited on the subject in the Encyclopædia Britannica. Three editions of his work (1615, 1633, and 1652) are in the British Museum. The title-page of one of these is curiously illustrative of its purpose. It reads, "Lathams Falconry, or the Falconers Lure and Cure in two books. The first containing the ordering and training of all Hawks in general; especially the Haggard, the Faulcon gentle. The second teaching approved medicines for the cure of all diseases in them. Gathered by long practice and experience and published for the delight of noble minds, and instruction of Falconers in things pertaining to the princely art. By Symon Latham, gent."

The parish register of Elstow, under date of 1655, notes the death of Lewis Latham, as follows :

"Lewys Lathame, gent., buried, ye 15th of May."

His will, dated 6 May, 1653, proved at London, 1 September, 1655, and registered in the prerogative court at Canterbury, 1316, Aylett, is as follows :

"In the name of God, amen. In the sixth day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and fifty three, I, Lewis Latham of Elstow in the county of Bedford, gentleman, being in perfect health and memory doe make and ordain this my last will and Testament in manner and form following, that is to say, First and especially I bequeathe my soule in the hands of Jesus Christ my Saviour and Redeemer with the full and certain assurance of the free pardon and remission of all my sins in and by and through the merits, death and passion of Jesus Christ my Saviour and Redeemer and my body to the earth from whence it came to be buried at the discretion of my Executrix hereafter named and for my worldly goods as followeth : Imprimis. I give and bequeathe to my two sons Henry Latham and John Latham twelve pence apiece, if they come to demand it. Item.—I give and bequeathe to my daughters Ann Seager, Francis Clarke, Catharine Garrett and Elizabeth Bibble twelve pence apiece, if they come to demand it. Item. I give and bequeathe to Ellen Sherringham my daughter, twelve pence if she come to demand it.

† Sir Lewis Dyve was seated at Bromham, Bedfordshire, not far from Elstow.

‡ He had also a brother William Latham, called of Elstow, county Bedford, gent., whose will, dated 25 July, 1632, names sister Ursula, wife of William Carter, sister Elizabeth, wife of Thomas —, brother Simon Latham, and brother Lewis Latham, the latter of whom is made executor.

wife whom I make Executrix of this my last will and Testament, and I doe hereby utterly revoke and disannul and make voide all and every other and former will whatsoever heretofore made by me the said Lewis Latham. In witness whereof I the sayd Lewis Latham have hereunto sett my hand and seale the day and year first above written.

“The marke of Lewis Latham read signed and sealed and delivered in the presence of Robert Fernall, Jane Fernall, Susanna Fernall.”

From the small estate bequeathed to his children, it is inferred that he had previously provided for them, although it is possible that they had in some way incurred his displeasure, and so were cut off with a few pence each. His wife Winifred survived him, and was living as late as 1662, when she applied, as above mentioned, for the arrears of salary due her husband as sergeant-falconer to his Majesty. She would appear to have been the second or the third wife of Latham, and his children were doubtless by a former marriage.

A portrait* of Lewis Latham, painted in his advanced years, was brought to America by his daughter Frances, and has since remained in the possession of her descendants. It is now owned by Mr. William L. Elkins, of Philadelphia, a descendant in the ninth generation. In one corner of the canvas are these words: “The effigy of the Honourable Lewis Latham, falconer to his majesty, King Charles I, who died at the age of 100 years.” It is believed that this inscription was written long after Lewis Latham died, and that the estimate of his age is exaggerated. The portrait also bears the Latham arms, which is clearly a part of the original painting, so faded by time, however, as to be almost indistinguishable, but may thus be described: “Perfess, indented az. or, in chief three plates. Crest—an eagle displayed looking to the sinister or, above a child’s cradle gu.” In an old visitation of Lancashire, recorded in the College of Arms, it is stated that a child was found in an eagle’s nest on the estate and adopted by one of the Lathams. This, it is assumed, was the origin of the crest. It will be seen that the bearings are substantially those of the Lathoms, of Lathom, which are entered by Burke thus: “Or, on the chief indented az. three plates (but occasionally three bezants, as in Sir Harris Nicholas’s Tournament Roll, temp. 3 Edward III.). Crest—An eagle regardant or, rising from a child’s cradle, gu. Depicted in ancient windows of Astbury Church, county Chester.”

5. FRANCES LATHAM<sup>2</sup> (Lewis Latham<sup>1</sup>) was baptized in the parish of Kempston, county Bedford, England, 15 February, 1609-10; died at Newport, Rhode Island, "ye first week in" September, 1677. (See accompanying picture of her tombstone from the ancient burying-ground at Newport.) She married (1) Lord Weston; (2) circa 1627, William Dungan; (3) circa 1637, Jeremiah Clarke; (4) circa 1655, Reverend William Vaughan. In a manuscript written in the eighteenth century, by James Barker, one of Frances Latham's descendants, is the following mention:

"Frances, wife of William Vaughan, died September 1677 in the 67th* year of her age. She was a daughter of Lewis Latham. She was sometime the wife of Lord Weston, then wife of William Dungan, by whom she had a son and three daughters. Her son, Thomas Dungan, married and settled in Pennsylvania, and was the first Baptist minister in those parts. Her daughter, Barbara, married James Barker of Rhode Island. After William Dungan died, she married Mr. Jeremiah Clarke, and came over to New England with her children above named. She had by her husband, Clarke, five sons. After he died she married a Mr. Vaughan."

The identity of the particular Lord Weston who married Frances Latham is not known. He probably died shortly after their marriage.

WILLIAM DUNGAN, her second husband, was a London merchant, and resided at St. Martin's in the Fields, in that city. His will, on file in London, dated 13 September, and proved 5 October, 1636, names wife Frances and children Barbara, William, Frances, and Thomas, to each of whom he gave a legacy of seventy pounds, and the remainder, "be it in goods, chattels, leases, ready money, plate or other of my substance whatsoever," he bequeathed to his wife, whom he appointed executrix. Mr. Thomas Gibbon and Mr. Samuel Smith were appointed overseers of the will, to each of whom Mr. Dungan gave ten shillings for the purchase of mourning rings.

CAPTAIN JEREMIAH CLARKE, the third husband of Frances Latham, emigrated to America shortly after their marriage, accompanied by his wife and her children by William Dungan. He settled in Rhode Island, where he was admitted an inhabitant in 1638. On 28 April, 1639, he with eight others signed the following compact at Portsmouth, preparatory to the settlement of Newport: "It is agreed by us, whose hands are underwritten, to propagat a plantation in the midst of the island or elsewhere or to engage ourselves to bear equal charge answerable to our strength and estate in common, and that our determination shall be by major voices of Judges and Elders, the Judge to have double voice." He signed as "Elder," the "Judge" being William Coddington. This compact was the beginning of Newport, and it establishes Mr. Clarke's position as one of the founders of that city. During the same year he was chosen treasurer in place of Robert Jeffreys, "till his return from the Dutch," and in the following year he held the office of constable. Under date of 10 March, 1640, he is recorded as owning one hundred and sixteen acres of land in Newport, and during this year he and two others were appointed to lay out the "remainder" of the lands in that town. He attended the general court of elections held that year. On 17 March, 1642, he was chosen lieutenant of the Newport militia, and on 13 March, 1644, captain, then the highest military rank in the colony.* From 1644 till 1647 he was treasurer for Newport, and from 1647 till 1649, treasurer of the colony. In 1648 he was chosen one of the governor's assistants, and during this year, pending the clearance of certain accusations against Governor William Coddington, Captain Clarke was elected governor, under the title of "President." The records of Friends' Meeting at Newport, under date of January, 1652, thus comment on his death: "Jeremiah Clarke, one of the first English planters of Rhode Island, died at Newport in said island, and was buried in the tomb that stands by the street on the water side, Newport, upon the — day of the eleventh, 1651."

* This record, as well as her tombstone, is in error as to her age at death. She was in her sixty-eighth year.

The REVEREND WILLIAM VAUGHAN, fourth husband of Frances Latham, was at Newport as early as 1648, in which year he became the pastor of the First Baptist church at that place. In 1656 he, with others, separated from the First church and organized a new society known as the Second Baptist church. The reasons therefor are thus stated: "said persons [are] concerned and prejudiced against psalmody and against the restraints that the liberty of prophesying was laid under, and also against the doctrine of particular redemption, and against the rite of laying on of hands as a matter of indifference." Under date of 8 November, 1673, Samuel Hubbard, of Newport, notes, "This week two of Christ Church called Mr. Vahan departed: to wit John Turner and Jeremy Osborne, school master. Lord prepare all." And in a letter to his children at Westerly, 2 September, 1677, he writes, "For news, Mr. Vahan is gone to his long home, and his wife is likely to follow him if not dead." Some evidence showing Mr. Vaughan's prominence in Rhode Island is furnished in the records of the assembly, which body, on 4 April, 1676, voted, "That in these troublesome times and straits in this colony, this assembly desire to have the advice and concurrence of the most judicious inhabitants, if it may be had for the good of the whole, do desire at their next meeting the company and counsel of "sixteen persons," among whom was Mr. Vaughan.

9. BARBARA DUNGAN<sup>s</sup> (Frances<sup>s</sup>, Lewis Latham<sup>1</sup>) was born in England circa 1628; died at Newport, Rhode Island. She was brought to America by her mother about 1637, and in 1644 married the Honorable James Barker, of Newport, born in England in 1623; died at Newport in 1702. Mr. Barker was a son of James Barker, of Harwich, county Essex, England, who in 1630 embarked with his son for Massachusetts. The father died on the passage, and the son was placed in the care of his aunt Christianna, then wife of Thomas Beecher, and later the wife of the Honorable Nicholas Easton, governor of Rhode Island.* James Barker, Jr., is thought to have remained with his aunt at Charlestown, Massachusetts, until 1639, when her marriage with Nicholas Easton brought her to Newport. On 13 March, 1644, he was chosen corporal of the militia at Newport, under the command of his wife's step-father, Captain Jeremiah Clarke, and was later promoted ensign, by which title he is styled in the records of the colony as early as 1648. During the latter year he was a member of the general court of elections, and in 1655 was chosen to represent Newport in the house of deputies, to which office he was re-elected fourteen times between the years 1661 and 1686. He is one of the patentees named in the royal charter of the colony in 1663, in which year, and also in the years 1664, '65, '66, '70, '71, '72, '77, '78, he was a member of the governor's council of assistants, and in the latter year he became deputy governor of the colony. In 1676, during the "troublesome times and straits" incident to King Philip's war, Mr. Barker was one of the sixteen of "the most judicious inhabitants of the colony" invited by the assembly to meet with them in an advisory capacity in matters pertaining to the war. He was a member of the First Baptist church at Newport, and doubtless for some years a licentiate preacher of that denomination. In 1690 he assisted in the

25. PETER BARKER<sup>4</sup>, died in 1725 ; married (1) in 1692, Freelove Bliss, born 16 November, 1672 ; died circa 1708 ; daughter of John Bliss, of Newport, by his wife Damaris, daughter of Honorable Benedict Arnold, who was for many years governor of Rhode Island. He married (2) in 1712, Susanna Saunders, daughter of Tobias Saunders, Esq<sup>t</sup>, by his wife Mary Clark.
26. CHRISTIANNA BARKER<sup>4</sup>, married William Phillips, son of Michael and Barbara Phillips, of Newport.
27. WILLIAM BARKER<sup>4</sup>, born in 1662 ; died 3 November, 1741 ; married Elizabeth Easton, born 18 February, 1666 ; died 24 March, 1715 ; daughter of Honorable Peter Easton, treasurer and attorney-general of Rhode Island, by his wife Ann Coggeshall.

II. FRANCES DUNGAN<sup>3</sup> (Frances<sup>2</sup>, Lewis Latham<sup>1</sup>) was born in England circa 1630, and died at Warwick, Rhode Island, in 1697. She married, in 1648, the Honorable Randall Holden, born in England in 1612 ; died at Warwick, Rhode Island, 23 August, 1692. He emigrated from Salisbury, county Wilts, England, arriving at Massachusetts before 1637, and in that year joined the eminent Roger Williams in founding the colony of Rhode Island. He was one of the nineteen signers of the historic compact made at Portsmouth, 7 March, 1638, in which year he received a grant of lands, and was chosen marshal of the colony and elected corporal of the first military body formed there. His conduct in some matters gave offence to the authorities, and resulted in March, 1641, in the disfranchisement of himself and three others. In consequence of this action he left the colony. On 17 March, 1642, it was ordered that if he and four others came upon the island armed, they should be disarmed and made to give security for good behavior. A reconciliation took place later in the same year, when he was again received into citizenship and "readily embraced" by his fellow-colonists. On 12 January, 1643, Mr. Holden and ten others bought of the Indian chief Miantonomi, for one hundred and forty-four fathoms of wampum, a tract of land called Shawomet, afterwards Warwick. This purchase led to differences with some of the Indian sachems, who made complaint to the General Court of Massachusetts, which body summoned Mr. Holden and his fellow-purchasers to appear before them at Boston. This they declined to do, declaring that they were legal subjects to the King of England and beyond the limit of Massachusetts, to which they would acknowledge no subjection. The authorities of Massachusetts, however, soon sent soldiers to besiege the settlers in their fortified house at Warwick, and they were taken prisoners and carried to Boston, and there charged before the court, 4 November, 1643, with heresy and sedition, and were sentenced to be confined during the pleasure of the court, and warned that, should they break jail or preach their heresies, or speak against the church or state, on conviction thereof they should die. Mr. Holden was sent to the prison at Salem, from which he was released in March, 1644, but banished from Massachusetts and Warwick. Shortly afterwards he sailed from New York to England, with Samuel Gorton and John Greene, to present the complaint of the Warwick settlers to the King and to obtain redress. The mission was successful, and on 13 September, 1646, Mr. Holden and John Greene landed in Boston with a safe-conduct through that territory from the Lords of Plantations. Resuming his residence at Warwick, he was in the following year chosen a member of the town council, and subsequently served frequently as moderator of town meetings and as town treasurer. Between the years 1652 and 1686 he was nineteen times chosen a member of the house of deputies, and between 1647 and 1676 served ten years as a member of the governor's council. He was one of the prominent citizens who, in 1676, were invited by the general assembly to meet with them for consultation and advice in matters pertaining to the war then pending against King Philip. In 1679 he went to England in the service of the colony; in 1683 he was appointed by the assembly on the committee to draft a letter to the King, and in 1687-8 was one of the justices of the court of common pleas.

Mr. Holden's prominence in the colony was as great as that attained by his father. He served several years in the house of deputies, of which body he was speaker in 1714-15, and was for twenty years a member of the governor's council, and as early as 1706 was appointed "Major for the Main," to command the naval force of the colony.*

REVEREND THOMAS DUNGAN<sup>3</sup> (Frances<sup>2</sup>, Lewis Latham<sup>1</sup>) was born in London, England, about 1632, and in 1637 accompanied his mother and step-father, Jeremiah Clarke, to New England. He doubtless remained during his childhood and youth a member of his mother's family, at Newport, Rhode Island. The prominent position held by the family leads to the belief that he enjoyed the best educational advantages which Newport afforded, and it is thought that he came under the instruction of the renowned Roger Williams, who established a school in Rhode Island for "the practice of Hebrew, Latin, French and Dutch." Mr. Dungan imbibed the Baptist faith, and entered the ministry of that denomination, having, it is supposed, received instruction in theology from his step-father, Reverend William Vaughan. In 1656 he was admitted a freeman of the colony, and in 1671 was a juryman. Shortly after the settlement of Monmouth county, New Jersey, by the English, Mr. Dungan became the owner of lands in that county, which he sold in 1674. On 31 October, 1677, the town of East Greenwich, Rhode Island, was incorporated. Mr. Dungan is among the patentees named in the charter,* and at the first general election held in the town, 1678, he was chosen one of the two representatives to the Rhode Island assembly, his brother-in-law, Sergeant Clement Weaver, being the other. Some time previous he had been appointed sergeant of the Newport militia, by which title he is styled in the colonial records at the time of his election to the assembly. He was re-elected to the latter body in 1681.

The grant of the charter for Pennsylvania to William Penn in 1681, and the settlement of that province attracted wide attention throughout the American colonies. Among those thus attracted was Mr. Dungan. The greater portion of the first Pennsylvania colonists were Quakers. With them, however, were a number of Baptists, which fact suggested Pennsylvania as a larger field for evangelical work than Rhode Island afforded, and led Mr. Dungan to remove to the dominion of the great Quaker. With this change in view, he conveyed, 28 June, 1682, his estate of one hundred acres at East Greenwich to Thomas Weaver, of Newport, and on 25 September, of the same year, sold his Newport homestead of fifty acres, with the buildings and "gardens" appurtenant thereto, to John Bailey. Shortly afterwards he removed with his family and settled on the Delaware, at Cold Spring, Bucks county, Pennsylvania, where he founded a Baptist church, the first in that colony, and the first English congregation there outside of the Friends. Mr. Dungan became the pastor, and continued his ministrations until his death in 1688. In 1686 he baptized and ordained to the ministry Elias Keach, the first pastor of the Pennepek Baptist church, and son of the famous Reverend Benjamin Keach, of London.

* "And further this Assembly do enact, order and declare, that the persons before named, that is to say, John Spencer, Thomas Nicolls, Sr., Clement Weaver, Henry Brightman, George Vaughan, John Weaver, Charles Macarty, Thomas Wood, Thomas Frye, Benjamin Griffin, Daniel Vaughan, Thomas Dungen, John Pearce Mason, Stephen Peckham, John Crandall, Henry Lilly, John Albro, Jr., Samuel Albro, Philip Long, Richard Knight, John Peckham, Thomas Peckham, William Clarke, Edward Lay, Edward Richmond, Edmund Calverly, John Heath, Robert Havens, John Strainge, Jr., John Parker, George Browne, Richard Barnes, Samson Balloo, Jonathan Devell, Benjamin Mowry, Joseph Mowry, William Wilbore, Jun<sup>r</sup>, Gyles Pearce, James Batty, John Remington, Benjamin Gorton, Henry Dyve, John Knowles, Stephen Arnold, Jun<sup>r</sup>, William Hawkins, John Sanford, John Gorton and John Houlden are the persons unto whom the said tract of land (5000 acres) is granted, and who shall possess and enjoy the same, their heirs and assigns, accordinge to the true intent and meaning of this present grant. And to the end that the said persons and their successors, the proprietors of the said land from time to time, may be in the better capacity to manage their public affaires, this Assembly doe enact and declare that the said plantation shall be a towne, by the name and title of East Greenwich, in his Majesty's Collony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, with all rights, libertys, and priviledges, whatsoever unto a towne appertaininge; and that the said persons above mentioned, unto whom the said grant is made, are by the present Assembly and the authority thereof, made and admitted the free men of the said towne, and they, or soe many of them as shall be then present, not being fewer than twelve on the said land are required and empowered to meet together upon the second Wednesday in April next, and constitute a towne meetinge, by electinge a Moderator, a Town Clerk, with such constables as to them shall seem requisite; and also to choose two persons their Deputys to sitt in General Assembly, and two persons, one to serve on the Grand Jury and one on the Jury of tryals, in the General Court of Tryalls, and soe the like number and for the said services at the said Court from time to time." Reverend Morgan Edwards, in his history of the Baptists published in 1770, thus mentions Mr. Dungan and his family :

"Of this venerable father I can learn no more than that he came from Rhode Island about the year 1684. That he and his family settled at Cold Spring, where he gathered a church, of which nothing remains but a grave-yard and the names of the families which belong to it, viz. : Dungans, Gardners, Woods, Doyls, &c. That he died in 1688 and was buried in the said grave-yard. That his children were five sons and four daughters. (1) William, who married into the Whing family of Rhode Island, and had five children ; (2) Clement, who died childless ; (3) Thomas, who married into the Drake family and had nine children ; (4) Jeremiah, who married into the same family, and had eight children ; (5) Elizabeth, who married into the West family and had four children ; (6) Mary, who married into the Richards family and had three children ; (7) John, who died childless ; (8) Rebecca, who married into the Doyl family and had three children ; (9) Sarah, who married into the Kerrills and had six children, in all thirty-eight. To mention the names, alliances, and offspring of these would tend to make an endless genealogy. Sufficeth it, that the Reverend Thomas Dungan, the first Baptist minister in Pennsylvania, now existeth in a progeny of between 600 and 700."*

The tract of land on which Mr. Dungan settled in Pennsylvania consisted of two hundred acres, which he purchased of William Penn.†

Mr. Dungan's will, dated 3 March, 1687, was probated ‡ 29 February, 1688, and is one of the earliest on record in Bucks county. He married at Newport, Elizabeth, daughter of Sergeant Clement Weaver, of that place, by his wife Mary Freeborn. Mrs. Dungan died at Cold Spring, Bucks county, circa 1690. Her father was a member of the house of deputies of Rhode Island in 1678. Her mother was the daughter of William Freeborn,§ of Portsmouth, Rhode Island, one of the founders of that colony, and a member of the house of deputies in 1657.

* Morgan Edwards' History of the Baptists, p. 10.

† On 2 April, 1698, Clement Dungan, Thomas Dungan, Jeremiah Dungan, and John Dungan, of Bucks county, "sons and heirs of Thomas Dungan, Sr," in consideration of two hundred and forty pounds, conveyed to Walter Pumphrey two hundred acres of land, "part of four hundred acres granted by William Penn to said Thomas Dungan Sr, and his son Clement Dungan." (Bucks County Deeds, ii. 189.)

‡ Bucks County Wills, A, 386.

§ WILLIAM FREEBORN was born in England in 1594, and died at Portsmouth, Rhode Island, 28 April, 1670. He embarked in the ship "Francis," from Ipswich for New England, 30 April, 1634, accompanied by his wife Mary and daughters Mary and Sarah. On his arrival he settled in Massachusetts, where he remained until 1638, when he joined the planters, who settled Rhode Island. He was one of the eighteen signers of the historic compact of 7 March, 1638, which marks the beginning of the latter colony. In 1639 he received a grant of land in Portsmouth ; was admitted a freeman in 1641, chosen constable in 1642, and in 1657 was a representative to the house of deputies. He was a member of the society of Friends. By his wife Mary (born circa 1601 ; died 3 May, 1670) he had three children : (1) Mary Freeborn, married Clement Weaver, of Newport. (2) Sarah Freeborn, married Nathaniel Browning, of Portsmouth. (3) Gideon Freeborn, who was for several years a member of the assembly, married (1) Sarah, daughter of Thomas Brownell ; (2) Mary, widow of John Lawton, and daughter of Matthew Boomer. By his first wife Gideon Freeborn had daughter Martha, who married Thomas Cornell, and by him had son Honorable Gideon Cornell, who, by his wife Rebecca Vaughan, had daughter Rebecca, who married, as second wife, Colonel Clement Biddle, of Philadelphia, deputy quartermaster-general of the Continental army in the Revolution. Colonel Biddle was the grandfather of the late Colonel Chapman Biddle, of the late leader of the Philadelphia bar, Honorable George W. Biddle, and of Colonel Alexander Biddle, of Philadelphia ; and was also the grandfather of the late Major-General George Cadwalader and the late eminent jurist, Honorable John Cadwalader.

Children of Reverend Thomas<sup>3</sup> and Elizabeth (Weaver) Dungan, all no doubt born at Newport :

39. WILLIAM DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, born circa 1658 ; died in Bucks county in 1713 ; married Deborah Wing.
40. CLEMENT DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, died without issue, in Northampton township, Bucks county, in 1732.
He was a large land-owner in the county, and in 1722 he and his brothers Thomas and Jeremiah were among the petitioners to the court for the formation of Northampton township.*
41. ELIZABETH DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, married Nathaniel West, † and had issue.
42. THOMAS DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, † born circa 1670 ; died 23 June, 1759 ; married Mary (?) Drake.
43. REBECCA DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, married Edward Doyle. ‡ Both were members of the Pennepek Baptist church, where, after marriage, they were baptized in 1692.
44. JEREMIAH DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, born circa 1673 ; died 6 April, 1761 ; married Deborah Drake.
45. MARY DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, married — Richards, and had issue.
46. JOHN DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, died unmarried and without issue.
47. SARAH DUNGAN<sup>4</sup>, married James Keril, || and had issue.

13. HONORABLE WALTER CLARKE<sup>3</sup> (Frances<sup>2</sup>, Lewis Latham<sup>1</sup>) was born at Newport, Rhode Island, in 1640 ; died there, 23 May, 1714. He was a member of the house of deputies in 1667, '70, '72, '73, and governor's assistant, 1673, '74, '75, and 1699 ; deputy governor twenty-four years between 1679 and 1714, and governor of the colony in 1676, '77, '86, '96, '97, '98. He married (1) in 1660, Content, daughter of John Greenman, born in 1636 ; died 27 March, 1666 ; married (2) February,

* CLEMENT DUNGAN and his brother Thomas purchased of Margaret, "relict of Arthur Cooke of Frankford in the county of Philadelphia," one thousand acres of land in Bucks county. (See recital in deed recorded in said county, in Deed Book, iv. 24.) Clement Dungan made his will 26 August, 1732, proved 15 September, 1732, in which he names brother Jeremiah (to whom he gave his lands), brother Thomas Dungan, Thomas Dungan, of Warminster (doubtless a nephew), nephew William Dungan, Mary, daughter of his brother Jeremiah Dungan, and gave legacies to the Reverend Jenkin Jones, of Philadelphia, and the Reverend Joseph Eaton, of North Wales. (Bucks County Wills, i. 173.)

† Son of Nathaniel West, of Newport, Rhode Island.

‡ THOMAS DUNGAN was a trustee of the Southampton Baptist church in Bucks county. His will, dated 9 February, 1758, proved 4 July, 1759, names sons Thomas, Joseph, James, and John ; grandsons Samuel, Jacob, and Jonathan, sons of his son Jonathan, deceased ; and daughters Elizabeth Hellings, Mary Barton, and Sarah Stevens, and mentions a plantation of two hundred acres "whereon I now dwell." (Bucks County Wills, ii. 365.)

§ His will, in which he is styled of "Bucks county, husbandman," dated 16 September, 1702, proved at Philadelphia, 12 March, 1703 (Philadelphia Wills, B, 289), names wife Rebecca and sons Clement and Edward Doyle. The son Clement purchased of Joseph Kirkbride, 3 May, 1733, one hundred and forty-eight acres of land in New Britain township, Bucks county (Philadelphia Deeds, H, i. 380), and on 12 July, 1740, he with his wife Margaret were received into membership in the Montgomery Baptist church. His will, dated 8 September, 1771, proved 11 April, 1772 (Bucks County Wills, iii. 263), in which he is styled of "New Britain township, Bucks county," names wife Margaret, sons John, Jonathan, and Richard, daughter Rebecca Byle (Biles?), and daughter Margaret Evans. The son Edward was also of New Britain township, and his will, dated 9 September, 1763, proved 14 March, 1770 (Philadelphia Wills, O, 480), names wife Mary, sons William, Jeremiah, and Edward, daughter Rebecca Freeman, daughter Elizabeth Rees, deceased, and grandchildren Elizabeth and Isaac Freeman.

|| The name Keril is probably a corruption of Carroll. It is variously spelled in the early records as Keril, Kearl, Kerrill, Carrell, Carroll. The estate of James Keril (believed to be the husband of Sarah Dungan) was administered 10 February, 1720, by Sarah Keril. The sureties on the administration bond are Clement Dungan and Bartholomew Longstreth, and the witnesses to the same James Carroll and Jeremiah Langhorne. In the inventory filed the name is spelled Carroll. (Bucks county probate and land records.)

“WILLIAM PENN.”*

In 1687 Mr. Dungan was baptized in the Baptist faith, and united with the church of which his father was pastor. He married Deborah, daughter of Daniel Wing, of Sandwich, Massachusetts, by his wife Hannah Swift, granddaughter of Reverend John Wing† by his wife Deborah Bachiler, and great-granddaughter of Reverend Stephen Bachiler.‡ Mrs. Dungan was born at Sandwich in November, 1660. In † REVEREND JOHN WING, third son of Matthew Wing, of Banbury, county Oxford, was for some time pastor of the English Puritan church at Middleborough, in Zeeland, and died at London, England, in 1630, where his will was proved 4 August of that year, and in which he is described as “late of the Hague in Holland, clerk, now living in St. Mary Aldermary, London.” He married Deborah Bachiler, born in 1592, the eldest daughter of Reverend Stephen Bachiler; their son Daniel Wing, named in the text, accompanied his mother to Sandwich, Massachusetts, and there married, 5 November, 1641, Hannah, daughter of William Swift.

‡ REVEREND STEPHEN BACHILER was born in England, circa 1561; was matriculated at St. John's College, Oxford, 17 November, 1581, “aged twenty,” and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts, 3 September, 1585-6. He prepared for the ministry, and on 17 July, 1587, succeeded the Reverend Edward Parrett, as vicar of Holy Cross and St. Peter, at Wherwell, county Hants, which position he held until about 1605, when John Bate, A.M., clergyman, was appointed, 9 August, 1605, vicar of Wherwell, to fill the vacancy then existing “because of the ejection of Stephen Bachiler.” But little is known of Mr. Bachiler from this time until his removal to Massachusetts in 1632. On 9 March, 1631-2, he left England for Massachusetts, in the ship “William and Francis,” and after a voyage of eighty-eight days, landed at Boston. Among his fellow-travellers were Governor Edward Winslow, of Plymouth, Reverend Thomas James, Reverend Thomas Welde, and Thomas Oliver, the famous ruling elder of Boston. The ship “William and Francis” was sent out by “the Company of husbandmen,” sometimes called “The Company of London” or “Company of the Plough,” of which company Stephen Bachiler was an active member, and was chosen their pastor in 1629 or 1630. He had planned in England to settle at Newtown (now Cambridge), Massachusetts, but owing to the disaster which befell the Plough Company in 1631, and having received a call from Lynn, Massachusetts (then called Sagus), he proceeded to the place last named, where his daughter Theodate, wife of Christopher Hussey, resided. He commenced his ministry at that place on Sunday, 8 June, 1632, on which day he baptized four children. Thomas Newhall,§ the first white child born in Lynn, was first presented. Mr. Bachiler put him aside, saying, “I will baptize my own child first,” meaning Stephen Hussey, his daughter's child, born the same week as Thomas Newhall. Mr. Bachiler's ministry at Lynn was not a happy one. Some of his religious views were at variance with those of many of his congregation, which led to distraction in the church, and resulted in his departure from Lynn in 1636. On 6 July, 1638, he received a grant of land at Newbury, Massachusetts, where he then resided, and on 2 October, of the same year, the General Court of Massachusetts granted him and his company, who had petitioned therefor, liberty to begin a plantation at what is now New Hampshire, whither he removed, and where a church was organized, of which he was made pastor. In 1643 he received a call from the church at Casco, Maine, but does not seem to have accepted the same, although he relinquished his church at Hampton about this time. In 1647 he resided at Strawberry Bank (now Portsmouth), New Hampshire, and a few years later, just when is not known, he returned to England, and died at Hackney, within the present limits of the city of London, in 1660, “in the one hundredth year of his age.”

Winthrop classes Mr. Bachiler “among honest men” when he arrived in 1632. Prince, in his “Annals of New England,” appendix to edition of 1632, says, “From Gov. Winslow and Capt. Johnson, we learn, That He (Stephen Bachiler) was an ancient minister in England: had been a Man of Fame in his Day: was 71 years of Age when he came over: bro't a number of People with him: and soon became the 1st Feeder of the Flock of Christ at

He was probably the William Dungan of "Warminster township, yeoman," whose will, dated 11 August, 1770, proved 6 June, 1771,† named wife Catharine, sons John and William, daughter Mary Shaw, daughter Ann Stephens, daughter Elizabeth Hill (wife of Isaac Hill), sons Joseph, Jeremiah, Joshua, and Nathan, and granddaughter Rachel Eaton. The wife Catharine was probably his second wife, as William Dungan and Mary his wife are noted on the record of Southampton Baptist church as baptized in 1731.
106. JEREMIAH DUNGAN<sup>5</sup>,‡ died circa July, 1758 ; married Sarah Smith.

102. On 19 November, 1729, he executed to his brother William a deed quitclaiming one hundred acres of land out of a tract of two hundred acres which their father had purchased of William Penn, the father being styled in the deed as "late of Bristol," and the said Thomas "the eldest son and heir-at-law." § Mr. Dungan resided in Warminster township. His will, dated 1 December, 1758, proved 3 February, 1759, mentions wife Esther and all the children named below ; also son-in-law Silas Yerkes,

Lynn (And by several Letters I have seen of his Writing to the R. Mr. Cotton of Boston, I find he was a Gentleman of Learning and Ingenuity and wrote a fine and curious hand.")

Sylvanus Morgan's "Sphere of Gentry," published in 1661, ascribes the following coat-armor to Mr. Bachiler: "Vert, a plough in fesse ; in base the sun rising, or," and further states that "it was granted to Stephen Bachiler, the first pastor of the church of Lygonia,* in New England, the plough to signify his ploughing up the fallow ground of their hearts, and the sun appearing, in allusion to his motto 'sol justitiæ exoritur.'"

Mr. Bachiler has many descendants of prominence in America, among whom may be named General Henry Dearborn of the Revolution, Daniel Webster, the Quaker poet Whittier, Honorable Seth Low, and Honorable Justin Smith Morrill, the senior member of the United States senate. His will, dated 7 May, 1752, proved 4 August, 1758 (Bucks County Wills, ii. 338), names wife Sarah, daughter Ann Gillam, granddaughter Susanna Gillam, and esteemed friend and brother William Smith. The wife Sarah was probably a sister of said William Smith.

The Elkins Family

IDEELY dissimilar theories are advanced by the etymologists as to the origin of many surnames. Indeed, no branch of philology is perhaps so susceptible of such diverse treatment, for epochs of forgotten history, deeds of valor, and trivial incidents are alike wrapped in a single surname, and of the countless number of these, no one is without its signification.

Few are the individuals, even those who care little for inquiry into the origin of the language they speak, but that feel some interest in the meaning of the name they bear, for this, slightly modified or impaired though it may be by time, is yet a priceless transmission from father to son,—an inheritance of to-day from an often remote and otherwise unknown ancestry, a tangible something that has survived the passing of dynasties.

The surname Elkins is one of those upon which the authorities, in their search for the source, find difficulty in agreement. According to one,* it means Englishmen, and appears as a corruption of Alchen,† a compound of Ella and kyn. Ella and Alla were names so frequent‡ among the Saxons, that the northern Skalds, familiarly termed Englishmen in general, “Ella-kind,” the race of King Ella.§ The § Ella, a Saxon ealdorman who landed in Britain with his three sons in 477. Having defeated the Britons, the invaders established themselves along the coast and were called South Saxons, and Ælla later became their king. He was looked upon as the head of all the Teutonic settlers in Britain, and is reckoned as the first Bretwalda. He died about 514. A later Ælla was king of the Deirans, an Anglian tribe, settled in what was afterwards called the East Riding of Yorkshire. It was of him that Pope Gregory spoke when his sympathy had been aroused by the spectacle of Anglian youths sold into slavery and displayed in the market-place at Rome. After a play of words on the name of the people, he asked of what tribe they were, and being told of Deira, declared they must be delivered from wrath, and upon learning the name of their king, Ælla, vowed that Alleluia should be sung in their land. Ælla, who died in 588, did not see the fulfilment of the Pope's dictum. A still later Ella was king of the Northumbrians, and died in 867.

The Elkins Family

name Ella is derived from the Goth alja, alius in the sense of peregrinus, foreigner ; hence the old German Alj, Ello, and Ella, and the Anglo-Saxon Ella of the seventh century ; the German diminutives Alikin and Elikin of the tenth century, and the Anglo-Saxon Alchen and Elkin.*

Another authority † ascribes the genesis of Elkins to the heroes of holy writ, Elias the prophet of Carmel, and Elias the forerunner at the Jordan, and classes the name with Ellis, Ellison, Ellicott, Allison, Allkin, and Alkins. Förstemann, ‡ however, suggests that the scriptural name Elias may be liable to intermix with the old root alja, and Grimm § refers the stem el and al in proper names to the German tribe of the Elysii. But the name of the tribe may be derived from a word signifying stranger, wanderer, faintly traced in the old High German alis, Anglo-Saxon elles, English else, aliter.||

Passing from the realm of what for the present must remain speculative etymology, we find that the family Elkins, always numerically small, was of early seating in that Babylon of modern times,—London. ¶ Of this family was Robert Ellkyn, who held office there about the time of the famous Sir Richard Whittington's last mayoralty ;** as also, somewhat later, was Richard Elkins, gentleman, to whom was granted by Gilbert Dethick, Garter-King-of-Arms, 5 March, 5 Edward VI., Per cross or and gules a cross vaire, between four tigers passant, counter-changed, armed and langued azure, all within a bordure quarterly of the second and first, charged with fleurs-de-lis and roundels counterchanged.

Nearly two centuries before—6 January, 1405—another William Elkins was instituted vicar of East Cloyden, Buckinghamshire, and George Elkins, a “priest with the cure of souls,” received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Oxford, 17 April, 1559.

In this country the name Elkins is interestingly associated with the beginnings of the three oldest colonies, Virginia, New York, and Massachusetts. It appeared in connection with New York or New Netherlands, as it was then called, in 1614, some five years after Henry Hudson had discovered the river which bears his name, when in response to the petitions of “certain merchants interested in maritime discovery,” the States-General of the United Netherlands granted a general charter in favor of all persons who should thereafter “discover any new passages, havens, countries, or places,” and invested such discoverers with the exclusive privilege of resorting to and frequenting the same for four voyages. Under this charter was formed the United Company of Merchants, afterwards known as the New Netherlands Company, of which Henry Elkins, of Amsterdam, was a most active and prominent member. Five ships were immediately fitted out by the company, one of which, called the “Fortune,” was commanded by Captain Cornelis Jacobson Mey, who, with Adriaen Jorisz Tienpont, was vice-director of New Netherlands and of the Dutch on the Delaware from 1614 till 1623. These vessels proceeded on an exploring expedition, and four of them returned to Holland the same year, reporting the discovery of “certain new lands in America, between New France and Virginia, the sea-coast thereof lying between forty and forty-five degrees of latitude, and now called New Netherlands;” whereupon their High Mightinesses the States-General granted the company exclusive franchise of trade with the newly discovered country for a period of three years from the first day of January, 1615. Under its auspices a small colony had been established at what is now the city of Albany, New York, where, on an island nearly opposite, a fort† was constructed and placed in the command of Jacob Jacobsen Elkins, formerly of Amsterdam, and a probable kinsman of the before-named Henry Elkins. Jacob Jacobsen Elkins, of whom further mention is made hereafter, continued in command of the fort from 1614 until 1618, when the charter expired under which the New Netherlands Company had operated.

The company continued its trade with New Netherlands, though no longer under exclusive privileges, special grants being from time to time obtained from the States-General. One of such grants is shown in the following extract from the Register of Resolutions in the Royal Archives at the Hague :

" Tuesday the 9th October 1618.

" Folio 272      Read the petition of Henrick Eelkins and Adriaen Janssen, Engel cum sociis, all Henrick Eelkins merchants residing at Amsterdam, associates and partners in what is called the New and Company.      Netherland Company, which their High Mightinesses have incorporated for the term of four successive years, whereof the fourth and last year hath expired in January last ; requesting that, in consequence of said expiration and of their, the petitioners, having already prepared a ship named the Schilt to proceed thither, their High Mightinesses would be pleased to grant them a favorable permission, in order that they may perform the aforesaid voyage without any opposition from their former partners. Their High Mightinesses have consented thereunto, because, and by reason, of the expiration of the charter granted to the petitioners, and therefore permit them to perform their intended voyage to New Netherland with their prepared ship herein mentioned."

When it became known at Amsterdam that the English pilgrims at Leyden contemplated removal to and settlement in America, Henry Elkins and his associates of the New Netherlands Company put themselves in communication with the former, and sought to induce them to plant their colony at New Netherlands. The Pilgrims virtually agreed to such proposition, stipulating, however, that the New Netherlands Company should provide in advance a sufficient military establishment in the new country, to guard and preserve them from all violence. On 12 February, 1620, the company memorialized * the Prince of Orange, setting forth their negotiations * " PETITION OF THE DIRECTORS OF THE NEW NETHERLAND COMPANY.

" (Signed) C. Aerssens 1620

The Directors of the Company trading to New Netherland, situate in latitude from 40 to 45 degrees, between New France and Virginia, reverently represent that they, the petitioners, have, as discoverers and first finders of said countries, traded thither now several years, in virtue of a certain general Charter from the High and Mighty Lords States General, dated the 10th March, 1614; that they, also, have delivered to their High Mightinesses their written report, with a map of the situation and usefulness of said countries. And whereas the petitioners' Charter has expired, so that every one is now a liberty to trade there, they have again sent thither two ships, in order to preserve the reputation of said trade; some vessels have been likewise sent by other traders exclusive of the Company. Now it happens, that there is residing at Leyden a certain English Preacher, versed in the Dutch language, who is well inclined to proceed thither to live, assuring the petitioners that he has the means of inducing over four hundred families to accompany him thither, both out of this country and England, provided they would be guarded and preserved from all violence on the part of other potentates, by the authority and under the protection of your Princely Excellency and the High and Mighty Lords States General, in the propagation of the true pure Christian religion, in the instruction of the Indians in that country in true learning, and in converting them to the Christian faith, and thus through the mercy of the Lord, to the greater glory of this country's government, to plant there a new Commonwealth, with the Pilgrims, and requesting the Prince to provide the desired protection by despatching two ships of war to New Netherlands, which request was, on 11 April, 1620, rejected by the States-General, and in consequence the Pilgrims perfected arrangements which resulted in their sailing, about 22 July, 1620, from Delft Haven under the auspices of Great Britain. Had this effort of Mr. Elkins and his company been successful, Manhattan Island, and not Plymouth, would doubtless have become the most noted landmark of American history.

Henry Elkins and his merchant associates had also established a trade with Virginia, which continued until the States-General granted the famous Dutch West India Company its charter of 3 June, 1621, under which that corporation acquired the sole right of commerce with America, as well as other specified countries. Being thus deprived of their former privilege of trade, and having employees and property in Virginia, Mr. Elkins, on behalf of himself and partners, petitioned the States-General, 4 September, 1621, "for permission to send a ship to New Virginia to fetch their people and property." This request was granted on the 15th of the same month, as is thus noted in the Royal Archives at the Hague :

"Wednesday, 15 September, 1621.

"On the petition of Heinrich Elkens, Hans Jooris Houton and Adriaen Janssen, Engel cum sociis, merchants in Amsterdam, what follows is granted :—

"The States General, &c., having communication of the contents of this petition, have, for reasons submitted with the presentation thereof, granted, and do hereby grant, for disposition thereof, that the petitioners, according to their request, shall be at liberty to send their ship named the White Love, burthen about forty lasts, whereof Wilhem Janssen Houton is Master, to Virginia, on condition that they shall have returned to this country before the first of July next with their goods and ship."

Captain Jacob Jacobsen Elkins, before alluded to, probably returned to Holland about 1618. His next known appearance in New York is as supercargo of the English ship "William," sent out by some London merchants for trade on the Hudson. Upon the arrival of the ship at Fort Amsterdam, 12 April, 1633, a lively controversy arose between Van Twiller, the director-general of New Netherland, and the supercargo, Jacob Elkins, as to the jurisdiction of their respective sovereigns, Van Twiller all under the order and command of your Princely Excellency and the High and Mighty Lords States General. And whereas they, the petitioners, have experienced that his Majesty of Great Britain would be disposed to people the aforesaid lands with the English nation, and by force to render fruitless their possession and discovery, and thus deprive this State of its right, and apparently with ease surprize the ships of this country which are there, and are ordered to remain there the whole year; wherefore, they, the petitioners, pray and request that your Princely Excellency may benignly please to take all the aforesaid into favorable consideration, so that, for the preservation of this country's rights the aforesaid Minister and the four hundred families may be taken under the protection of this country, and that two ships of war may be provisionally dispatched to secure to the State the aforesaid Countries, inasmuch as they would be of much importance, whenever the West India Company is established, in respect to the large abundance of timber fit for ship building, &c., as may be seen by the accompanying report.

declaring that the whole of the country belonged to the Prince of Orange, and Elkins that he was within the English king's dominions. After a delay of some days, Mr. Elkins requested to be allowed to ascend the Hudson, stating that should such permission be withheld he would proceed if it cost him his life. Van Twiller was, however, immovable. Instead of consenting, he ordered the ship's crew on shore, and in the presence of all commanded the flag of the Prince of Orange to be run up at the fort, and three pieces of ordnance to be fired in honor of his Highness. Elkins, not to be outdone, promptly ordered his gunner aboard the English ship to hoist thereon the English flag, and to fire a like salute of three guns in honor of the king of England, which was accordingly done. Van Twiller now warned Elkins to take heed lest that which he was about did not cost one or the other his head. Elkins, in no way daunted, returned on board with the ship's crew. Anchor was weighed, and the "William" sailed slowly up the Hudson, near to Fort Orange, where the next movements of the gallant supercargo are set forth in an affidavit of Richard Barnard, one of the crew of the "William."

"After the factor had landed a good quantitie of goodes, and had erected a tente, and traded with the Indians some few days ; the Governor of the Upper fforte, belonginge to the Dutch, cominge to the said tente with other Dutchman with him, and perceivinge, that the said Jacob Jacobsen Elkins was very well acquainted with the Indians, and speake their language very well, and was much beloved by them ; and that they were a greate deal more willing to trade with him than with the Dutch ; the said Governor envied att the said merchants factor and the rest of the Englishe, and tould them, that they should trade there no longer. But the said factor told them that they were the Kinge of England's subjects, and that that land was within the dominions of the Kinge of England." *

Mr. Elkins' plea that he was on British soil, with the rights of British subjects, was in vain ; the Dutch authorities would listen to no remonstrance, and by armed intervention the little ship was sailed to Manhattan Island. Finding the object of the voyage thus frustrated, Elkins requested from some of the residents of New Amsterdam a certificate to prove the treatment he and his vessel had received. The director-general had, however, anticipated such a demand, and, foreseeing the object, had already issued a proclamation forbidding the giving of such a paper, "on pain of death." Thus the "William," of London, the first English ship to ascend the Hudson, was forced to put to sea, convoyed out of the river by a Dutch yacht. Her owners estimated the damages which they experienced on this occasion at five thousand pounds sterling.† Such was the reception of the first formal proclamation of England's sovereignty in and to that country then known as New Netherland, but a few years later as New York.‡

Among the early colonists of Massachusetts was one Henry Elkins, who, while possibly the Amsterdam merchant, was probably from England. His first settlement was at Boston, where he was admitted freeman, 6 May, 1635. He was a member of the first church of Boston, and of its majority which sympathized with the Antinomian doctrines of the Reverend John Wheelwright and the famous Ann Hutchinson, in consequence of which he incurred the displeasure of the government, and, with other prominent Bostonians of the same mind, was "disarmed" by order of the General Court, 20 November, 1637. The following year witnessed the banishment of Wheelwright and his removal to Exeter, New Hampshire, with many of his friends and followers, among whom was Henry Elkins, who signed the civil compact forming that town, 4 October, 1639. The latter subsequently removed to Hampton, New Hampshire, where he died, 19 November, 1668. He was the founder of the Elkins family in New England. His grandson, Henry Elkins, served in King Philip's war, and his family has been represented in each succeeding war. Thirteen of the name were in the Revolutionary war from New Hampshire, one of whom was Captain Henry Elkins, of Hampton, who had previously commanded a company in the French and Indian war.

The charter of the London Company, under which England's first permanent colony in America was established, bore date 10 April, 1606, and the memorable document defined the territorial dimensions of Virginia as from the thirty-fourth to the forty-fifth parallel of north latitude, and from the sea-shore inland one hundred miles. In the second charter, issued three years later, 23 May, 1609, to "the Treasurer and Company of Adventurers and Planters of the City of London for the First Colony in Virginia," the limit of jurisdiction is from sea to sea, and from two hundred miles north to two hundred miles south of Old Point Comfort. The incorporators are named in the charter, and the list comprised fifty-six city companies of London and six hundred and fifty-nine persons,* headed by the Earls of Salisbury, Suffolk, Southampton, Pembroke, Lincoln, Dorset, Exeter, and Montgomery; the Lords De La-warr, Sheffield, Chandois, Compton, and Stanhope; and contained, among other illustrious names, those of the philosopher Bacon, and of Sir Oliver Cromwell, uncle to the great Protector. Of these incorporators was John Elkin, a London merchant, who subscribed seventy-five pounds, or about twice the usual subscription.†

* The persons in this charter were evidently of divers qualities, from the man of limited means to the peer of the realm. At least one hundred of them served in the House of Commons at some time, and about fifty were then members of the first parliament of James I.; twenty-one were peers, ninety-six knights, eleven doctors, ministers, etc.; fifty-three captains, twenty-eight esquires, fifty-eight gentlemen, one hundred and ten merchants, and two hundred and eighty-two citizens and others not classified.—The Genesis of the United States, by Alexander Brown. Houghton, Mifflin and Company, 1890.

† About two hundred and thirty of the subscribers paid £37 10s. or more, about two hundred and twenty-nine paid less than £37 10s., and about two hundred failed to pay anything. After January, 1609, no one was to be admitted to the freedom of the company for less than one share of £12 10s.—Ibid.

It is not known that he ever visited America's first commonwealth,* to whose genesis he had contributed. It is thought, however, that he was probably near of kin to William Elkin, the alderman of London, whose step-son, Henry Robinson, Esq.,† was also one of the famous "Adventurers," and possibly to the Ralph Elkins who emigrated with the last of the Cavaliers to the Old Dominion shortly after the emigration of John and Lawrence Washington. Indeed, it is not until this period, the beginning of the reign of Charles II., that the student of Virginia history begins to meet frequently with the familiar names of Monroe, Carter, Madison, Randolph, Ludwell, Page, Harrison, Pope, Fitzhugh, Parke, and Washington.

Ralph Elkins received from Governor Francis Moryson a patent of land in York ‡ county, 13 January, 1661;§ but located shortly afterwards between the fairest of Virginia's tidal rivers, the Potomac and the Rappahannock, in what was then Westmoreland, but later King George county. Here he followed the usual occupation of the gentleman of the day, and became a planter of tobacco, that staple which was the ally of the church and the currency of the colony, and his early shipments || thereof bear testimony to his prosperity. He lived the life of the "Tide-Water Virginian," his neighbors were the early "Barons of the Potomack and the Rappahannock," his religion, political creed, and amusements were as theirs, and his entire environment was similar to that by which Mr. Thackeray has so graphically encircled his Esmonds. ¶ The date of death of Ralph Elkins has not been ascertained. Through * Unless he were the John Elkin of Kent Island, a possible associate of Claiborne, and one of the assignees of Mr. John Saunders in 1633.—Maryland Records in Land Office, A B H, 65.

† Was a subscriber to the amount of £87 10s.; was also one of the incorporators of and a director in the East India Company. He married, in 1611, Mary, daughter of Sir William Glover, was afterwards knighted, and was buried, 21 December, 1637, at Islington, in the vault with his mother.

‡ Until 1630 the settlements of the English in Virginia were confined to the Accomac Peninsula and the valley of the James. In that year the first settlements were planted on the south side of the York river at Chiskiack and York, and about the same time Claiborne made a settlement on Kent island, at the head of Chesapeake bay. The quarrel with Lord Baltimore caused many of the English settlers at Kent island to plant on the neck between the Rappahannock and Potomac at Chickacoan, and from this was erected, in 1648, Northumberland county. The Indian war of 1644 temporarily depressed the colonization of this section, but the treaty of peace of 1646 and the removal of the restriction against emigration in 1648 soon brought thither settlers from England, from Maryland, New England, and the older settlements of Virginia. In 1651 Gloucester county was formed out of the territory between the York and Piantetank rivers, and the same year witnessed the erection of the counties of York and Lancaster. In 1653 the western part of Northumberland county was made into Westmoreland county.—Lyon G. Tyler, M.A., LL.D., in the William and Mary College Quarterly, July, 1895.

§ Virginia Land Grants, liber iv. 437.

|| Westmoreland County Court Order Books, 1665-1677.

¶ "The gentry of Virginia dwelt on their great lands after a fashion almost patriarchal. For its rough cultivation each estate had a multitude of hands,—of purchased and assigned servants,—who were subject to the command of the master. The land yielded their food, live stock, and game. The great rivers swarmed with fish for the taking. From their banks the passage home was clear. Their ships took the tobacco off their private wharves on the banks of the Potomac or the James river, and carried it to London or Bristol, bringing back English goods and articles of home manufacture in return for the only produce which the Virginian gentry chose to cultivate. Their hospitality was boundless. No stranger was ever sent away from their gates. The gentry received one another and travelled to each other's houses in a state almost feudal."—The Virginians.

his two sons Ralph and Richard* he is the founder of the Elkins family of Virginia, from whom descends the Honorable Stephen Benton Elkins, of West Virginia, and William Elkins, the first of the name in Philadelphia.

HONORABLE STEPHEN BENTON ELKINS, son of Colonel Philip Duncan Elkins by his wife Sarah Pickett Withers, was born in Perry county, Ohio, 26 September, 1841, to which state his grandfather, Philip Elkins, removed from Fauquier county, Virginia, in 1826. During the early boyhood of Stephen Benton Elkins, his father removed with his family to Missouri, where the former received his education, which was completed at the University of Missouri, from which institution he was graduated at the head of his class in 1860. On leaving college he entered on the study of the law, and was admitted to the bar in 1864. During the war he joined the Union forces, and for a while served on the Missouri border with the rank of captain.

The spirit of adventure, and a desire to practise his profession in a field which was not overcrowded, led him in 1864 to cross the plains to New Mexico, then a rough border country, inhabited by a population two-thirds Spanish. The life of the territory was full of hardship and danger at that time, but presented opportunities for success to an enterprising man. Finding it necessary to master the Spanish language, Mr. Elkins became proficient in that tongue within one year. He soon attracted important clients and a large practice, and gained popularity and influence. In 1866 he was elected to the legislature, and his speeches in that body revealed great force of character and devotion to the welfare of the territory. In 1867 he rose to the position of attorney-general of New Mexico.

In 1868 President Johnson appointed Mr. Elkins to be United States district attorney of the territory, and he was one of the few officials of that administration whom President Grant did not remove. In this position it fell to the lot of Mr. Elkins to enforce the act of congress prohibiting slavery or involuntary servitude in the territories of the United States, and he had the satisfaction of restoring to liberty several thousand peons who were then held in practical slavery by the Mexican residents. He was the first public official to enforce this law, and performed his task in the face of serious opposition, against the prejudices of the rich and influential, and under threats of personal violence.

In 1869 Mr. Elkins was elected president of the first national bank of Santa Fé, and held this position for thirteen years. His income from law practice and other sources was large, and, being careful in his expenditures, he was at an early day enabled to invest large sums of money in lands and mines, and soon took rank as one of the largest land proprietors in the country and an extensive owner in the silver-mines of Colorado.

* Richard Elkins, of Prince George and Stafford counties, sold one hundred acres of his estate to the eminent Colonel William Fitzhugh, who in his will of 9 April, 1700, left this tract, with others, to his youngest son, John Fitzhugh.—Stafford county Records, Z, 92-100.

In 1873 Mr. Elkins received an election as delegate from New Mexico to congress, defeating his opponent, a Mexican, by four thousand majority. In congress he served his constituents so well that in 1875, while travelling in Europe, notwithstanding a positive refusal to accept the office again, his district re-elected him by a large majority to the forty-fourth congress. During his second term he was especially untiring in efforts to secure the admission of New Mexico as a state. An elaborate speech, setting forth the resources and claims of the then little known territory, gained for him a national reputation.

Four years of experience in Washington brought Mr. Elkins well into the arena of public affairs. From the beginning an active, earnest, and aggressive Republican, he especially favored the policy of protection to American industry. His advocacy of constructive measures made him, during his first term in congress, one of the leaders of his party, and in 1875 a member of the Republican national committee. Upon this committee he served during three presidential campaigns. In 1884 the executive committee elected him chairman. A warm and intimate friendship soon sprang up between James G. Blaine and Mr. Elkins, and the latter was influential in bringing about the nomination of Mr. Blaine for the presidency in 1884. He was equally instrumental in the nomination of Benjamin Harrison in 1888 and 1892.

December 17, 1891, he became secretary of war under President Harrison. He was especially well fitted to perform the duties of this office, having had a large acquaintance with the affairs of the war department in the West. His appointment brought into the service of the army a man of intellectual strength, an excellent organizer, and a courteous gentleman. Patient in investigation, prompt in decision, and sincerely desirous of promoting the welfare of the army, he proved a successful and useful secretary of war.

Mr. Elkins' reputation does not rest entirely upon his public services. His progress in the field of business and finance has been marked. About 1878 he removed from New Mexico to West Virginia, and there devoted himself, in company with ex-senator Davis, to the development of the railroads of the state, and the coal and timber lands of the Cumberland region. Success has followed effort in these enterprises, but it should be mentioned that, while adding to some extent to his private fortune, Mr. Elkins has conferred upon the people of his adopted state far greater benefits than he has received. He has been vice-president of the West Virginia Central and Pittsburgh railway company since its organization, and of the Piedmont and Cumberland railroad, and is president of the Davis coal and coke company. Through his agency large amounts of capital have been brought into the state, and employment provided for thousands of men.

In December, 1892, Mr. Elkins received the complimentary vote of the Republicans of the legislature of West Virginia for United States senator. During the campaign of 1894 he led the Republicans of West Virginia in the struggle, which, for the first time since the period of reconstruction, broke the solid South. Congressman Wilson, in whose district Mr. Elkins resides, was defeated by a decisive majority; four Republicans were elected to Congress; the legislature was made Republican by twenty-nine majority on joint ballot, and the state was carried by thirteen thousand majority. As a result of this revolution the legislature elected Mr. Elkins United States senator in 1895.

The Elkins Family

For many years a leader in the Republican party, Mr. Elkins, as soon as he took his seat in the senate, was recognized as equipped by natural talent and a wide business and political experience for the duties of his new and high position.

He took a prominent part in the debate on the vexed question of issuing bonds to supply the deficiency in revenue during the latter days of the Cleveland administration. His stand on this question was endorsed by the public in general and by leading men in financial circles, and had much weight in influencing the subsequent action of the executive. All through the debate on the tariff question no one was more active or determined for the re-establishment of a thoroughly American system of protection and encouragement for our home industries. Many of the best features of this bill owe much of their value to his careful and convincing arguments and tireless work.

Perhaps the most noteworthy effort of his career in the senate has been his attempt through legislation to rebuild our American merchant marine. On this question he delivered, on 5 April, 1897, a speech which has won for him more than a national reputation. Although the war with Spain, now in progress, has set aside for a time the consideration of this most important question, Mr. Elkins and his supporters in the senate and in the house are still determined upon a vigorous line of action looking towards the revival of our shipping interests at the earliest practicable day.

The movement to revive our shipping initiated by Mr. Elkins' bill, introduced on 5 March, 1896, attracted such widespread and favorable attention that no less than fourteen state conventions incorporated in their platforms the principles laid down by the bill,—namely, the restoration of discriminating duties on goods imported in foreign bottoms. The president in his letter of acceptance endorsed the movement, and again in his inaugural address approved what had been done, and argued for further action. Even the St. Louis convention incorporated in its platform practically Mr. Elkins' views on this question.

The speech of Senator Elkins on the aggressions of the Canadian Pacific railway, made in the senate on 2 March, 1898, brought to the attention of the country in a forcible way the taking of trans-continental freight from American roads by the Canadian Pacific. He argued that the bonding privileges permitting this injustice to American roads should be abolished; that they are not sanctioned by any law nor based upon treaty rights. He reviewed in this speech nearly all of the questions that will come before the Canadian commission appointed by the United States, Canada, and Great Britain to adjust the differences between the two governments.

The statesman-like way in which Mr. Elkins discussed the questions coming before the senate early won for him the confidence of the new Republican administration, and his conservative position on the Cuban question, while at the time bringing upon him much adverse criticism, has since been approved as in accord with the best judgment of the country.

He is a member of the Union League, Ohio, United Service, Metropolitan, Manhattan, and Athletic clubs, and the Southern Society of New York city, and a contributor to the support of those favored projects of New Yorkers, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the American Museum of Natural History, as well as the American Geographical Society.

Senator Elkins married (1) Sallie Jacobs, of Missouri. She died in October, 1872, and he married (2) 14 April, 1875, Hallie, daughter of Honorable Henry G. Davis,* of West Virginia, by his wife Catharine A. Bantz.

1. WILLIAM ELKINS, the first of the name in Philadelphia, was born in Virginia in 1751. Leaving the home of his fathers in early manhood, he journeyed on business to Philadelphia, the then metropolis of the colonies, and there met Miss Mary Points, whom he married 10 January, 1774. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend Andrew Goeransson, rector of Gloria Dei (Old Swedes') church. Through the influence of his wife and her family connections, Mr. Elkins was led to make the city of Penn his home, and there he continued to reside until his death, 29 July, 1798, from that pestilence which in the years 1793, 1797, and 1798* prostrated the business enterprise of the city and carried away many of its most valued citizens, which "Wealth had no power to bribe, nor beauty to charm the oppressor ;

But all perished alike beneath the scourge of his anger."

Some time after his marriage Mr. Elkins connected himself with the parish of Christ church, Philadelphia, and at the ancient font of this mother of the Protestant Episcopal church in Pennsylvania most of his children were baptized by the Right Reverend Bishop White, the first bishop of English consecration in these United States. Mrs. Elkins survived her husband only a few months, and "departed this life September the 21st, 1798, after seven days' illness, aged fifty years." †

8. GEORGE ELKINS, seventh child of William Elkins by his wife Mary Points, was born at Philadelphia, 11 July, 1786; baptized by Bishop White at Christ church in that city, 15 August, 1786; and died there, 9 September, 1849. Left an orphan at the age of twelve years, he was placed under the guardianship of his cousin by marriage, Captain Samuel S. Veacock,* of Philadelphia, under whose care he finished his education. He early turned his attention to the art of paper-making, one of Philadelphia's first and most important industries, and was later extensively engaged in the manufacture of paper, erecting his first mills at Black Horse Hill, Delaware county, Pennsylvania, near which place he purchased† of George Malin, 11 April 1821, two tracts of land. He subsequently erected paper-mills a few miles distant from Coatesville, Chester county, and at Elkton, Maryland; also one near Wheeling, West Virginia. Mr. Elkins was a man of large intelligence and enterprise, but his business ventures were not always successful. He is said to have quickly made small fortunes, and to have as quickly lost them. His greatest financial reverses were in the notable hard times or panic of 1837, when he was engaged in business in West Virginia. He returned to his native city a few years later, and there lived in retirement until his decease. Mr. Elkins served for six months in the militia force of Pennsylvania in the war of 1812, and he frequently entertained his children by the recital of interesting incidents of his camp life. He married at Philadelphia, 24 December, 1812, Susanna, daughter of Daniel Howell (see HOWELL FAMILY, page 167) by his wife Elizabeth Yerkes (see YERKES FAMILY, page 196). 23. GEORGE WASHINGTON ELKINS, sixth child and eldest son of George Elkins by his wife Susanna Howell, was born at Flat Rock, Schuylkill county, Pennsylvania, 15 March, 1828. Mr. Elkins has resided in Pittsburg for many years, and is prominently identified with the manufacturing and railroad interests of that city. He is president of the Pittsburg Traction company, and a director of the Freehold bank of Pittsburg. He married, 27 August, 1861, Elizabeth Victoreen, daughter of Peter Hogerbets by his wife Margaret Henry, born at Philadelphia, 21 May, 1839.

24. WILLIAM LUKENS ELKINS, seventh child and youngest son of George Elkins by his wife Susanna Howell, was born near Wheeling, West Virginia, 2 May, 1832. In 1840 he accompanied his parents on their return to Philadelphia, and received his education in this city. In 1853, on attaining his majority, he formed a partnership with Peter Saybolt, under the firm-name of Saybolt & Elkins, commission merchants, which business later passed under Mr. Elkins' control, and was disposed of by him at the outbreak of the civil war. His business career from this time is thus sketched in the "Contemporary American Biography" : "He was attracted to the oil regions of Pennsylvania in 1862, where already men of brains and enterprise were reaping rich reward in drawing from the fruitful storehouses of nature a product even then of high value, but destined before many years to become one of the great staples of the world. In these regions, and in conjunction with the boldest and most successful operators, Mr. Elkins labored ceaselessly for nearly twenty years, organizing many companies, sinking many wells, and producing largely of petroleum. After having spent some time in the oil regions, . . . Mr. Elkins arrived at the conclusion that the supply was practically inexhaustible. Its utilization for illuminating purposes was now the project that engaged the attention of far-sighted men ; and Mr. Elkins was quick to perceive that refining oil for this purpose could be made a profitable industry if conducted on a sufficiently large scale to warrant extensive purchases of the crude material and its manufacture under economical conditions. Establishing in Philadelphia a small plant as a beginning, he soon added thereto several rivals, and finally the Belmont works were leased, and the absolute control of the oil-refining business in Philadelphia was secured. Starting under these favorable conditions, with an output of about two thousand four hundred barrels of refined oil per month, the works were soon developed so as to produce nearly ten times this quantity. To keep them supplied with the crude oil, Mr. Elkins secured an interest in many wells and opened others. His refining plants were several times visited by disastrous conflagrations, but each time they were promptly rebuilt, often with considerable extensions, and furnished with the most approved machinery. It is recorded that 'the first gasoline ever made was produced by Mr. Elkins' works.' Mr. Elkins pushed his refining industry in other places than in Philadelphia. At one time he owned the Riverside oil refining works, on the Allegheny River, and in 1875 he became a partner in the Standard oil company. He disposed of his interest in the last in 1881. Mr. Elkins turned his attention to street railways as an investment in 1873, embarking largely of his capital in the stock of Philadelphia companies. Believing that a consolidation of these roads would lead to better service at a reduced cost of operating, he pushed this project successfully, and brought about the organization of the Philadelphia traction company. This company was quick in meeting the needs of the city in street-passenger traffic, and so strengthened and extended its lines as to give an efficient service to all parts of the city proper and to many of the outlying districts. His success in this field prompted Mr. Elkins to apply the same methods and system to other cities, with the result that in the course of a few years he became heavily interested in street railways in New York, Chicago, Pittsburg, Baltimore, and other flourishing centres of population. Among the companies in these cities which he helped to organize, and in which he is an extensive stockholder and director, are the Metropolitan traction company of New York, the West Side and the North Side traction company of Chicago, the Baltimore traction company, and the Pittsburg traction company. One of the more recent of his creations is the United gas improvement company, capitalized at ten million dollars, and of which he was practically the organizer, and in which he is now a leading director. This giant organization controls some sixty or seventy plants for the manufacture of illuminating gas in different American cities. With such a wide and well-tested experience, and after such brilliant successes, it was quite natural that Mr. Elkins should become known and respected in business circles, and a power in the industrial world. Many corporations sought to obtain his valuable services as an officer or a member of the board of directors, but he has contented himself with assuming duties of this character in those with which he is identified by his own choice. Among these may be named the Globe gas light company, the Edison electric light company, and the Contimental railroad company, in all of which he is president, and the Pennsylvania heat, light, and power company, in which he is a director. He is also a trustee of the famous Girard estate, managed in the interests of the city of Philadelphia for educational purposes, and a director of the Pennsylvania railroad, being connected with the latter for the past twenty years. . . . Following the examples, it may be said, of the Astors and the Rhinelanders in New York, Mr. Elkins, in company with his friend and esteemed business associate, Mr. P. A. B. Widener, of Philadelphia, has recently turned his attention to real estate investments in the Quaker city, and together they have purchased large tracts of land in the northern section, upon which they have erected upwards of three thousand houses. This magnificent effort in the line of urban development has been of great practical advantage to the city and its people, as well as profitable to the enterprising projectors. It is a development quite in line with the unique system of a house for every family which obtains in Philadelphia, and which has made that city noted throughout the land as a city of homes."

Besides the above-mentioned corporations, Mr. Elkins is in the directorship of many others, among which are the Philadelphia and Erie, Schuylkill Valley, and Fort Pitt railroad companies, the Broadway railway company of New York, and the Union traction company of Philadelphia, the latter being the largest and best-equipped passenger railway system in the world, and one that has contributed more largely than any other factor towards advancing the material interests of Philadelphia.

Mr. Elkins is deeply interested in the development of art in the United States, and has instituted a prize of five thousand dollars for the most meritorious painting exhibited by an American artist at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. His own gallery is one of the finest in Philadelphia, and contains some noted paintings of the old masters, and many choice selections from the works of the leading artists of the present day. Mr. Elkins has ever taken a keen interest in public affairs, but has never sought public office, nor has he held such, with the exception of the position of aide-de-camp with the rank of colonel on the staff of Governor Hartranft, and that of commissioner to represent Philadelphia at the International Exposition at Vienna, Austria, in 1873. He is a vestryman of St. Paul's Episcopal church at Ashbourne, Pennsylvania, and a member of the Historical, Genealogical, and Colonial societies of that state, the Fairmount park art association, Union League, Art, and Country clubs of Philadelphia, Germantown Cricket club, Maryland club, of Baltimore, and Manhattan club, of New York. He married, 21 January, 1857, Maria Louise, daughter of James Broomall by his wife Rachel Baker, born at Oxford, Chester county, Pennsylvania, 30 August, 1832. Mrs. Elkins is descended from John Broomall, Joseph Baker, George Maris, Henry Hayes, and other Pennsylvania colonists, which descent is shown in the accompanying chart.

- 79. LOUISE BROOMALL ELKINS, born 13 April, 1890.

71. IDA AMELIA ELKINS, second child and eldest daughter of William Lukens Elkins by his wife Maria Louise Broomall, was born at Philadelphia, 23 August, 1859; married, 8 March, 1888, Sidney Frederick Tyler, son of George Frederick Tyler, Esq., † by his wife Louisa Richmond, daughter of Reverend John L. Blake, D.D. Mr. Tyler was born at Philadelphia, 23 December, 1850, and was graduated at Harvard university in 1872, after which he spent some three years in travel in Europe. Returning to Philadelphia in the fall of 1875, he began the study of law under Honorable George W. Biddle, and was admitted to the bar in that city in 1878, and shortly afterwards to the bar in Rhode Island and in Massachusetts. He resided at Boston in the latter state from 1879 until 1884, where he was actively engaged in the insurance business. In 1884 he returned to Philadelphia, and in the following year was elected president of the Shenandoah Valley railroad company, and held the office about six years. In 1886 he organized the Fourth street national bank of Philadelphia, and was elected its president, which position he still retains. He has held directorships in the Security trust company of Philadelphia, the Western national bank of New York, Baltimore traction company, Maryland, Schuylkill river east side railway company of Philadelphia, Edison electric light company of Philadelphia, and has served as director or vice-president in numerous other large corporations. In 1894 he was a member of the reorganization committee of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad company, and of the reorganization committee of the Savannah and Western railway company of Georgia; also of the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf railroad company of Indian territory. He is a member of the society of colonial wars, Pennsylvania society of sons of the revolution, military order of the loyal legion, and of the Philadelphia and Rittenhouse clubs.

72. ELEANORE ELKINS, third child of William Lukens Elkins by his wife Maria Louise Broomall, was born at Philadelphia, 21 September, 1861; married, 1 No-

* COLONEL MCINTIRE, son of Samuel McIntire by his wife Elizabeth Peeling, of Virginia, was born at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, 23 December, 1832, removed to Ohio with his parents, and is now one of the merchant-bankers and principal capitalists of Dayton, in that state. He married, at Romulus, New York, Evaline, daughter of Isaac Von Tuyl, of New York.

† GEORGE FREDERICK TYLER was descended from Job Tyler, who settled in Andover, Massachusetts, as early as 1638, and a grandson of Captain Daniel Tyler, who served as adjutant of his command at the battle of Bunker Hill. Mr. Tyler is also a descendant of the celebrated theologian, Jonathan Edwards, president of Princeton college, and of Reverend Thomas Hooker, pioneer colonist of Connecticut.
